Municipal development unit meets tonight

Controversial rezoning cases on panel's agenda

Three controversial rezoning cases are scheduled for hearing by the city council's municipal development committee at 7:30 p.m. today.

The cases are:

- A petition for a change from R-2 residential to C-2 commercial to allow construction of a four-story office building at 1663-1701 Touhy Ave.
- A petition for rezoning from single-family to commercial for a medical office and electronics store at 1540 S. Wolf Rd.
- A year-old petition to rezone two lots at 981 Oakton St. from residential to commercial to allow building of a pizza restaurant.

THE ZONING BOARD of appeals twice recommended against the Wolf Road request by Dr. A. J. Bona, a chiropractor, and R. H. Huntzicker, owner of an electronics store. About 132 Homeland Acres subdivision residents protested the case in July 1972, claiming that the construction would intrude in a residential area.

The zoning board voted against the original request, stating that the undeveloped city plan called for residential use in the area. The property owners repettitioned Jan. 24 and the zoning board again denied the request to construct an $80,000 building with 21 parking spaces.

The Touhy office building zoning originally was petitioned in July 1969. The Iroquois Civic Association and Orchard Place Homeowners Association objected, claiming the proposal would be incompatible with surrounding residential use.

The zoning board recommended against the request, stating that two-story construction would be allowed on the site.

THE PETITIONERS, Leo Zari of Golf, Ill., Larry Noesen of 1663 Touhy and E. D. Rechel again requested Jan. 23 the zoning, modifying the petition from commercial to neighborhood shopping use. The proposed building, with 126 parking spaces, would cost $600,000.

The zoning board approved the petition, claiming the land is not suitable for residential use.

Homeland Acres residents also objected to the Oakton Street rezoning. The homeowners claim that the proposed restaurant, which would cost $65,000 and seat 80 persons, would downgrade the residential neighborhood. The zoning board approved the petition in December, 1972.

Someone broke in and ransacked an office at Auto-Craft, Inc., 1744 River Rd. early Friday. Nothing was stolen from a car owned by Richard Cohen, 6546 Dec Rd., Des Plaines, police said.

A difficult road back

Vietnam legacy: disillusionment

by KATHERINE BOYCE

"With a Purple Heart and a dime, you can get a cup of coffee," says a recently discharged veteran who is now a student at Oakton Community College.

Like many of today's veterans, he is disillusioned and bitter. He came home to find his friends had moved away.

He goes to school but is a different kind of student, alienated from classmates, getting an education for different reasons.

Colleges and trade schools have found veterans need special help. To provide it, they've hired men like Oakton's Win Miller, a field worker for the Illinois Office of Human Resources and the Illinois Veterans Administration who is paid by the college to contact veterans and help them get into school.

According to Miller, veterans go through a period of adjustment that can last quite a while, depending on what kind of service they put in. The shock of facing death in combat and the debilitating sense of dependency of military life both have harmful effects.

"WHEN SOMEONE shoots at you, your values of life change," says Miller. Veterans who return to their families expecting to pick up where they left off two years earlier often find they can't. "Your parents, your family, your friends are the same. You've changed," he says.

And unlike the men who have come back from earlier wars, the Vietnam veteran is often forgotten. He doesn't return a hero, Miller says, and he isn't proud of his part in an unpopular war. He can't brag about war time experiences because no one would listen.

There is the problem of friends, trying to retrieve old ones or find new ones. "You just can't come back to the states, walk into a bar and join right in," says Miller. Too often, the Vietnam vet stands apart. Close friendships are rare during AL GOLBACH, student at Oakton Community College, served with the Air Force in Thailand two years ago. Al's experience in the service changed his attitudes toward education. He didn't like the large university he attended before he enlisted but is now working for a degree in accounting. He hopes to get a job with the U.S. Treasury Department.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,000 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong released 142 American prisoners of war last night — the first of nearly 600 to be freed in the Vietnam peace settlement — to U.S. officials waiting to fly them to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. One hundred fifteen American POWs were released in Hanoi and 27 held in jungle camps were released at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. Planes from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines flew to Vietnam for the evacuation.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Helmaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other person, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Hellafjell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Dong met for a total of six hours in Hanoi in two three-hour segments. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced. "The atmosphere in the meetings has been cordial," Ziegler said.

Transit authority shift asked

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Control of the Chicago Transit Authority would shift from the Mayor of Chicago to the governor and its jurisdiction would be extended to a six-county area under a bill introduced in the Illinois House by a suburban Republican.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, would also permit the enlarged CTA to supplement its income with a half-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline sold in the six northeastern counties.

The counties are Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will.

The mayor of Chicago currently appoints four members of the seven-member CTA board and the governor picks three.

Schlickman's bill reverses this to allow the governor four appointees and the mayor three.

The revamped agency, dubbed the Metropolitan Transit Authority (MTA), would operate all buses and commuter railroads in Cook and the five surrounding counties.

Eugene Schlickman

SCHLICKMAN SAID his bill differs from other regional transportation proposals by giving control to an existing agency, the CTA, rather than creating a new one, and by creating a new tax fund rather than drawing on existing revenues.

"If we're going to arrive at a metropolitan transportation system," Schlickman said, "realistically and politically and, I think, practically, we should build on what we've got, rather than come up with something new."

He said he would not vote for a "stop-gap subsidy" to the CTA — which has announced a fare hike and service cutbacks to relieve a financial pinch — "without being assured that all of the interested parties are committed to a specific long range approach" that would provide equitable funding and satisfy regional transportation needs.

The House Appropriations Committee voted to give $8 million in emergency aid to the CTA if Chicago and Cook County match this amount. This proposal is not now tied to any regional transportation bill.

Chicago, county must match funds

State votes $8 million grant to CTA

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Illinois House Appropriations Committee has voted to give the Chicago Transit Authority an $8 million emergency grant if Chicago and Cook County match the state money with $8 million of their own.

The Republican-controlled committee also voted to set aside $2.25 million in state funds that commuter railroads can get to help offset operating losses, again with the stipulation that local governments or other sources or both would put up an equal amount.

Private and public bus lines — both suburban and downtown — could apply for $2 million in state money but they would not have to match the state's contribution.

The bill also would freeze fare rates and service levels for any carrier who applies for state aid. The CTA has announced it will hike its basic fare from 45 cents to 50 cents and drop routes Feb. 18 if financial aid isn't forthcoming.

ALL THE proposals, approved 15-7 with two voting present, are those of House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest. Blair has said the CTA needs some help now but until Thursday he had been unwilling to give any state aid to another carrier.

Blair said again last week a mass transit district for all of northeastern Illinois should be formed as soon as possible so the CTA doesn't come to the legislature for an operating subsidy every year.

The Blair proposals were offered and adopted by the committee after 3½ hours of testimony on a measure introduced by Rep. Benedict Garmisa, D-Chicago.

Garmisa wanted the committee to okay an immediate emergency grant to the CTA of $30 million, provided Chicago and Cook County came up with $15 million in matching money. Chicago has already earmarked $10 million for the CTA and Cook County $5 million.

GARMISA ALSO proposed $5 million in match-free money for all other carriers in the state.

Garmisa's plan was designed to carry the CTA through the end of 1973. The Blair proposals, subject now to a full House vote, would carry the CTA through only June 30 this year.

Garmisa Wednesday in the House Transportation Committee offered a $50 million plan under which every mass transit carrier in the state could get state money on a 2-1 state-local matching basis. The CTA had been expected to get some $30 million of that money.

But the House Transportation Committee after 4½ hours of testimony Wednesday on Garmisa's $60 million plan deferred a vote on the measure until next week.

Republicans will almost certainly revise the Garmisa bill in accordance with Blair's proposals in that committee, too.

Chicago Democrats on the appropriations committee were not happy but they were trapped by CTA board member Wallace Johnson who said the CTA can get by until July 1 with $16 million.

BLAIR SEIZED on this $16 million figure and threw it back at Democrats every time they said the CTA needs more.

The Democrats said the $16 million figure doesn't provide for any CTA wage hikes that may be forthcoming, makes no room for any law suits the CTA might have to meet and allows for no money to retire CTA bonds.

Blair, however, said it would be unwise to build into the emergency aid bill possible wage hike dollars. He said this would only encourage CTA workers to press harder for higher pay.

The CTA and its unions are presently negotiating a new contract.

Blair wants the $12.25 million in state funds called for under his latest proposal to come from the state's general revenue fund. Blair originally proposed giving only $4 million in state money to the CTA alone on a 2-1 local-state matching basis.

Kerner contradicts IRS agents' stories

U.S. Appeals Court Judge Otto Kerner, testifying in his own defense in his race track stock bribery-conspiracy trial, sharply contradicted the stories of two Internal Revenue Service agents who testified against him.

Three major conflicts emerged between the testimony of the former Illinois governor and the agents about a meeting in July, 1970, in which the agents questioned Kerner about his 1966 through 1968 income tax returns.

Kerner also told a federal court jury that he saw "no impropriety" and "no conflict of interest" in the governor holding stock in companies regulated by the state.

"There are no prohibitions on the governor," he said. "Absolutely none. There is no impropriety about it at all."

"IN MY OPINION there is no conflict of interest. But in the view of the prosecution takes of it, a man would have to be penniless and have absolutely no interest in anything."

Kerner was on the witness stand for the second day defending himself against charges of conspiracy, bribery, mail fraud, income tax evasion and perjury.

He and his long-time friend, former state Revenue Director Theodore J. Isaacs, are accused of buying racetrack stock in a bribery deal from racing heiress Marjorie L. Everett and doing favors for her racing empire in return.

They made a profit of more than $300,000 on stock deals while Kerner was governor and before President Lyndon B. Johnson appointed Kerner to the 7th U.S. Court of Appeals.

IRS AGENTS Oliver P. Stufflebeam and Robert Campbell testified previously that Kerner several times denied in the 1970 interview that the "Chicago Co." listed on his tax returns was actually Chicago Harness Racing Inc. They said he told them it was a Chicago financial firm.

Kerner insisted he was much less definite. "I said I can't recall," he testified. "I said I think it might be a financial company. I said I would check my records."

The agents had testified that Kerner told them the only racetrack stock listed on his tax return was under the names "C.T. Co." and "Balmoral."

"I didn't make that statement," Kerner testified.

KERNER ALSO contradicted the agents' testimony that they had asked him if "Chicago Co." was Chicago Harness Racing Inc. and that he had replied "No."

"The name of CHR was never mentioned to me in that interview," he said. "If it had been, I'm sure my memory would have been refreshed and they (the government) wouldn't have a perjury count."

The ex-governor glared at the agents, seated at the prosecution table as he spoke, and he said they were wrong when they testified they both took notes at the interview but later destroyed them.

"No note was taken by them," he said. "Not one, I assure you . . . If they had been taking notes, I would have taken notes, too."

KERNER'S TESTIMONY was interrupted earlier Friday so that defense attorneys could put Mrs. Everett, the government's first witness against him, on the stand so that NAACP Director Ray Wilkins could testify as a character witness for him.

Mrs. Everett, under questioning by chief defense attorney Paul Connolly, contradicted testimony of former Illinois Racing Board Chairman William S. Miller. Miller has testified he offered racing stock to Kerner in 1962 on Mrs. Everett's behalf.

Mrs. Everett denied she was worried — as Miller had testified — about her reputation, and that the stock was offered to Kerner to insure his good will in the assignment of racing dates.

"Did you express concern and apprehension to Miller about bad publicity surrounding these problems?" Connolly asked.

"No, sir," she replied. She said she offered the stock to the governor because Miller advised her to.

Wilkins testified he worked with Kerner on the 1967 "Kerner Commission" report on deteriorating race relations in the United States.

"Governor Kerner acted at all times with integrity and he was faithful to the tasks to which he was called," the black leader said.

Liquor ordinance amendment could close strip club

A controversial amendment to the Lake County liquor ordinance, which could result in the closing of the Cheetah II nude dancing club in Half Day, will be introduced Tuesday before the 25-member board of commissioners.

The amendment, if approved by at least 13 board members, could have an effect on the topless-bottomless shows that draw several hundred persons a night from throughout Northwest suburbs. A second nude show, at Mr. Morris in Round Lake, would also be affected.

Drafted to resemble the December, 1972, Supreme Court ruling, the amendment would make it illegal to serve liquor in establishments that have nude dancing, live sex shows or screens films depicting sexual acts.

But the owner of the Cheetah vows that all those customers who steadfastly wait in line each night to see the show will not be disappointed. The show will go on as before, said Mark DeFoor, who added he will appeal the amendment if it is passed.

THE RESOLUTION is very explicit as to what is illegal, said Julius Abler, administrative assistant to Lake County State's Atty. Jack Hoogasian.

The resolution documents the several sex acts prohibited from being shown anywhere alcoholic beverages are sold, according to Abler, including the display of various parts of the body and the interaction between two or more people.

"The amendment only applies to places which serve alcoholic beverages," said Abler. "If they sell ice cream sodas (or coffee or tea) that doesn't come under the ordinance. If they don't comply their liquor license can be revoked. There was no doubt in my mind the amendment will be passed."

There is disagreement between Abler, who said the amendment would hold up under any appeals "(Who do you think is going to prevail?)" he said referring to the Supreme Court's judgement in the matter, and DeFoor, who said he'll win any battles in court.

"HOW IN THE name of God can they say it is illegal to have nude dancing if you serve liquor but legal to have nude dancing if you serve soda pop?" DeFoor said.

"We could keep going (and be prosperous) if they took away our license but we don't want to. We may be forced to put G-strings on our girls until we come up with something. We'll try to get a restraining order to determine its legality. We'll go on like nothing ever happened."

DeFoor said the original Cheetah club he and a partner started a few years ago in Kenosha, Wis., once continued in operation for two years while appealing a local ruling. He added the same thing might happen in Half Day if a legal battle ensued from the proposed amendment.

State may shore up Weller Creek

Weller Creek's crumbling banks in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect may receive another $50,000 reinforcement from the Illinois Division of Waterways this year.

State officials have included the proposed appropriation in the Illinois budget that the General Assembly must act on by June 30.

The total proposed outlay is one-third of the amount necessary to prevent washing away of backyards along the creek.

"We took a severe budget cut. There's a whole lot more that we won't be able to do," said John Guillou, chief waterways division engineer.

Gov. Daniel Walker reviewed the division's budget last week and let stand the $50,000 project, which was trimmed from $150,000 by the state's budget bureau.

The proposed work — which will include pipe installation to drain water runoff and lining of creek banks to prevent wearing away — is planned from the Washington Street bridge in Des Plaines to Williams Street in Mount Prospect.

Assuming legislative passage, the bill could be signed by Walker in August, Guillou said. Next step would be project bidding. "We'll definitely try to get some, maybe all, of the work done this year. The sodding may be delayed until next year."

SOME OF THE creek work will repair August and September 1972 flood damage, he said.

Last year, the state spent $90,212 to repair banks between Prospect Road and Williams Street. "We didn't have the contract finished when the storms hit us," Guillou said.

Controversy over Weller Creek dates to 1963 when Gov. Samuel Shapiro released $900,000 of $2 million planned for flood control. In 1969, the legislature voted $225,000 to complete the creek improvement program.

Widening and dredging of the creek — designed to prevent flooding of homes along Cumberland Parkway in Des Plaines — created a new problem — bank erosion. By 1972, residents estimated that four feet of their backyards had washed into the creek.

Last year, Des Plaines "couldn't wait" for the state to solve the problem, according to Mayor Herbert Behrel. The city placed broken concrete along bank sections to prevent the wearing away.

Another project pushed by Behrel, replacement of the Orchard Lane bridge by the state, was dropped from the waterways division proposed budget.

Four arrested, $50,000 'pot' seized at school

A two-month investigation of drugs at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village ended Friday night with the arrest of four persons and the confiscation of 100 pounds of marijuana with a street value of more than $50,000.

"We theorize that we have now cut off the major supply of marijuana to the Elk Grove Village area," police Lt. Ray Marinac said of the arrests.

Arrested at the Hyatt House Motel in Lincolnwood were Chuck Carroll, 19, of 1301 Cumberland Circle East, Elk Grove Village; Paul Maheris, 22, of 501 Briarwood Ln., Elk Grove Village; Todd Raemisch, 22, of Madison, Wis.; and Tom Paepaka, 22, of Barrington, Wis.

The four were arrested after agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an area-wide law enforcement agency, and Elk Grove Village Detective Richard Rusch arranged and witnessed the sale of the marijuana for $15,000. Both the money and the marijuana were confiscated in the arrest.

Carroll was charged with delivery of marijuana, Maheris with delivery of marijuana and resisting arrest. Paepaka was charged with conspiracy to deliver and sell marijuana. Raemisch was charged with delivery of marijuana and aggravated assault. Raemisch allegedly was carrying a loaded .22-caliber automatic pistol at the time of the arrest.

THE CONFISCATION of marijuana Friday was one of the biggest caches in which Elk Grove Village police have been involved in recovering.

Bond for Carroll and Raemisch was set at $4,000. Bond for Paepaka and Maheris was set at $2,500. All four were released on bond. Their court date was set for Feb. 27 in Skokie.

In another apparently unrelated incident, Elk Grove Village police arrested two men Friday night for possession of marijuana.

The two, Kenneth Eckel Jr., 28, of 4325 N. Richmond Ave., Chicago, and Sten Fischel, 21, of 422 W. Lake St., Addison, were arrested in the parking lot of Jake's Pizza, 66 E. Devon, when they offered an undercover policeman a marijuana cigarette. Both were charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

Grocery store robbed of $100 by young thief

A youthful robber escaped with $100 from a Des Plaines grocery store late Thursday after threatening a store clerk with a butcher knife.

Ann Bauman, clerk at the 7-Eleven store, 275 Thacker St., was at the rear of the store when the bandit walked in waved the knife and forced her to open two cash register drawers, police said.

The robber, described as between 18 and 20, about five feet four inches tall, and wearing a green Army jacket, fled south on Warrington Road.

A bag carried by the bandit, apparently to put the money in, was left on the store's counter, police said.

A youth fitting the description of the one who held up the store was later reported seen walking along Mount Prospect Road Illinois tollway police said they also saw a youth fitting the description in a phone booth near the Des Plaines tollway oasis.

Police believe the holdup is related to a similar robbery at another Des Plaines 7-Eleven store Feb. 1.

active duty, Miller says. Soldiers must work as a unit and don't relate to each other as individuals. When they get back, says Miller, it's like a foreign climate. Veterans must learn how to talk to people, how to behave socially.

"The first impulse is to drink. That's what I did," says Miller, who had saved up $2,000 by the time he was discharged in October. Now, he says, "there's nothing to show for it."

Before entering the service, Miller attended the University of Maryland. He didn't like school, didn't care about getting a degree and wasn't concerned about getting a degree and did poorly. "I could have withdrawn from school when I got bad grades but I just let them flunk me," says Miller, who was drafted.

HE SERVED IN Army intelligence, where, Miller says, he "had it soft." Despite weekly visits to his father, Miller found the war "unreal," something from "Alice in Wonderland."

"I used to sit on my father's balcony in Saigon with a martini, watching B-52s bomb a village a few miles away," he recalls.

Miller says he would never re-enlist but adds that many veterans find themselves forced to sign up again because they are unable to cope with civilian life. Lack of jobs for veterans, a critical problem in recent years, forced some men back into the service. That is easing.

According to Vern Rogers, spokesman for the Veteran's Administration, the crisis in jobs for returning servicemen of one or two years ago "isn't there any more." Reductions in the size of the armed forces, plus increased GI bill benefits, have reduced the number of jobseekers.

Figures from the U.S. Department of Labor statistics show that about 44 per cent of the discharged servicemen find jobs in less than five weeks, with another 30 per cent gaining employment within 14 weeks.

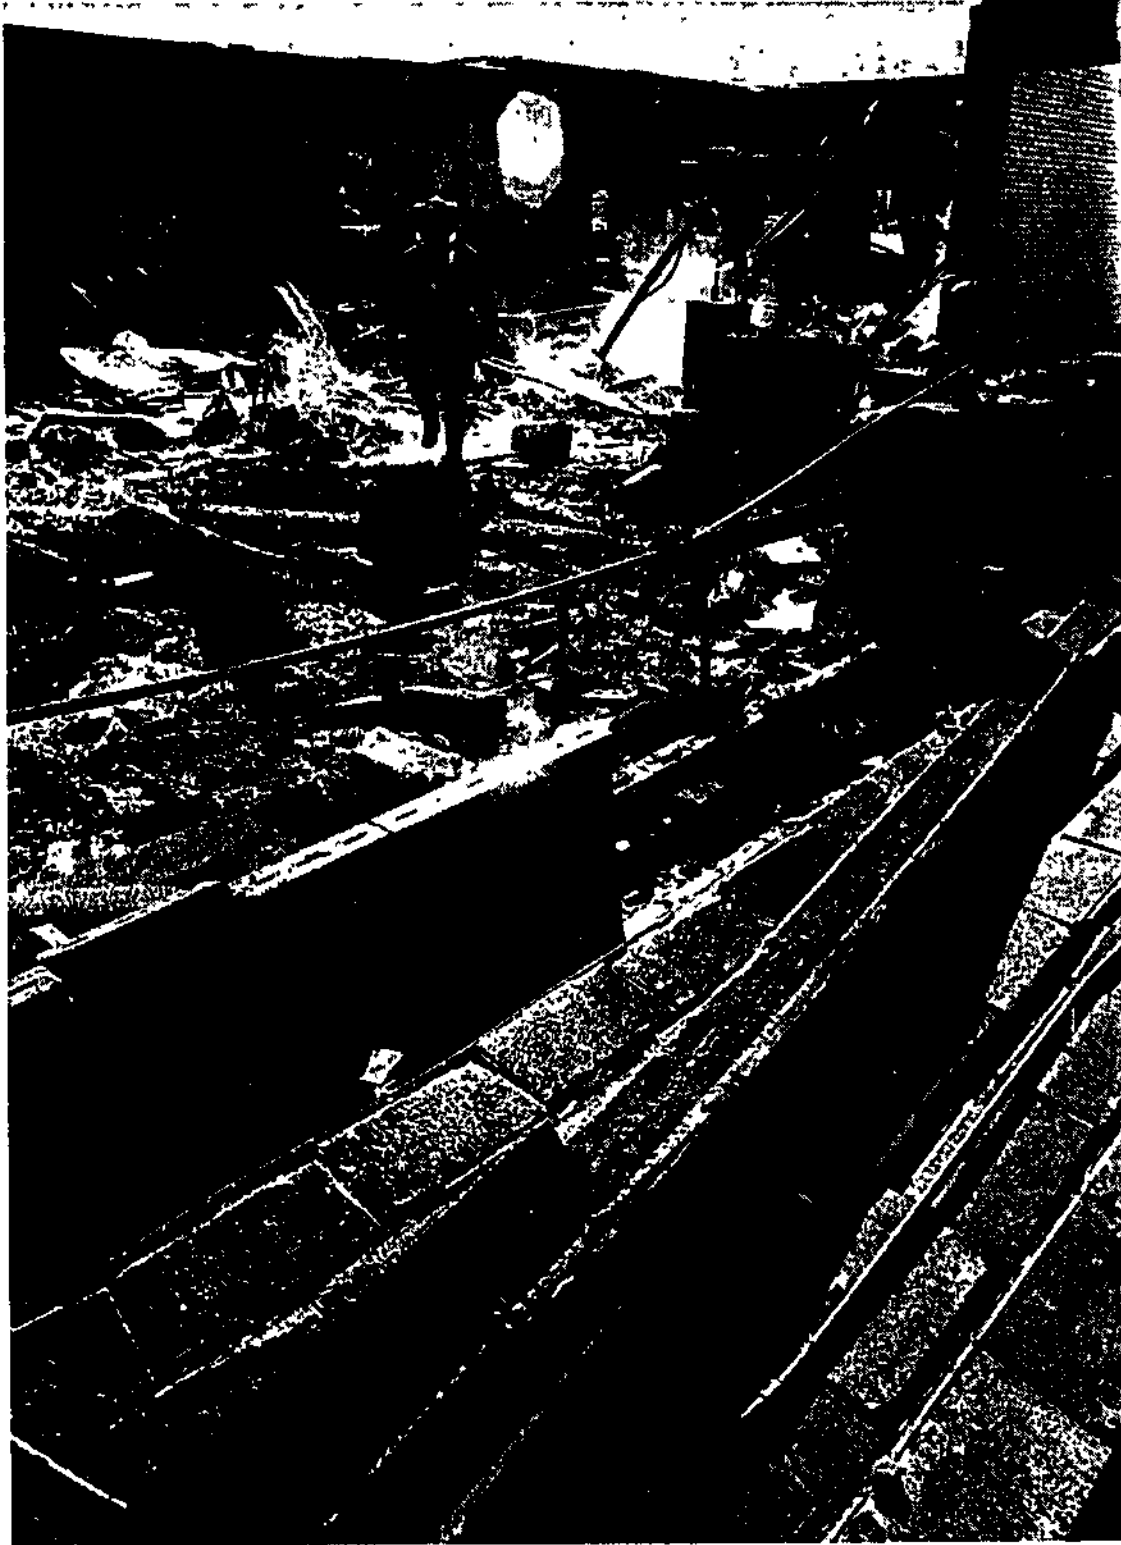

Although 5.1 per cent of the nation's work force is unemployed, only 4.9 per cent of the veterans in the job market cannot find work.

AND A TOTAL of 213,000 veterans are attending school, which represents 64.2 per cent of the ex-servicemen not in the labor force, a higher percentage than after either World War II or the Korean War.

Five years ago, the returning veteran joined the labor force when he was discharged but today he goes to school, according to John Cosco of the Illinois State Employment Service in Des Plaines.

The greatest number of job openings are in skilled trades such as machinists, tool and die makers, lathe and boring mill operators, Cosco says. Also needed, he says, are welders, engineers, automotive mechanics, auto body repairmen and medical technicians.

$100,000 plant fire being probed

Officials from the Elk Grove Village Fire Department and the state fire marshal's office are investigating the cause of a fire that broke out Friday at International Fiber Glass Inc., 340 Bennett. The fire gutted the building and caused an estimated $100,000 damage.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said there is some indication the fire may have started in the loading dock area of the building.

Every truck and engine from the village fire department was called to the scene to fight the blaze. Hulett said the first fire call was received at 5:16 a.m. Friday. By the time the first fire engine arrived, the entire building was engulfed in flames and part of the roof had collapsed.

During the fire, an engine from the Schaumburg Fire Department served as a backup unit at the Elk Grove Village fire station. Schaumburg Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen accompanied the engine.

A backup ambulance from the Hoffman Estates Fire Department also was called in.

Two Des Plaines residents — City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach and Ernest Schmidt — filed candidacy petitions Friday.

Filing deadline is 5 p.m. Tuesday for the city's April 17 election. City hall is closed today.

Mrs. Rohrbach, a two-term city clerk here, filed 452 petition signatures. She probably will run unopposed for a third term because no resident has announced opposition.

She was elected part-time clerk in 1965. The job became full-time at $10,500 a year in 1969. The city council recently approved a salary hike to $15,000 a year.

MRS. ROHRBACH, of 210 Wisconsin Dr. is a former officer of the Municipal Clerks of Illinois, past president of the North and Northwest Clerks Organization and is a member of the Des Plaines Community Chest Board of Directors, the Soroptimist Club and the League of

Let the home buyer beware: Part 1

Homeowners learn hard way; find they have little recourse

by MARILYN HEISER
First in a Series

A typical homeowner, faced with typical problems of flooding, inadequate insulation, and unfulfilled builder's promises, complains. But the lawmakers have not heard him.

Despite the number of unsatisfied homeowners, there is little protection offered the potential buyer or redress for the owner through legislation or governmental agencies.

Consider an average guy on the block. He says his backyard resembles a swimming pool and that his children cannot sleep in their bedrooms during the winter because ice forms on the interior walls.

The sewer backs up continually, flooding his home with raw sewage. He worries because the driveway is breaking up. He fears a crack in the foundation is widening.

AND HE COMPLAINS because the promised park across the street never materialized. Recently, he discovered he president of Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc., pleaded guilty in December 1972 to charges of bribing an FHA inspector in the summer of 1971. He received a sentence of one year's probation.

Whom did it hurt if Faubion, as charged, gave the official $800, three cases of liquor, and a money clip? Maybe a man who shelled out thousands of dollars for a house that was poorly built, never inspected, and which may require financially draining repairs.

Another incident of governmental laxity involved a Schaumburg subdivision. Recently these homeowners claimed their $30,000 homes were poorly built. Not only were some of these homes FHA-financed, but the village could never find records showing that it had inspected the houses.

The builder in this case, Kaufman and Broad, has made good on some of the faults which ranged from buckling floors to cracked cement, after much adverse publicity.

COMMUNITIES, AS well as individuals, are damaged by such events. A poorly-built home may be abandoned by the owners, and they may default on their federally insured mortgage. If this happens, the government (read taxpayers) assumes ownership of the house.

In Detroit, according to Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., speaking at a December meeting in Chicago with homeowner associations, the government owns eight per cent of the homes. Many are worthless and abandoned, he said, and will have to be torn down.

This is not just an inner city problem, but one, according to the suburban homeowner associations at the meeting, that is happening in Chicago suburbs.

Shoddy construction and lack of inspections are just part of the problem.

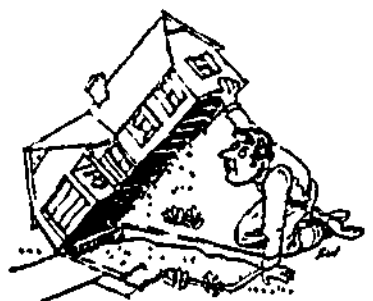

The suburbs are peppered with subdivisions. To sell homes in these subdivisions, builders or their salesmen promise recreational facilities, a park across the street, a school down the block.

Homeowners in a Campanelli Bros. subdivision in Schaumburg discovered to their chagrin that the park across the street was being torn up for quadrooms. The salesman had promised differently.

RESIDENTS IN north Arlington Heights bought homes in some areas with the understanding their children would attend Arlington Heights School Dist. 25. In fact, their children are attending Wheeling Dist. 21.

A Hanover Park group of residents filed a $11.7 million suit against Larwin of Illinois, a building firm and subsidiary of CNA Financial Corp., charging fraud and poor workmanship.

Last week, in an out-of-court settlement, the builder agreed to buy back more than 60 homes, including in the agreement that the residents not comment on the terms of the settlement. However, the homes will be purchased at has been paying taxes toward a park district bearing the neighboring village's name. His kids would never even use the district's facilities because they are located too far away.

This homeowner is fictitious, but the problems afflicting him are real. Surprisingly enough, the largest purchase most people make, one at the heart of the American dream, has escaped the scrutiny of consumer activists.

A man saves and mortgages his future to buy a house, most likely the most expensive purchase he'll ever make. But the number of unresolved complaints against builders and developers leads one to believe homes are disposable, three-for-a-dollar affairs.

Beyond the complaints of shoddy construction, homebuyers today face other difficulties. The buyer must beware, a building official said recently.

AND APPARENTLY the buyer can not always trust the government and some of the largest homebuilders in the country. The recent convictions of housing and Federal Housing Administration officials have been shocking indications of the holes in our housing laws.

Studded tires improve car's traction

Studded tires are safer than regular snow tires because they provide improved traction and reduced stopping distances on icy roads, according to a report by the Tire Industry Safety Council.

The report, in the form of a pamphlet entitled, "A report on Studded Tires," details the importance of the use of studded tires and the results drivers can gain from installing them during hazardous winter driving conditions.

The 12-page pamphlet is a compilation of the latest reports made by independent testing firms, marketing organizations and state highway departments.

The booklet cites a study that found that under icy conditions cars equipped with studded tires only on the rear wheels improved stopping distance from 19 to 30 per cent when traveling at 30 mph.

Cars equipped with studded tires on all four wheels, the report stated, found stopping distances improved up to 50 per cent.

Other studies highlighted in the pamphlet show the increased maneuverability of cars equipped with studded tires on all four wheels.

Cornering, safely taking highway turns and avoiding obstacles suddenly appearing in a car's path were all remarkably improved when a car had studded tires, the report said.

A survey, cited by the report and conducted by the Ontario, Canada Department of Highways, showed that of 2,790 vehicles involved in winter accidents icy conditions prevailed in 832 cases.

The survey estimated that 21 per cent, or 196 vehicles, could have avoided the accident entirely, or had its severity decreased if they had been equipped with safety studded snow tires. The survey was made in February, 1970.

The pamphlet points out that the new tire stud is the only new automotive safety device voluntarily adopted by the motoring public in recent years.

Scholarships offered in Kulicke's memory

Fifteen scholarships to the Indiana Institute of Technology, Angola, Ind. will be available to graduates of High School Dist. 214 this year in memory of the late Prospect High School Principal Alvin Kulicke.

The memorial scholarships to the school have been arranged by a minister friend of Mr. Kulicke's from Indiana, according to Dist. 214 officials. They will provide $500 a year for two years to students selected by the district.

Five of the scholarships will be available in engineering, two in recreational management, two in sociology, two in psychology, two in computer science and two in chemistry or physics.

HIGH RISES going up next to single-family homes is a common situation. Homeowners often choose houses next to a vacant lot with the understanding the empty land will be a park or used for single-family homes. To their chagrin, as they watch the steel supports rise, they learn the land has always been zoned for high-density living. Written statements in the contract of facts such as adjacent zoning, taxing districts, and school boundaries would prevent similar problems.

The residents had complained they were not allowed to see their homes until after the deal was closed. Salesman had also told them their homes would be next to a forest preserve which ended up being a garbage dump and sewage plant.

The Hanover Park group followed the course of action usually advised a resident with housing woes. An unhappy homeowner is told by various governmental agencies to hire a private lawyer and sue for fraud or breach of contract. But high legal fees make this a prohibitively costly route, one not everyone is willing to undertake.

An owner in a Schaumburg subdivision said, "How can I fight a huge builder?"

WARRANTIES are another aspect of misrepresentation, particularly if the salesman glosses over the details. The five-year guarantee, standard with many homes, sounds comprehensive enough. If anything major goes wrong, the builder pledges to fix it. And he will. If he agrees with the homeowner that his problem is "major."

The builder may think the problem is just a question of maintenance. Cement driveways have cracked since the Apian Way, one recently said. Hairline cracks, settling ceilings and the like are to be expected, he added. In other words, it will cost money each year of living in a house.

All of these problems would have been avoided if the buyer were informed of the relevant facts before he signed the contract. Provided with the correct information in writing he could make a more rational purchase.

A recent Herald study into remedies for homeowner complaints came up with a lot of possibilities, ranging from new legislation to stricter enforcement of existing laws.

As consumers, homeowners may find some of them appealing enough to begin lobbying for their own cause.

Just Politics... by Bob Lahey

Crane gives newsmen boost

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, lunch with newsmen from throughout his new district Friday and took the occasion to announce his sponsorship of legislation to protect confidentiality of news sources, and a bipartisan congressional effort to reassert the power of Congress.

Rep. Philip Crane

Crane told a dozen newspaper and broadcast media representatives at the Mount Prospect luncheon that he will introduce legislation giving newsmen the right to protect their sources "in all but a few selected cases."

Crane's proposal would protect newsmen from being required to disclose confidential information to "any court, grand jury, agency, department or commission of the United States, or by either house of Congress," with some exceptions, according to Crane.

AMONG THE exceptions that would limit the privilege of confidentiality would be cases in which a newsmen is sued for defamation and invokes confidentiality of the source as a defense, and when details of grand jury or other proceedings required to be kept secret have been disclosed.

The Crane proposal also includes procedures for divesting newsmen of the privilege of confidentiality after a court hearing has established that information held by the newsmen may have substantial bearing on a threat to human life, espionage or foreign aggression.

Crane emphasized to his luncheon guests that if the choice were between definite government regulation of the news media or completely unrestricted press freedom, he would choose the latter. His bill, identical to one presented in the last Congress by Sen. James Pearson of Kansas, represents a reasonable compromise between those extremes, he said.

CRANE ALSO predicted a resurgence of independence by the Congress in the face of growing concern over expanding power of the executive branch of the federal government.

He announced a bipartisan conference scheduled by members of the House and the Senate in Washington March 7 and 8, which will consider "The Constitutional Question — the Congress and the Executive."

Among the sponsors of the conference are Crane, widely considered one of the most conservative of Republican congressmen, and liberal Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III.

Crane said there is a growing awareness in Washington that the expanding powers of the White House are greatly the result of "abduction of its authority" by the Congress.

He cited the Gulf of Tonkin resolution as an abandonment to the President of congressional authority to wage war, and the authorization for the President to impose wage and price controls as a similar abandonment of authority on the domestic front.

As a result of the exercise of presidential power under the Gulf of Tonkin resolution, said Crane, "One of the salutary effects of the Vietnam war has been the triggering of a bipartisan awareness of the erosion of congressional power."

THE 12TH DISTRICT congressman said that a large majority of new members of Congress — those first elected in November — are conservatives "who share traditional opposition to usurping of legislative power by the White House." But, he said, among the new members, both liberals and conservatives share concern over the diminishing role of the Congress.

Because of its own laxity, said Crane, the Congress has placed itself in a position in which the President no longer seeks its advice.

"Executive officers, such as prominent advisers to the President, need not submit to congressional approval and may refuse to answer congressional questions," he declared. "Non-elected bureaucrats, such as those at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, may impose rules and regulations which Congress has never approved and which the President himself says he is against."

Among those who will participate in the March conference are former Sec. of State Dean Rusk, Ambassador Charles Vost, former Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, former Senators William Spong and Gordon Allott, and former White House adviser Arthur Schlesinger Jr.

Religion Today

by Key Lester Kinsolving

"I chickened out," confessed the recently resigned spiritual leader of the nation's 3 million Episcopalians.

"I was hopeful it would go away," added Presiding Bishop John E. Hines, to the denomination's executive council.

Bishop Hines, (whose resignation last October does not take effect until May of 1974) was lamenting what his fellow prelate, West Virginia's Bishop Wilburn Campbell, had exposed as a new welter of scandal in the denomination's $4 million "minority empowerment" program, called the General Convention Special Program (GCSP).

This Episcopal war on poverty program has been administered by Brooklyn black militant Leon Modeste, who has approved funding of organizations which are racially segregated, with leaders who either advocated armed violence or practiced it.

The $23,500-a-year Modeste has angrily and publicly criticized Bishop Hines for having admitted that there is anything wrong with GCSP — which Modeste (modestly) claimed "is doing a tremendous job." "I am trying to re-educate the white race!"

AS FOR THE West Virginia Bishop's charges, Modeste loftily dismissed them as "wrong" and "vague."

But Bishop Campbell appeared notably specific, in charging that Modeste's GCSP has:

1) been guilty of discrimination against poor whites in Appalachia, whose application for financial help has been kept at "the bottom of the pile."

2) failed to require proper accounting for funds contributed to several organizations (When he inquired about the assets of one of these Episcopal fund recipients, Bishop Campbell recalled that he was told, "That's none of your business!")

3) attempted to "end run" the vetoes of local bishops — by funding of a regional coalition headquarters (in the diocese of so strongly liberal a bishop as Cleveland's John Burt) which passes funds into other dioceses without the local bishop's consent,

4) been guilty of appraising applications for financial aid which were written by their own staff — and falsely claiming that some appropriations were emergency grants, and

5) holding meetings of the GCSP

Screening and Review Committee for which improper minutes were kept; which meetings did not start on time; were "generally disorganized"; were rescheduled on short notice; and "resembled a meeting of Black Muslims" rather than Christians.

Such charges are all the more serious, because the chairman of this screening committee is Bishop Hines himself.

After Bishop Campbell lifted this lid on GCSP, another member of the Screening Committee, Houston attorney Philip Masquellette, a close friend of Bishop Hines, filed 18 expressions of similar concern. And Los Angeles' famed jurist, Judge Herbert V. Walker, asked for a "full investigation."

But somehow, in perhaps the pinnacle of his oratorical charm, Bishop Hines persuaded (or rather informed) the Council that he would do the investigation — of the very same committee of which he is chairman.

FEW OF THE nation's generally intelligent and civic-minded Episcopalians would stomach the idea of Watergate (a less expensive scandal) being investigated by Richard Nixon. But the awe of a Presiding Bishop (even a lame duck) is such that Bishop Hines has not even designed to inform the Council as to when he will complete his fox-in-the-house-holy-hawkshaw investigation.

But on Feb. 20, when the Council meets again in the Episcopal Center in Greenwich, Conn., Bishop Campbell has promised to hold a press conference — with or without the presence of Bishop Hines and his assistant Modeste.

This could well uncover further scandal, such as reported details of precisely what one of Modeste's militants told the staff of the denomination's headquarters — concerning "black liberation" as the church's only priority, with all whites on the staff told that their jobs and salaries were needed by blacks.

This performance, according to an eye witness interviewed by this column, took place in December of 1970 — just days before more than 100 whites (and almost no blacks) were terminated by Hines's assistant, Bishop Roger Blanchard.

The whole mess started in the Garden of Eden...

by LOUIS CASSELS

It started in the Garden of Eden.

When the Lord asked Adam why he ate the forbidden fruit, Adam replied: "It was the woman you gave me for a companion. She gave me the fruit and I ate it."

Eve was equally quick to shift the blame. "The serpent tricked me," she said.

Refusing to admit responsibility for misdeeds, trying to pass the buck to someone else, have been conspicuous features of human character through all

When Moses came down from Mount Sinai and found his brother Aaron had yielded to popular clamor and provided the Israelites with a golden calf to worship as an idol, Aaron had a glib explanation for his apostasy:

"DO NOT BE angry, sir," he told Moses. "The people were deeply troubled... and they said to me, 'Make us gods.' So they gave me their gold. I threw it in the fire, and out came this calf."

Pontius Pilate couldn't find a legitimate reason to sentence Jesus to death. But the mob was shouting for an execution. So Pilate, weakly assenting to the demand, "took water and washed his hands in full view of the people, saying 'My hands are clean of this man's blood.'"

It still goes on, in our own time.

At the My Lai trials, each defendant has stoutly insisted it wasn't his idea to murder unarmed women and children: he was just obeying orders from somebody else.

In recent years, the ancient human tendency to shift the blame to someone else has undergone a significant refinement. Now we are reluctant to hold any individual personally responsible for crimes such as murder, rape and drug-pushing. Morally, we say, the guilt really lies with society as a whole. We are collectively to blame for allowing the existence of racism or poverty or other social conditions which breed criminal conduct.

THERE IS SOME truth in this. We should never forget in our horrified reaction to any crime that something we, the people, helped to do, or left undone, may have been a factor in creating the rage, frustration or despair which issued in violence.

But it is dangerously easy to go too far in this direction, so we wind up making collective guilt a scapegoat for personal guilt.

Many people suffer the indignity and injustice of racial discrimination. Only a few become murderers and muggers because of it. Many young men have been sent to Vietnam to fight a war they found futile. Only a few worked off their frustration by gunning down helpless women and children.

Sure, the serpent tempted Eve. But it was Eve herself who let curiosity take precedence over obeying the Lord. And nobody twisted Adam's arm. He just let a woman talk him into doing a foolish thing — as men have been doing ever since.

No matter what the extenuating circumstances may be, each of us is morally responsible for his own conduct. To deny that, or even to fuzz it over with glib generalities about parental influence or social environment, is to make ourselves less than human.

Rev. Brendt to teach basic guitar course

The Rev. James Brendt of Hoffman Estates will be teaching a basic guitar course at the Elgin Community College this semester.

Brendt, who each year offers a series of outdoor religious services in South Dakota each summer for travelers, has taught guitar program for a number of years.

He will also be teaching an adult education guitar program at Niles West High School this year.

Rev. Brendt said he plans to use the latest teaching methods including an electronic guitar lab and audio and visual aids.

3 Boy Scout troops chosen for annual Scout-O-Rama

Two Palatine Boy Scout troops were chosen to represent the Signal Hill District of the Northwest Suburban Council of Boy Scouts of America at this year's Scout-O-Rama at Arlington Park.

Members of Warriors Patrol, Troop 91, sponsored by St. Theresa Church; and Alleycats Patrol, sponsored by Christ Lutheran Church, along with W. C. Fields Patrol, Troop 10 in Barrington were chosen last month to participate in Scout-O-Rama.

Those included in the two Palatine troops are Andrew Bullen, Chuck Butler, Mike Hohendorf and Charles Kearns, all of Troop 91, and Steve Madigan, Scott Humphrey, Bob McPham, Kurt Hamlin, J. D. See and Mark Griffin, all from Troop 10.

The troop members were singled out for their showing in competition at the annual winter Klondike outing, called "Frigid Frolics," which was held at Camp Ob-Da-Kota near Burlington, Wis.

Jim Baumgardner and Jeff Marquardt of Troop 48, sponsored by Immanuel Lutheran Church in Palatine, were commended for their actions during that weekend when they rushed to the aid of a fellow scout who had burned himself with scalding water.

According to scouting officials, their alertness and ability prevented the burns from becoming worse.

Among "Frolics" activities were ice skating and fishing. Since it was held Jan. 19-21, snow-related activities were not held because of the lack of precipitation.

Each of the 444 scouts who attended the outing received badges in recognition of their participation.

The hotel of the future...

Tom Crossey worked as a bellman for two decades at the Sherman House in Chicago and watched the aging hotel's glitter fade like contrails in the sky.

And when the place closed last month, Crossey knew exactly where he was headed. "Times change, you know," he said. "This is the future... a whole new ball game."

He's again with the action, now at the O'Hare International Tower hotel, which is likely to be the most lucrative establishment of its kind anywhere.

"I've seen a lot of places and this is the nicest," he added while standing under the towering palm trees in the hotel's lobby. He was dressed in a plum and silver uniform, the color of all else in the foyer.

THE NEW 10-story hotel, located adjacent to the airport's terminal areas, promises to be a businessman's paradise. There's everything from remote-control movies to people movers — escalators — that transport persons directly from the terminal to the hotel lobby.

Hotel officials indicate it's not necessarily the tourist they're after, but the businessman who flies into Chicago for a day or two and is gone. Already business is good even with the restaurants, arcade and pubs not yet open.

The black, half-moon-shaped hotel won't be entirely completed until this spring, but some 100 persons stayed there during a single night last week.

Large firms have made plans for conventions at O'Hare International, which claims persons will never have to leave the premises for anything.

WHEN COMPLETED, the facility will have 979 guest rooms, seven restaurants, a nightclub, six pubs, 63 conference rooms, and an arcade of specialty shops with everything from art galleries to barber shops.

Like the rest of this self-contained airport resort, the guest rooms are equipped with the latest. The average room is 15 by 18 feet and costs $26 a night for single occupancy. Tables and chairs are chrome and plastic and abstract paintings hang on the walls.

Each room is equipped with a television set that can be transformed into a closed circuit theater for $3. Guests will see movies like the Academy award-winning "French Connection." There eventually will be four movies from which to choose.

"Everything will be here for the top businessman going through a fast seminar," said Gilbert Rosenbrier, executive vice president of Madison Square Garden Hotels Inc., the firm that also owns Arlington Park Towers and the Acapulco Towers in Mexico. "We'll have the latest in equipment and facilities... it'll be first class."

CARPENTERS still are working indoors and there seems to be a long way to go before the facility is ready. But Rosenbrier says work is on schedule and most of the interior should be finished as early as March.

The sooner the better, as far as he's concerned, because the market is there, ready and waiting. This is the busiest airport in the world, where 34 million persons touch down every year.

And located only a moving sidewalk away, the O'Hare International Towers is destined to become the busiest hotel in the world.

The half-moon-shaped hotel wraps around O'Hare's control tower.

Work continues on the people mover, an escalator that will transport persons directly from the terminal to the hotel.

Let's define colleges' role

Illinois junior college officials are sounding almost paranoid these days as a result of the Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission report.

The report, issued last month by the legislative commission, lambasted junior colleges on a number of counts, charging that students being admitted to college transfer programs were less qualified than those attending four-year colleges, that junior college operating costs are too high and that vocational programs are ineffective.

Junior college officials fear that the report may be used by the legislature and by the Illinois Board of Higher Education to justify cutbacks in funds for their rapidly growing schools.

After studying the report we can see justification for the fears. Even though the report raises some serious issues about junior college operations, it also seems to be based on some misunderstandings of the junior college's role in higher education.

Of most concern is the charge that junior colleges are admitting students to transfer programs with lower grades and college entrance scores than are required by four-year colleges.

The charge is undoubtedly true; we question whether it reflects a weakness or a strength of junior college programs.

Some junior college officials state emphatically that one role of a junior college is to provide higher education for students who are not served by four-year institutions. In fact, officials question whether a junior college's success should be measured by how many students eventually graduate from four-year schools.

Some of those same officials wonder aloud whether the state's four-year colleges, faced with declining enrollment, might not have a vested interest in getting students who might otherwise go to junior colleges because they receive funds based on how many students they have.

What is clearly needed is for state officials, including the board of higher education and Illinois Junior College board, to look at these questions and to define the roles of both the junior colleges and the four-year colleges in the state.

If, in fact, the Economic and Fiscal Commission is right and students who are admitted to transfer programs at junior college must meet the same requirements as those attending four-year colleges, why, in a period when four-year colleges have declining enrollment, is it necessary to offer junior college transfer programs at all? In that case financial aid can be increased and students can be sent directly to four year schools, leaving the junior colleges with vocational and community education programs.

We doubt, however, that a careful study would come to that kind of conclusion. Instead, state officials might do well to look at the California system of higher education where the roles of various kinds of schools are strictly defined.

In California, the university concentrates on the top students from high school graduating classes. The state colleges focus on a different kind of student and the junior colleges also have a defined group to aim to.

Students with low high school grades can start at a junior college, for example, and transfer later to a university. Schools are not penalized because they do not attract sheer numbers of students.

The system may not be something Illinois will want to copy directly, but state officials should at least consider it.

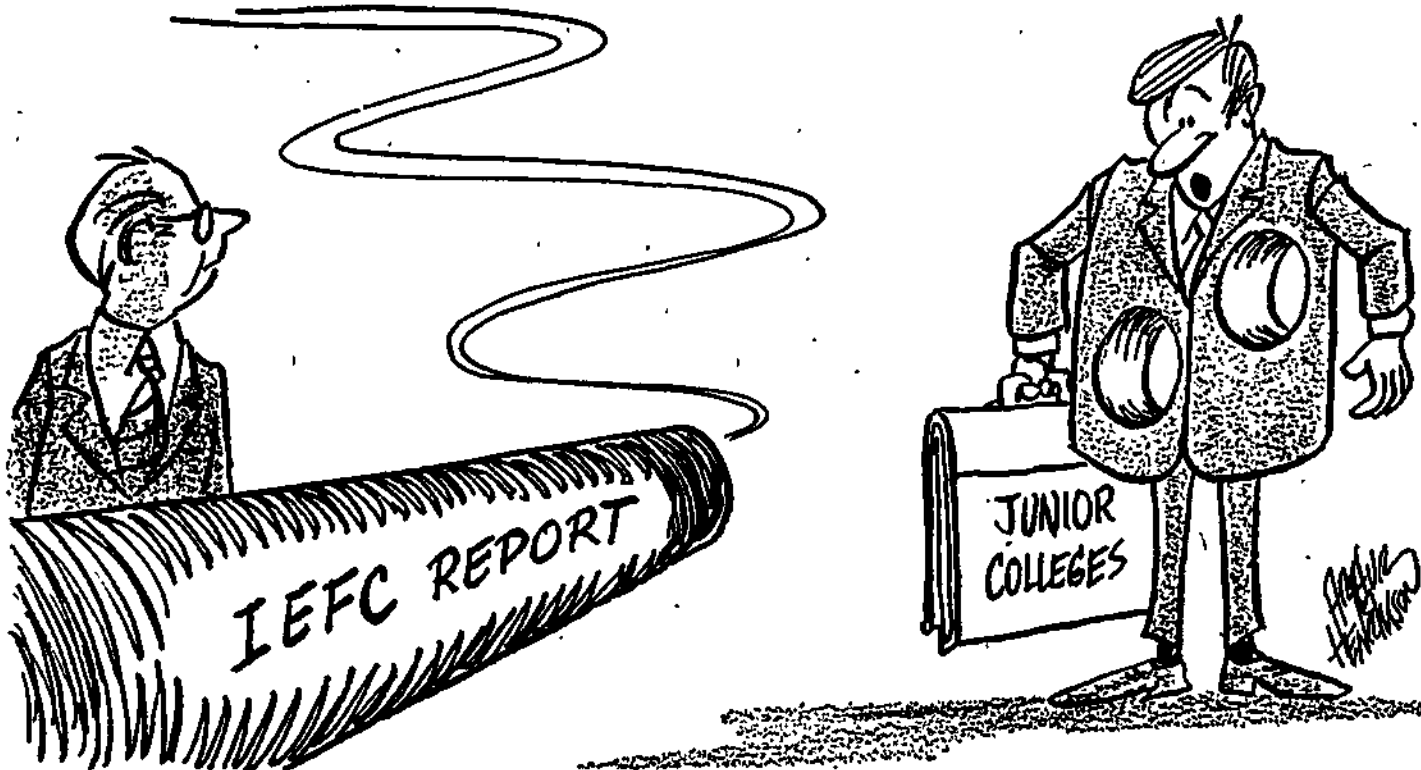

Otherwise, the state may face a fraternal war among the four-year and two-year colleges because neither is clear about its role.

When such a study is underway at the state level, we urge junior colleges to work on some of the other problems pointed out by the commission report.

Follow-up on students can be improved, costs can be more closely regulated and reporting systems can be made more easily understood.

That way, whatever role the state carves out for junior colleges, they will be better able to carry it out.

Just what did you mean by that?

Tom Wellman's column

She stands up in diabetes fight

by TOM WELLMAN
Chief Editorial Writer

We'll be hearing much, much more about the abortion issue during the coming weeks and months, whether we want to or not.

The deluge, of course, began with the U.S. Supreme Court's decision two weeks ago to allow abortions. Then there was the Chicago Civic Center rally a weekend ago, which drew 15,000 partisans opposed to that decision.

Then there was a Herald editorial recently on the topic, and then there are the letters we're receiving, and there are the angry phone calls threatening subscription cancellation, carrier boy recall, etc. etc. etc.

The issue would be tiresome if it were not so complex. It's an issue which rips down normal ideological boundaries and exposes liberals and conservatives alike to convulsions of conscience and conviction.

Political liberals — especially those that are young, hip, "with-it" — generally seem to argue that women have the right to control the destiny of their own bodies.

But some of those same liberals have been arguing for years against the just-concluded Vietnam War, on the grounds that killing is immoral. So some of them oppose the Supreme Court decision, and argue vehemently that the creation of a child is an act which must not be spoiled by man-made death.

Conservatives, too, can find themselves in a bind. Generally, they seem to argue against the Supreme Court's decision, on religious or moral grounds. But rejecting abortion takes a choice away from women, and conservatives, at least, argue philosophically that they like individual choices not made by government.

So liberals oppose abortion and conservatives approve, and the world keeps spinning, and the letters keep coming in, and the religious hatred surfaces (the Catholic Church has been the villain, according to at least one of our letter-writers).

Conclusions? Whatever you wish, and keep those cards and letters with your opinions coming in. This editorial page, through its letters, reflects what the community is thinking about, and Topic Number One is abortions.

But talk's cheap on this issue, as it is on most such things. That's why what Mrs. Marilyn Furer of Mount Prospect is doing is so refreshingly different from what everyone seems to be doing to vocalize about abortions.

Mrs. Furer is a mother of a diabetic child — she was a subject of a story written by Herald staff writer Eleanor Rives in early January.

The series, unlike many, sparked a wave of letters to the Herald. Mrs. Fu-rer, it seems, had said the effects of diabetes were not generally known to the American public and that the life-destroying side-effects were more severe than most persons realized.

First there was a flood of letters arguing that many youthful diabetics could lead a relatively normal life. Then, however, a counter-wave of letters argued that the disease is largely ignored by researchers and the American public.

Mrs. Furer, as a concerned parent, has been working ever since last year to drum up support for the fight. She's led the struggle for publicity, and has visited this office on numerous occasions with letters and bits of information that are useful to this newspaper.

She's taught this writer that parents of diabetic children lead a precarious life of constant readiness to cope with insulin shock, sugar imbalance, and a gnawing awareness that blindness, heart failure and other ailments are possibilities in the lives of diabetics.

Put simply, we need more fighters like Mrs. Furer — persons touched by illness who endure through it and are willing to alert the public and our institutions to the need to conquer. Indeed, the successful fight against the almost-forgotten polio must have begun when someone such as Mrs. Furer began a lonely campaign for research towards a cure.

This column won't repeat the specifics of the problem of diabetes, because Mrs. Furer and others have argued the case better than it can be argued here. But her courage in publicizing this shadowy, little-understood (and apparently little-researched) disease which maims and cripples is commendable.

The message perhaps is that if you stand on either side of the abortion issue, you should stand up and be counted. Mrs. Furer's set an awfully good standard for future partisans on any issue; it's just that her cause (at this moment) is lonelier than the abortion issue.

David Poling's column

Abraham Lincoln today

by DAVID POLING, D.D.

The United States is more than a century away from the Civil War yet how many circumstances appear that were part of that heavy scene:

A nation deeply divided by a recently concluded conflict. Foreign countries voicing disapproval. Racial issues close to the surface. Thousands of soldiers and civilians dead. It is a time of strange parallel, a period when a Lincoln is required.

And if we do not have a Lincoln, we can at least turn to his writings, speeches, letters and public pronouncements. For in this man the perils of American destiny were resolved and in his perspective, much of our national life shaped. In the new book, "Abraham Lincoln" (Harper $4.95) Elton Trueblood brings together in one volume the major themes of Lincoln's religious convictions, the depth of his faith, and the reasons for being called, "Theologian of American Anguish."

Entire libraries exist on Lincoln's skill in statecraft, his unlikely beginnings, his sorrow in marriage and family life. Yet a few half-dozen books have been written about his religious orientation and theological perspective — a good one being Wolf's "Lincoln's Religion." Not that Mr. Lincoln has been without a fair following in seminary and divinity school. Wrote Reinhold Niebuhr: "Lincoln has always been my hero in religion and in statecraft." And the Great Emancipator has had a universal following, so that Americans overseas should not be surprised to see his words quoted in British churches and colleges, with appropriate markings.

Happily, for us and our time, Trueblood has hit the theme which brings the full force of Lincoln in 1973 and its heart-ache.

"While he is remembered primarily for his difficult political decisions which kept the Union intact, the more we study them the more we realize that all of them were reached at a level far deeper than that of politics."

Trueblood weaves the development of Lincoln as politician and theologian, man-server and God-seeker. It was not an easy or smooth journey. His burden was personal, in the death of a son, and corporate, in the dying of a nation. Concluded Trueblood:

"Underlying all particular decisions was a moral revulsion against human slavery, a mystical sense of the importance of the Union, and an abiding conviction that the divine order could be ascertained and followed."

In many respects this volume on Lincoln is a treasury of the most quoted and remembered comments of the man from Illinois. He never joined a church, yet his Christian convictions were hardly hidden when he said:

"When any church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification for membership the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of both law and Gospel, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind and thy neighbor as thyself — that Church will I join with all my heart and soul."

And how can we not think of Vietnam when we reread these words which were part of the Second Inaugural address?

"If God now wills the removal of a great wrong and wills also that we of the North as well as you of the South, shall pay fairly for our complicity in that wrong, impartial history will find therein new cause to attest and revere the justice and goodness of God."

It is not surprising that he called Americans, "God's almost chosen people."

Medicine's good word

One of those truths we take for granted these days is that we live in a drug-oriented, overmedicated society.

Deluged with drug advertising on television, watching their parents pop aspirins and tranquilizers, it's only natural that kids — who are apparently incapable of independent, rational thought — stick needles in their veins. Or so it is explained by many experts.

But while an undermined number of people use medications excessively, "at the same time," another undermined but certainly greater number of people who should be on medications ignore them because they don't get medical attention, can't afford it, refuse it, fail to get prescriptions filled, endure pain needlessly in accordance with the Puritan ethic, or are being educated to equate drug use with personal failings."

So writes C. Joseph Stetler in a letter to Science, submitting the novel conclusion that "on balance, then, we are probably an under-medicated society."

He adds that critics give little attention to the present gains drug therapy affords society in lives saved, illnesses aborted or relieved, hospital stays shortened or prevented entirely, time saved on the job, etc. — all of incalculable human and economic benefit.

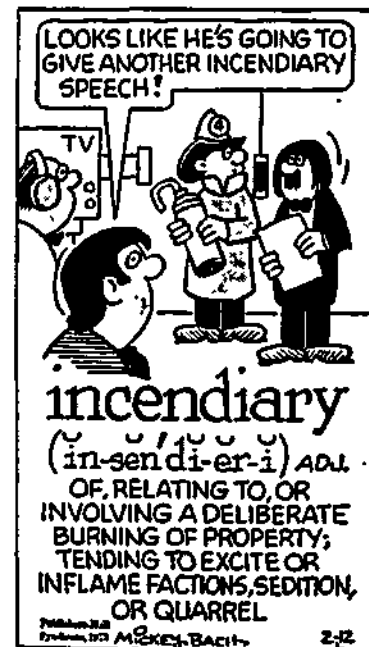

Stetler writes as a representative of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, a fact which in some eyes will cast suspicion on anything he might say about drugs.

It is always useful, however, to question accepted wisdom, if only to keep the wise men in touch with reality.

Business Today

by JOHN N. GREGORY

ZEELAND, Mich. (UPI) — The young scientist studied a swinging lamp in the stillness of a chapel nearly four centuries ago and went home with the idea that developed into a successful American business enterprise and status symbol.

Galileo was 19 when he watched the lamp that day in his native Pisa, Italy, in 1583. He measured the frequency of each pendulum-like motion of the lamp with the only timing device available — his pulse. His suspicions were verified. Each complete swing of the lamp took precisely the same amount of time, according to Galileo's "clock."

That was the first breakthrough in measuring time accurately. It evolved into the "floor" or "tall" clock — known today as grandfather's clock. People manufacturing grandfather clocks say business never has been so good.

"WE'VE GROWN ABOUT 40 per cent a year for the last six years," said John Hartzell, vice president of Colonial of Zeeland, one of six major manufacturers of grandfathers in the United States.

Colonial's crosstown rival, Barwick

Clock Co., a division of the Howard Miller Clock Co., had similar growth in the same period, according to company vice president Philip D. Miller.

"The move toward nostalgia in the furniture industry is making our clocks highly desirable items," Miller said. The clockmaking craft came to America with the early colonists.

"Many tall clocks made by those craftsmen are still keeping accurate time," Miller said.

ONE OF Colonial's sales promotions includes exact reproductions of clocks at least 200 years old which are on display in the Henry Ford Museum at Greenfield Village, near Detroit.

"We have permission to reproduce them from the museum people," Hartzell said. "But they've got to be exact in every detail, even to irregularities in the woodwork or finish. The only exception is in height. That's because ceilings nowadays are a lot lower than they were then."

Both Hartzell and Miller said the grandfather clock business is the fastest growing segment of the American furniture industry.

Cost of Living Council reports

Food price relief seen

by LEA TONKIN

Consumers may be glad to know that in several months all the flak about keeping food prices in line should finally start to pay off.

That's the hopeful report straight from the President's people in the Cost of Living Council. These ambitious administrators were candid enough to admit it will be no easy task, in a Chicago conference Friday in Chicago.

Led by Edgar R. Fiedler, assistant

Secretary of the Treasury for economic policy, a team of the administration's Phase III policy-makers addressed a crowd in the Prudential Building auditorium. Fiedler's speech was followed by a question-and-answer session and a press briefing. He outlined steps being taken to curb food price increases, as well as the outlook for other sectors of the economy.

COMMENTING ON THE problems of the maverick food prices which continue to outpace all other consumer items, Fiedler said no difficulty is greater than this inflation-curbing effort. "We've been urged to freeze raw agricultural product prices," said Fiedler. He said this would create more problems than it would solve, as there would be no incentive to increase agricultural production.

The Administration has undertaken a series of moves designed to lessen the upward pressure on food prices within several months. First, by releasing a large portion of the acreage formerly in the set-aside form programs, the volume of grain production will be increased.

In addition, the remaining set-aside lands can now be used for cattle grazing, a reversal of government policy. The amount of government food storage is being largely eliminated. Import restraints on beef have been lifted and export subsidies for raw agricultural products have been cut.

Perhaps the most important step in keeping the tabs on food prices in the long range is the Administration decision that all U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) decisions relating to marketing orders and guides for food distribution and purchase must be cleared with the Cost of Living Council, said Fiedler. This would solve problems of agencies working at cross-purposes.

CONSUMERS won't see any effect on the supermarket prices next week, Fiedler added. Within several months, these cost programs should pay off, predicts the economist.

In the meantime, what advice could he give consumers confronted by those high beef prices? Buy chicken or turkey or less expensive cuts of meat, advises Fiedler.

Discussing the outlook for 1973 labor negotiations, Fiedler said the slowdown in the inflation rate from 5 per cent to 3 per cent since during Phase I and Phase II has already contributed to an improved bargaining climate. He expects a continuing improvement as a result of Administration efforts during Phase III to bring down inflation from approximately 3 per cent to the 2.5 per cent mark by the end of this year.

This is an ambitious, but not unrealistic goal, Fiedler added. The efforts of American business and working people are needed to make it work, he said. The Administration sees this effort, along with restraint in federal spending, as a means of reducing the effects of inflation and taxes on the consumer's pocketbook.

Inequities resulting from Phase II rules will hopefully be eliminated, Fiedler said. He cited current moves toward higher fuel prices and the shortage of heating oil and other fuels this winter as an example of the inequities.

The Big Stick, or the "club in the closet," as Fiedler call it, still a part of the "voluntary" Phase III program. "It's there. We'll use it if we have to," he said. Imposing mandatory controls is one means that can be used to keep industries in line.

Stan Depkon

Marketing dept. formed at Paddock

A new marketing department directed at customer needs and marketing information for the growing Northwest suburbs has been created at Paddock Publications, according to Carl Schmidt, director of sales and marketing.

Headed the new marketing department will be Stan Depkon, a member of the Paddock Publications advertising department since 1970, and formerly assistant to the director of advertising.

The new department will be responsible for co-op advertising, research of the marketing and demographic aspects of the Northwest suburbs, and public relations for the chain of suburban daily newspapers.

Depkon came to Paddock Publications in 1970 as an account representative. In 1971 he was made a supervisor in that department and in 1972 was appointed assistant to the advertising director.

Stan Depkon and his wife Jean and their five children live in Buffalo Grove.

Why is the dollar in trouble again around the world?

Speculators sold millions in unwanted dollars last week, with the West German and Japanese state banks buying them to protect the dollar and their own imperiled currencies.

Some financial experts predict the West German bank, for one, might stop buying dollars.

Questions and answers on the latest monetary crisis follow.

Q. Why is the dollar in trouble?
A. Because there are too many dollars outside the control of the United States and the people who own or control them are afraid they will decrease in value.

Q. Who is selling the dollar?
A. Mostly speculators and they range from wealthy individuals, such as Middle East oil sheiks, to international industrial companies.

Q. Why are they selling now?
A. Because they do not want to lose money if the value of the dollar decreases and, in addition, they are gambling that some major currencies will become more valuable — and so they will make big profits by betting against the dollar.

Q. What makes them think the dollar is going down?

A. Because they are worried about such things as the record deficits in the American balance of payments, trade and the latest budget, the continued high cost of maintaining troops in Europe, the threat of inflation and concern about the huge expense of U. S. commitments in Southeast Asia.

Q. What caused the balance of payments deficit?

A. A lot of things. Americans buy many more foreign products than they sell in other countries. Tourists spend much more overseas than foreigners spend in the United States. Financing Asian wars.

Q. Can't the United States do something about this deficit?

A. Not easily. The cost of producing goods has increased faster than the cost for foreign businessmen, especially in Japan and other Asian countries. That means that their goods often cost less than goods produced in the United States itself. Americans will continue traveling overseas and there is no sign foreign visitors will spend enough to offset what Americans spend. And, very important, American businessmen will continue to buy more and more raw materials in other countries, spending dollars to get everything from rubber to coffee.

Q. Why are so many of the dollars accumulating in West Germany?

A. Because a lot of what the United States buys is through West Germany and because a lot of American money is invested there. Also because the mark is so strong speculators want to exchange their dollars for it.

Q. Why is West Germany buying the dollars even though it does not want them?

A. Because if the West Germans do not

Zenith plans to build new technical center

Plans to construct a technical center in Northfield township were recently announced by Eugene M. Kinney, senior vice president of Zenith Radio Corp.

The 450,000 square-foot, six-story building will be located on a 180-acre tract owned by the company. The site is bounded by the Tri-State Tollway, Milwaukee Avenue and the Chicago and North Western railway tracks.

Kinney said that the new building will allow the company to consolidate Chicago area engineering, research and purchasing activities and involves about 1,000 employees.

The new Technical Center will also provide for the projected growth of Zenith electronics research and engineering activities, especially in color TV, and provide expanded facilities required for such planned new products as video recording and playback devices.

Architectural and site planning for the new building are underway. Construction of Zenith's Technical Center is expected to begin this year, with completion of the building scheduled for 1975.

MSD gives Polish-Americans 'Kosciuszko Day' holiday

Metropolitan Sanitary District employees who are of Polish origin are getting a day off from work today.

The MSD board last week agreed to the day off in honor of a great patriot and hero of the Revolutionary War — Thaddeus Kosciuszko.

The fact all district employees already had today off in honor of the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, made little difference to MSD Trustee Valentine Janicki who proposed the holiday for Polish-Americans.

Janicki had made a part of the MSD board meeting record a speech about Kosciuszko first made by former MSD Board Pres. Col. Robert R. McCormick at a meeting in 1949. THE SPEECH in part told of Kosciuszko's contribution to the cause of American freedom: "Kosciuszko was a professional soldier, but by no means a professional adventurer. His services during the Revolution were immensely valuable, even though they were technical services, solid rather than showy. Moreover, Kosciuszko linked his career to the American cause as a result of deeply held republican convictions rather than from motives of self-advancement or vain glory. Having served the ideal of human freedom in America, he devoted his life to the same ideal for Poland, holding to personal and political standards far in advance of his age... "And so, in February, when we Americans observe the anniversaries of Washington and Lincoln, let us also remember Thaddeus Kosciuszko, a soldier, an idealist, a patriot and an exile. As he was firm in his ideals, let us be firm in ours. We shall be firm when, like him, we shall pledge our nation to no course which does not advance the cause of human freedom!" McCormick's speech urged.

THURSDAY, Janicki also introduced a resolution on behalf of Polish astronomer Mikołaj Kopernik, better known as Nicolaus Copernicus.

Noting Feb. 19 is the 500th anniversary of Copernicus' birth, Janicki's resolution calls for the MSD to proclaim the day as Copernicus' "Quincentennial Anniversary."

The resolution cites Copernicus' scientific and social achievements and says the anniversary of his birth, "reminds mankind that all of the planet Earth comprises one brotherhood on an outpost in the vastness of space."

Orientation meets slated for freshmen

Three orientation meetings for students who will be freshmen at Prospect High School next fall will be held during February.

Eighth graders from Miner Junior High School are scheduled for Tuesday, Feb. 13 at 7:30 p.m. in the Prospect Theater. Lincoln Junior High students will meet in the Prospect gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 19, and all other eighth graders who expect to attend Prospect H.S. are scheduled for Feb. 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the school's theater.

Parents are encouraged to attend the orientation meetings. Incoming freshmen and their parents will receive information on school policies, lockers, dress, discipline, and courses available from Edward Spacapan and James Kumen, the two assistant principals, and Clarence Feierisel, director of pupil personnel services.

Postal Service negotiating airplane space

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service says it is tired of being blamed when airlines are slow in delivering mail and will try to negotiate guaranteed, scheduled space on planes.

"We can no longer stand by and let the airlines decide whether they're going to carry our mail or not. We're going to insist upon having committed space," Postmaster General E. T. Klassen said in a statement.

Mail is now delivered by airlines partly on a scheduled basis and partly on a space available basis. The Postal Service said mail delays at several major airports were reported last Christmas.

Meanwhile, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., urged enactment of a bill to ease the impact of a second-class rate increase which he said could kill thousands of periodicals.

His bill, co-sponsored by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., and 17 other senators, would spread the increases over 10 years and establish a ceiling of 66 2/3 per cent of the applicable rates for the first 250,000 copies per issue of any publication.

Environment forum slated at Harper

Larry Hoellwarth of "Citizens for a Better Environment" will answer questions concerning Illinois environmental problems at Harper College on Wednesday.

His discussion will follow a lecture slide program titled "The Ultimate Crisis" which begins at 12:15 p.m. in Room E-106 on the campus.

The thirty-five minute slide show will dramatize the planetary environmental crisis. The program will include predictions from a computer study on current trends of industrial production, pollution and population growth.

There is no admission charge.

Area band festival scheduled Saturday

The annual High School Dist. 214 band festival will be held Saturday at Prospect High School, featuring performances by each of the seven Dist. 214 bands.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. The Prospect, Wheeling, Arlington and Hershey high school bands will perform during the first half of the program under the direction of guest conductor Col. Arnold Gabriel, director of the U.S. Air Force Band.

The Forest View, Elk Grove and Rolling Meadows high school bands will perform under the directions of Harry Begian, director of bands at the University of Illinois. All the bands will also perform under the direction of their own band leaders.

Tickets for the concert are $1.25 and will be available at the schools or at the door.

Sally Witzke's Job

Keeping the condominium folks happy

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Sally Witzke is paid to prevent other people from becoming bored. And she manages to do so without using the "Oh Suzanna" approach of a little fast talk and a whistle.

Recreational director for Cambridge-On-The-Lake, a condominium community in Buffalo Grove, Mrs. Witzke has responsibility for keeping its 450 residents occupied and happy.

From yoga to painting to Polynesian parties and political rap sessions, the choice is only limited by the amount of leisure time a resident has to participate.

Not the usual gregarious activities director, Mrs. Witzke on the contrary, is rather soft-spoken. Yet beneath that shroud of tranquility, inventiveness is brewing. She is never still and new ideas are constantly brewing in her brain.

"MY MIND GOES off on a lot of different tangents," said Mrs. Witzke. "I'm forever perking and sometimes I come up with things that are, perhaps, even too far out."

Sally Witzke is a professional artist and holds both a B.A. and an M.A. in art from the University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh. Why then did she apply for the position of recreational director?

"I love to teach," she said. And some of Mrs. Witzke's most successful sponsored projects are art and craft classes including painting, stichery, ceramics and jewelry. In April an art show will be held at Cambridge so the residents turned art students may exhibit their own creations.

"Art appears to be universal in appeal," she said, adding that all age groups like to participate in her classes.

Social and recreational directors are a relatively new but an increasingly successful addition to large resident complexes that offer as special enticements recreational centers with tennis courts, ponds, indoor-outdoor pools and exercise, game and craft rooms too. It's all part of a huge promotion for a complete leisure living package.

BY PLANNING activities around these

A PROFESSIONAL artist, Sally Witzke enjoys teaching and has instituted several art classes as part of the activities program offered residents of facilities at Cambridge and editing a complex newspaper to keep all residents informed, Mrs. Witzke is able to keep the majority of her residents actively participating and happy.

Cambridge-On-The-Lake condominiums in Buffalo Grove, where she is recreation director. When warmer weather arrives, Sally plans patio parties, picnics and even fishing contests. "This year the fish should be worth catching," she said.

"Certainly it's a new way of life," she said about the whole recreational center approach. "Leisure living is becoming a reality. There is more time now away from work and many of the more affluent are bored with just watching television. They want to be out together working and creating... communicating with one another."

"I didn't want to sit down and list a host of projects or programs for the residents without consulting them. So I've met with them, asked questions and listened," continued Mrs. Witzke. "I'd rather be directed by the people here, not direct them."

"The mean age of the residents at Cambridge is 49. I also try to keep that in mind."

In addition to the various art classes, Mrs. Witzke has been very successful with bridge, canasta, ping pong and chess tournaments. Her Monday night yoga class is filled and if interest is shown, she would consider instituting belly dancing classes. But what about the men?

"WHEN THEY BECOME interested, they are so interested they come to me with ideas," she said. "They enjoy the sports activities (pool and bowling) and they are very big partygoers."

"Our New Year's Eve party was such a huge success that I had to keep everyone dancing because there weren't enough chairs to go around," laughed Mrs. Witzke.

A Greek Nite is in the planning stages as well as a Polynesian pool party and several potluck dinners. One resident, who formerly operated a restaurant, has volunteered to make Cherries Jubilee for the whole gang one night. Easter will be celebrated with a brunch and an Easter egg hunt. A Passover Seder dinner is also scheduled.

What qualities should one possess to become recreational director for a large apartment complex?

"The ability to keep cool under pressure," Mrs. Witzke named one, then added, "and make order out of chaos. You have to motivate the residents to come to an activity and interest them enough to keep them returning."

"IT IS A 24-hour job," she continued. "But one activity seems to balance out another. One relaxes me while something else pumps me up. When I'm not in the office or teaching, I'm out tracking down supplies or checking out places I think some of the people might like to eat or visit."

And every once in awhile there is also a need for Mrs. Witzke to act as cupid. If she knows there will be one extra single male, she tries to interest another single female in attending that same festivity. "But always without the residents themselves being aware," she said. "It's tremendous that way."

FDA proposes cosmetics makers be required to list ingredients

by MONICA LANE

The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a requirement that cosmetic manufacturers list ingredients on their package labels. The proposal came about as a result of a petition filed by the Consumer Federation of America urging full ingredient labeling.

The proposal constituted a significant shift in FDA policy, which formerly had encouraged voluntary ingredient labeling, a proposal made by the Cosmetic, Toiletry and Fragrance Association, the trade group of the $6 billion cosmetics industry.

Last August the FDA published guidelines for ingredient labeling and the President's consumer specialist, Virginia Knauer, wrote to 19 manufacturers urging them to adopt ingredient labeling practices.

These guidelines suggested that ingredients be listed in descending order of predominance, in readable type size, located either on an existing information panel or an attached tag or display card. Ingredients, the agency said, should be referred to by the accepted name as listed in the U.S. Pharmacopoeia or similar code, or by the common chemical.

BUT THE VOLUNTARY labeling plan has been totally unsuccessful. Despite assurances of several manufacturers that they planned to initiate ingredient disclosure in one way or another, none has done so, and most of the industry has continued to balk at such revelation.

A spokesman for the company wants to "guard our secrets," while the president of Helene Curtis asserted that the average consumer "wouldn't even understand an ingredient list."

Avon Products was the first manufacturer to agree to disclose ingredients, but only upon "reasonable" customer request. The company told The Herald in August that it would await the FDA guidelines — which had already been issued — before considering labeling.

Colgate-Palmolive was the only company to agree to immediate, unconditional labeling of ingredients on all its products. But, to date, its products carry no ingredient labeling.

Six other companies indicated early last fall that they would provide ingredient information, either through "expanded labeling" or other forms of communication. These included Almay, Ar-Ex, L'Oreal, Mennen, Revlon and Warner-Lambert. A Herald survey indicated that none of these is yet providing any ingredient information.

IN THE LAST session of Congress the Senate passed legislation that would have required ingredient labeling of cosmetics, but the House had not taken any action on the bill at the time of adjournment, thus killing it. However, sponsors of the bill indicated that it would be introduced again in the current Congress.

According to an FDA spokesman, the proposal issued this week could take six months to a year to become effective. There is a 60-day period for public comment before any action can be taken.

Some 60,000 persons annually suffer injury or ailment due to cosmetics, according to the National Commission on Product Safety. But Arlington Heights dermatologist Dr. Marvin Margolis told The Herald he and his colleagues "have trouble with the cosmetic companies not volunteering information to us." He said that finding out ingredients to treat a patient is "a time-consuming and frustrating process." Some companies, he said, outrightly refuse to provide him with information.

Several dermatologists surveyed in this area indicated that they regularly treat patients for allergic reactions to cosmetics. However, without ingredient information, treatment is difficult.

"If the doctor can isolate the specific ingredient a person is allergic to, and if ingredients are listed on labels, then the person can avoid products containing that ingredient," Dr. Margolis said.

IF INGREDIENT labeling becomes mandatory, it could also open up another can of worms — accuracy of advertising. If products that have been advertised as containing lemons, proteins, herbs, flowers, vitamin E and a number of other "special ingredients" do not actually contain those ingredients, the fallacy of the claim will become apparent in the content label.

There has been little action by the Federal Trade Commission so far in calling for ad substantiation by cosmetic manufacturers.

The FTC also has not called for substantiation of currently popular claims about the cosmetic powers of vitamin E. According to a recent issue of Consumer Reports, there have been no controlled studies indicating that vitamin E has any effect on skin conditions. Neither Consumer Reports nor the FTC has investigated the validity of claims that vitamin E is effective as a deodorant.

Musk oil. What is it?

Everyone must have heard something about musk oil. It is one of the newest scents out and promotion has been pretty heavy. Several additional companies have already joined the two original suppliers of musk oil. But while the brand name may differ the ingredients remain much the same.

Musk oil has been on the market for less than a year. Yet it's really nothing new. Quite the contrary, it is ancient. Natural musk from the little Musk Deer of Tibet, quite expensive and rare today, was once considered the antibiotic of ancient China.

IT WAS SUPPOSED to have been used as a cardiac stimulant, a cure for the side effects of Asiatic cholera, as well as nervous afflictions and asthma. It was even used as a safeguard against snake bites.

In early recorded Chinese history, one physician claimed that the little, musk-loving Musk Deer fed on snakes and, therefore, by carrying a piece of odorless musk an individual could repel snakes. That is "one" for the records.

Musk was also used by the Arabs as a flavor, often in combination with rose water. It was considered one of the five most valuable perfume materials and even the prophet Mohammed himself is supposed to have written, "The seal of musk. For this let those pant who pant for bliss."

The Arabs brought musk to Europe and it is found listed among the gifts sent to the Emperor of Rome in 1189 by Saladin, Sultan of Egypt and Syria.

JUST WHAT is musk oil made of today? While it may smell like the natural that comes from the Musk Deer, it really isn't natural at all. And it won't guard against snake bites. The musk oil being manufactured as perfume is actually a combination of synthetic musk chemicals developed in the laboratories.

So whether one likes the new musk oil now available in bath salts too, or prefers the perfume that has earned its status, one cannot detract from the colorful history connected with this ancient scent.

You can tell a man's character by the socks he wears, notes a British psychiatrist.

Dr. Neville Thornton claims that men buy suits and ties to impress others, but they buy socks to satisfy themselves.

He says a diamond pattern reveals a conservative who wants familiar order to his activities; vivid colors signify emotional insecurity; vertical stripes suggest strong sexual desires; and gray socks reveal a romantic soul who wants a simple life.

But what does it mean when a man's wife buys his socks for him? Is it a means of personality change or only conflict?

Pancake Day set at YMCA

It's that time of year for pancake flipping at Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines. The 11th annual Pancake Day sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary is Saturday, Feb. 24, in the 'Y' all purpose room, 300 E. Northwest Hwy.

Flapjacks, sausages, coffee and milk will be served continuously from 8:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m.

A special feature this year is the array of prizes to be awarded, among them a 10-speed bicycle and a 12-inch Zenith television set.

MRS. JAMES COSTELLO of Mount

Prospect is chairman of the event. All members of the auxiliary will be helping throughout the day, either in the kitchen or the dining room, and as usual, the flipping will be done by men from the YMCA board of directors and husbands of auxiliary members.

Tickets at $1.25 are being sold at the 'Y' and by auxiliary members. Mrs. Bill Duenser of Mount Prospect is ticket chairman.

Proceeds from the annual affair go to the YMCA building fund.

Abortion clinics

Court ruling spurs interest

by HELEN HENNESSY

(First of two parts)
NEW YORK — (NEA) — On Monday, Jan. 22, 1973, the United States Supreme Court ruled that abortions are legal anywhere in this country during the first three months of pregnancy.

Those who believe that abortion at any stage is taking a human life consider this decision to be a tragic one. But since hundreds of thousands of women see abortion as the only way out of a desperate situation, the opportunity to have it done legally by a reputable physician in a clean facility removes agonizing fears. It is a far cry from what still had to be tolerated in many states — shady abortion mills or the horror of resorting to a filthy hideaway as was seen in the movie, "Allie."

So right or wrong morally, the court's decision does make the end of a period when it wasn't only the fetus that lost an opportunity to live but, in too many cases, the mother lost her life as well as the hands of sleazy abortionists.

THE COURT'S dictum should spur the opening of new abortion clinics in many states. And it should ease crowding in the existing clinics in states where abortion is already a legal procedure.

Dr. Michael Levi, director of OBGYN (obstetrics and gynecology) clinic in New York said, "More than seventy per cent of our patients come from all parts of the United States and Canada."

The big issue among the pro-abortion groups is a woman's right to have complete control over what she wants to do with her own body — a more sophisticated approach to the problem than is the plight of the poor girl who feels she has no option but abortion (legal or criminal), or shame and poverty. For both reasons, Dr. Allan F. Guttmacher, head of Planned Parenthood, called the decision one that will be remembered for decades as the day that women gained freedom of choice that they should have had long ago. And now the moralists, both pro and con, can accept the knowledge that legal abortion is fact.

SINCE NEW YORK state made abortion legal some time ago, many clinics have opened here. One recently opened clinic, the Bronx Community Center for Women's Health — a nonprofit, community-sponsored abortion clinic affiliated with the Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center — could be a model for clinics in other cities in respect to the medical, psychological and social services it provides. And whether one is for or against legal abortion, this frightening statement from a doctor who was a pioneer in the clinics fields clearly points out the need:

"The birth rate in New York alone has only declined a fraction of a per cent. This means that of 200,000 women who have had legal abortions about 190,000 would have had illegal abortions and about 50 per cent of these women would have had serious complications."

PRAIRIE VIOLET QUESTERS

The Prairie Violet Questers will have a white elephant sale at their meeting Tuesday morning in Mrs. Richard Quilan's home, 807 Thorntree Trail, Arlington Heights.

Members will meet at 9:30. They are invited to bring a sandwich and go questing after the program.

PALATINE HOMEMAKERS

Kitchen gardens will be the major lesson when Palatine Unit of Suburban Cook County Homemakers Extension Association meets Tuesday at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Road, Mrs. E. Passarelli and Mrs. D. Weinberg will give the lesson.

Mrs. G. Even will demonstrate the making of head and safety pin necklaces at the craft lesson which precedes the meeting. Crafts begin at 9:30 a.m.

Hostesses for the dessert at 12:30 will be Mrs. D. Rundle, Mrs. G. C. Payne and Mrs. R. O. Bang.

BUFFALO GROVE GARDENERS

Area gardeners, whether novice or experienced, are invited to the Buffalo Grove Garden Club meeting Tuesday at 8 in St. Mary's School science lab. Then's of Crystal Lake will present a slide program of chrysanthemum culture and flowering plants.

The narrative will be given by Mrs. Jack Kubinek, who suggests that now is the time to select varieties for fall blooming.

Mrs. James Long will also give a short presentation on raspberries and blackberries in the horticulture portion of the program.

Meeting hostesses are Mrs. Werner Isaac and Mrs. Jerry Richter.

ALPHA OMICRON PI

Decorating with antiques will be described by Mrs. Mary Lou Sheppard of Arlington Heights at Wednesday evening's meeting of Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi.

Her program follows an 8 o'clock business session in the home of Mrs. William Rlets, 706 E. Baldwin Road, Palatine. Mrs. Charles Imig and Mrs. Warren Potter, both of Palatine, and Mrs. Terry Sesterhenn of Schaumburg will be co-hostesses.

All AOPi alumnae in the area are welcome. They may call Mrs. Jack Cutlip, 394-2274, for further information.

Alums to taste wine

Arlington Heights chapter of Delta Zeta alumnae has invited the husbands to a wine tasting party Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Gus Leep home, 437 Regent, Buffalo Grove.

Interested alums may call 259-8671 for details.

Dear Dorothy: Could you tell me how to take the ink off canceled postage stamps? I am interested in starting a collection. — Carolyn Stevenson

It probably is going to surprise you to learn that some collectors put a higher value on canceled stamps than on the mint (unused) stamps. Anyway, you can't take out the ink marks, Carolyn — and if you tried you'd only ruin the stamps. But don't let this deter you. Stamp collecting is not only a great hobby for adults, it's a wonderful educational tool for children. It offers some knowledge about foreign lands, history, people, wildlife and so on. And good collectors have often found it a sound investment since values go up as stamps grow rarer. You really ought to start with a primer on stamp collecting and I'm sure the public library has some.

Dear Dorothy: I have a zebra plant and even though I've followed instructions — to water often — the plant has never bloomed and the leaves keep falling off. Any suggestions? — Mrs. F.C.E.

The zebra plant (aphelandra) does best in a greenhouse and after it has been in one's home, it has to be tenderly cared for or the leaves will fall off, and come back slowly. It needs a lot of water and every watering should contain plant food of about one-quarter strength. Even watering takes care—the foliage needs the water but should never touch the blossom. It does best in a 50 to 60-degree temperature. New shoots can be used for cuttings.

Dear Dorothy: Just thought the following might be interesting to the young mothers. Baby will slip much more when walking around with socks than with shoes or plain bare feet. — Maya C.

EPSILON SIGMA ALPHA

Gamma Tau chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha will have a "Be My Valentine" luncheon Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. Judy Walker of Bartlett will be hostess.

Nancy Diebsche of Hoffman Estates, winner of the chapter's recent Sweet-heart Award, will be honored at the luncheon.

MT. PROSPECT GARDENERS

"Plant the Right Tree" is the topic for Wednesday's meeting of the Garden Club of Mount Prospect. Ralph Synnestvedt of Glenview, a landscape designer and member of the Chicago Horticulture Society, will be guest speaker.

The meeting begins at 12:45 p.m. at the local community center. Members and guests may bring landscape questions for discussion.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Arthur Jaehnke, Mrs. M. H. Crandall, Mrs. E. H. Nixon and Mrs. Charles Peter.

Mrs. James Viger, club president, reminds garden enthusiasts that the club will again collaborate with the Mount Prospect Woman's Club in organizing a bus trip March 27 to the Chicago Flower and Garden Show at McCormick Place. Advance tickets can be obtained from Mrs. James Alcoe, 259-6406.

MEDICAL ASSISTANTS

Dr. Hector R. Vazquez will present "Surgical Problems and Their Solutions" at Wednesday's meeting of the American Association of Medical Assistants, Northwest Cook Chapter. Dr. Vazquez has been on the staff of Northwest Community Hospital for 14 years and is a member of the American College of Surgeons.

Wednesday's meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of Northwest Community Hospital. All medical personnel in the area are welcome.

PALANOS PARK GARDENERS

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jacob of Palatine will host a Valentine's Day treat for Palanosi Park Garden Club members, their husbands and guests. It will be a travel program Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Jacob home. Robert Ehlich will show slides of a tour entitled "Come to Spain."

An assortment of homemade pies will be the refreshments.

MT. PROSPECT JUNIORS

Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club will meet Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. at the community center. The program will include the installation of 17 new members and the introduction of two scholarship winners.

Sandy Mack, the art scholarship winner, will show some of her work, including her painting which won first prize last summer at Allerton Park. Robin Nordli, the music winner, will play selections on her flute. Robin won a week's stay at the University of Illinois, Urbana, as a member of the Illinois Summer Youth Music.

Mrs. Charles Whittemore, 304-3294, can be called for further information on the Juniors.

PI BETA PHI

A card party and dessert exchange will highlight Wednesday evening's meeting of the Arlington Heights Alumnae Club of Pi Beta Phi. Mrs. Gerald Hall, 325 N. Benton, Palatine, will host the group at 8 p.m.

Mrs. David Hurst, Palatine, is program chairman, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Scollay and Mrs. James Jackson, Palatine; Mrs. Harrison Kennicott, Arlington Heights; and Mrs. Ronald Jones, Elk Grove.

DES PLAINES WOMAN'S CLUB

The bridge group of Des Plaines Woman's Club meets Wednesday at noon at Oehler's Community Room for its regular afternoon of cards.

Parents fail to recognize allergy symptoms in kids

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A University of California professor of pediatrics says most parents don't realize that a wide variety of symptoms experienced by their children may be caused by foods eaten almost daily, including milk.

The symptoms include recurrent abdominal pains; cranky, unhappy or difficult behavior; pallor and dark circles under the eyes; tiredness and fatigue; leg aches or "growing pains"; and respiratory tract symptoms such as stuffy nose, chronic coughing and wheezing.

"While any one of these symptoms may be due to a variety of other causes, most people and many physicians are unaware that they may also be caused by food allergy," says Dr. William Deamer.

Lady Elks plot 'Cupid's Caper'

"Cupid's Caper" is the name chosen for the annual valentine dance planned by the Elk Grove Ladies of the Elks. It takes place Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Elks lodge, 115 Gordon.

Music will be provided by the Lamplighters, and a hot buffet supper will be served late in the evening.

Mrs. Jerry Zima, 439-5519, and Mrs. Ben Kan, 437-3776, are taking reservations.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

Informality new trend in newscasts

Hollywood (UPI) — All you have to do is look at local newscasts to see the growing informality in presenting news on television.

It's a trend that has thus far had little or no effect on the coast-to-coast network evening newscasts, where the traditional formality remains basically intact.

But the local broadcasters are definitely on to something that could be highly worthwhile in more than a ratings way — if they can keep the informality at a reasonable level so that it doesn't overshadow the news.

We've all seen examples of where determinedly informal newscasters let things get out of control by valuing their own remarks over the substance of their programs.

BUT WE'VE ALSO seen those newscasters who have just the right touch — and, as a result, not only succeed in their attempts to win viewers, but preserve their professional incisiveness as well.

All the best newscasters at the network and local levels have, of course, always aimed for as much direct, personal viewer rapport as possible within the structure of the formats of their programs.

Who, for instance, will ever forget Edward R. Murrow's radio reports from London in World War II? The basic knowledge of just the right tone — just the right mixture of informality and formality — has never been a secret to the artists in the broadcasting profession.

Crinkite and Seavard have it, and Brinkley and Chancellor have it too, and so do Reasoner and Smith, as well as many, many more.

THE GROWING television newscast informality will give countless local stations a chance to add to the personal rapport long practiced by the best and most famous reporters, and even the individualistic down-home radio and video outlets.

With more local cable television stations apparently in our future, there undoubtedly will be a further extension of this newscast informality. The overall trend will bring both awful and attractive moments of newscasting into our homes. But if reasonably done it can be a winning point to local viewers in this impersonal, technological age.

And there is little doubt that many broadcasters look to it as a weapon in trying to maintain contact with some viewers who have been overwhelmed in recent years by disturbing news stories — transmitted quicker and with more pictorial impact than ever before.

What would George say?

Mrs. Scott won't refuse Oscar

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — An interesting question may arise this Oscar season. Suppose Mrs. George C. Scott is nominated for an award — would George show up to watch his wife accept?

George C. Scott, of course, doesn't think too highly of the Academy Awards. But his wife — Trish Van Devere — is another matter.

"Yes," Trish says. "I'd accept the Oscar if it were offered to me. George and I disagree about a lot of things and that's one of them. I understand how he feels but I'd still take it if it came."

The question is more than just academic. Trish Van Devere gave a brilliant performance in "One Is a Lonely Number," and it would be no surprise at all if she were nominated in the best actress category.

I HOPE SHE gets nominated. It would be fun to see what George would do. Trish would be there but would George escort her? Or would his boycott of the Oscars extend to include his wife, too?

Another source of Scott-Van Devere disagreement is television. George will occasionally let himself be persuaded to appear on the home screen — he even did a series once — but his wife won't.

"I've done no TV at all," the pixieish Trish says, "except for a soap opera for a very short while. And I don't want to do any."

She says once she was persuaded to come to Hollywood to do a test for a series. Before she stepped in front of the camera, she was "shocked" to find she was forced to sign a seven-year contract. If the series sold, she was tied tight.

"I SIGNED," she said, "but I promised myself that if the series sold, I'd leave the country."

TRISH VAN DEVERE has never deviated from her acting goal.

Fortunately, the series didn't sell. Otherwise, we might now be faced with the problem of whether to grant amnesty to refugee TV actresses.

"I've gotten many TV offers over the years," she says, "but I turned them all down, even though I'd have to count my pennies for subway fare much of the time."

Trish is from Englewood, N.J., a suburb of New York. Her father died when she was nine and her mother supported her brother and herself by going into the real estate business. She got interested in acting when she was four — "I did a school play and it was well received and I liked the feeling of acceptance."

SHE SAYS she never deviated from her acting goal, except for a "flirtation" with psychiatry. Some of the embers of that flirtation still glow — she works with disturbed and/or retarded children whenever she has the time.

Trish says her mother never stood in the way of her career, but she never understood it, either.

"She'd call me, when I was working in New York, at eight or nine in the morning," she says. "I'd have to remind her that I was in a play at night, and that I didn't get to bed until three or so, and that I needed to sleep late in the morning."

"She'd say, 'Trish, everybody in the world is up.'"

"I'd tell her, 'O.K., then call everybody in the world but let me sleep.'"

The Scotts are off to Abaco, in the West Indies, where they will co-star in Mike Nichols' next film, "Day of the Dolphins." She says George considers Mike probably the best director around.

After that, they'll go back to Westport, Conn., where they want to find a house to make their permanent home. And maybe start a family. She thinks, with her experience at working with children, that she'd make a good mother.

"We'll see," she says. "At least I hope we'll see."

Scott, Streisand named favorites

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George C. Scott and Barbra Streisand were named the favorite male and female movie stars of 1972 last week in a poll by Boxoffice Magazine, the film trade publication, of movie critics and theater owners.

Runnersup for the female favorite, in order, were Goldie Hawn, Liza Minnelli, All MacGraw, Raquel Welch and Jane Fonda. Male runnersup were Clint Eastwood, Paul Newman, Marlon Brando, Steve McQueen, John Wayne and Gene Hackman.

Today is Monday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1973 with 322 to follow. This is Lincoln's birthday.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

British biologist Charles Darwin was born Feb. 12, 1809. Abraham Lincoln was born on the same day.

On this day in history:

In 1912, China became a republic when the Manchu dynasty was overthrown by the Nationalists.

In 1942, the German battleships Dehornhorst and Gneisenau escaped from the French port of Brest into the North Sea.

In 1953, the Soviet Union broke off relations with Israel when terrorists bombed the U.S.S.R. Legation in Tel Aviv.

In 1963, 43 persons were killed when a jetliner crashed into the Florida Everglades.

A thought for the day: "French philosopher Jean Rousseau said, 'Nature never deceives us; it is always we who deceive nature.'"

Aged in America:

Productive society doesn't need them, so they're ignored by work-a-day world

WASHINGTON — Something is wrong with Roxie Barnes' television. The sound works but the picture doesn't. Yet, well, too bad, Mrs. Barnes can't afford a new set — hence she cleans the relic every day, dusting, oiling, washing the picture tube. And when she is done, which is usually early in the morning, she retires to a chair for the rest of the day, every day, and just listens to the audio.

"I don't," she explains, "have much else to do now."

Mrs. Barnes, like her TV, is old: 74. Likewise, she has over the years lost part of her capacity to function. Her husband died "oh, 15-16 years ago," her hands are lumpy with knots that prevent much usage; her health is good, that is to say she has no serious illness, but she can't move around much, "not even to church." And so she sits by herself in a two-room apartment — "I haven't even been downtown for a year" — and listens to the sound of civilization out of a pathetic veneer box.

It's much the same for many older women in America today. Men too, but especially women because they live longer and outnumber men. The Census Bureau believes there are 11 million women over the age of 65 in the United States, seven million of them are widows or otherwise single, 34 per cent of them live alone, one of four do not have enough money for comfort, 6 of 10 are inadequately sheltered. There is an especially sorry portion of the subculture of the aged; since they live longer than men (74.9 years on the average to 67.5 for males) they experience the pain of being old that much more.

ROXIE BARNES for example. Daughter of a North Carolina sharecropper, she came to Washington during the Depression, married a laborer, found work with the U. S. government (30 years as an aide in Walter Reed Hospital), and thus made a place for herself. Sadly, the place was no permanent. Like it has so many others, age has relegated Mrs. Barnes to a kind of pile of worthless human debris. The productive society doesn't need her, doesn't really want her — therefore, although no one admits it, she's in the way, and as a result ignored or forgotten by the work-a-day world.

Oh, there is some obligatory recognition that she still exists. The government mails a $138-a-month pension. District social workers do what they can for her under the law. Once a month she receives a medical check-up — that is if she presents her Department of Human Resources Card, her medical eligibility pass, and heaven knows what else for treatment. Yet here she is, living hard by the center of U. S. social power, lonely, neglected, sometimes victimized and all the time in privation.

Her $139 pension, as illustration, is not enough to make ends meet. Her rent ($97), foodstamps ($10), heat and telephone take quick care of that seem. Then there is gas, electricity, clothes, repairs, household items, etc. (In order to pay the extra bills she has taken to baby-sitting. A woman in the same apartment leaves her baby with Mrs. Barnes for eight or nine hours every day. It adds $12 weekly to the old woman's income; it keeps her from the welfare rolls.)

AND BEYOND the rigors of economics, there are the thousand and one other things for which Mrs. Barnes is unprepared to handle and for which society is unprepared to help. The heat breaks down in her apartment, forcing the use of a hotplate for warmth; the electricity bill soars, the hotplate is worn to near repair, but . . . tough. The pantry is empty of food, but there is no one to do the shopping, and Mrs. Barnes must journey to the store, in a cab since mass transportation for the purpose is impossible; of course, cabfare on a retired widow's budget is intolerable, but . . . tough. On and on. Tough. Tough.

while not as good as it should be, her best is passable. Yet the question is whether society should be content to just let her do the best she can. Simone de Beauvoir, in her book, "Coming of Age," writes: "By the way in which a society behaves towards its old people, it uncovers the naked and often carefully hidden truth about its real principles and aims . . . their unhappy fate proclaims the failures of our civilization."

The failures of our civilization toward the aged woman are undeniable. She endures much more than the aged man. Myrna Lewis, a Washington mental health specialist, says that old men may suffer from an image of rickety senility, but old women have the added burden of being depicted as "hags, evil crones, scary old witches, and nasty biddies of all sorts . . . The message comes across early in life that a woman is valuable in order to bear children and raise them, and perhaps to nurse father in his dotage, but after that it's clearly downhill all the way."

OVER 65, THEN the woman is looked upon, too often, as sexually unattractive, biologically obsolete, more or less suspicious driftwood. Aged widows have difficulties opening charge accounts, getting loans, securing employment. Myrna Lewis says that they even have hard times getting remarried; only about 18,000 a year wed because most men their age are either married or looking for younger wives, and because of the social stigma attached to the marriages of older women and younger men.

Given the realities of such discrimination, it's small wonder that older women do in great numbers turn inward and more or less fulfill society's concept of them. They drop out, turn to religion, become moody, search increasingly for affection or objects (such as pets) to baby and fuss. Edna St. Vincent Millay characterized their plight years ago when she wrote: "Life must go on — I forget just why."

Can anything be done? Absolutely, says French writer de Beauvoir: The solution is for society to allow and encourage each old person, man or woman, "to go on pursuing ends that give their lives meaning." No small task, naturally. How, for instance, to give meaning to Roxie Barnes' life? A lovely woman, she nonetheless represents many like her who succumb to pride and dignity by admitting to no need. Lonely? Not her. "Every now and then," she says, listening to her broken TV, "they say, listen, then people from the church stop by to chat."

New discrimination: age-ism

PHILADELPHIA — A welfare case worker in this city tells the story of visiting two clients, one old and the other young, in the same slumside apartment building. The older client lived on the ground floor, hence was visited first. Angered at having to wait, the younger resident then complained: "Why bother with the old woman? She ain't got long to live anyway."

The incident says a scandalous lot about the burden of being old in the United States. There is precious little sympathy for it. Twenty million Americans over 65 — that's the total population of nearly half the nation's smaller states — yet in many of the more important ways they count for nothing.

"People expect old men to die," wrote Ogden Nash. Indeed, then, why bother with them? Thus it is in a society almost embarrassingly oriented toward youth, to be old is too often to be devalued, forgotten or even resented.

Sociologists believe the dominant attitude toward the aged sometimes approaches racism. Call it age-ism. Or at best, benign neglect. It manifests itself as a step on the bus which is too high for a person with a cane to mount. Et cetera.

IT IS A curious kind of discrimination,

Sociologists believe the dominant attitude toward the aged sometimes approaches racism. Call it age-ism.

this age-ism, this attitude toward the elderly, in that it is not consciously malicious. And perhaps this is the worst kind of maliciousness. Few realize age-ism exists, or that they are practitioners, yet it is no less deadly.

The Philadelphia Senior Citizens Center Association, in checking the lack of fire drills at old people's residences, has been told that such exercises are unnecessary because "they would scare the old folks." Better that than burn them to death is the obvious retort, but nobody listens. Why don't they listen? Because, says a Senior Center official: "One of the doctrines of age-ism is that old people know nothing. It's part of the image with which we have to cope."

Coping with their image is an old problem for the aged. Made worse these days, perhaps, by the realities of the times. Once, when the nation was younger, families were more conventionally constructed. Children and grandparents interacted.

Now the family unit is nuclear — mother, father, children, period. Old in-laws have been left behind, estranged.

Says Dora Schatz, president of the Philadelphia Senior Center: "Children see their grandparents only occasionally. The image they have of the old, therefore, is sketchy or second hand. They no longer know what old people are really like; they get a very distorted impression."

UNFORTUNATELY, adds Mrs. Schatz, 78, at least some of the distortion in the image of the aged is deliberate age-ism. For years she has waged a small and most ineffective campaign against, for example, television comedians who get yuks out of insulting old people. "Johnny Carson has this terrible skit about an elderly person. Jonathan Winters likes to dress up as an old woman and squint his eyes." In both cases the imitations make the aged look like blithering fools.

And the distortion doesn't end with these TV celebrities. "We are the last of the fair-game minorities," says Dora Schatz. "The blacks, the Jews, (even the Mafia) have won the battle against belittlement. But people apparently think old people are too doddering to complain."

Therefore, the elderly are open targets for sex jokes (Playboy Magazine recently loves equating impotency and ugliness with age), cartoonists (splay the knees and make them keep repeating: "Eh, how's that again?") and even news reports (every good feature has to have a quote from an oldie feeding pigeons who usually drags his words and invariably has a "twinkle" in his gray eye).

Such fun-poking, of course, follows the familiar pattern of age-ism. That is to say it may be unconsciously defaming. Which is small comfort to the recipients. "Image is everything," says the aged. "People treat you as they think of you."

So it is. And sadly. Since many people think the aged are senile, stupid, wobbly-kneed, cantankerous and impossible, some age-ism discrimination may be a natural result.

LIKE CLOTHING: "Why," asks Mrs. Schatz, "doesn't somebody think of the old when they make clothes — I can't wear miniskirts and shoes with three-inch heels." Or food: The old spend a third of their income for food against a national average of 15 per cent, part of the reason being they do not need the large family-size market packages and thus must buy the smaller, more expensive piecemeal items.

Or governmental concern: Of the $50 billion administration officials say is "spent on" the old every year, all but $1.2 billion is in the form of insurance policies (Social Security and Medicare) which the elderly have actually helped pay for themselves.

Age-ism is even practiced by the newspaper industry, says one elderly activist in the Philadelphia Senior Center: "For years we've tried to get the local newspapers to print senior citizen news — in big type. And what happens? One of the local papers starts this column by a 10-year-old girl answering questions of pre-teenagers. Isn't that terrible? I mean, how do you think the older citizens feel about that?"

Children see their grandparents only occasionally... The image they have of the old, therefore, is second hand. They no longer know what old people are really like.

Not good. But then, most older citizens are used to such things. Four thousand Americans reach 65 every day, (the age threshold is one of the most potentially significant in the nation — futurists predict 28 million retired people in the United States by the year 2000, virtually all of them eligible voters), yet theirs is the back seat on the bus of national priorities.

America is learning to understand and live with its races, its young, even its women — but the subculture of the aged, as Dora Schatz grumbles, remains "alien and ignored."

Sealed proposals will be received by the Village of Arlington Heights, Illinois, at the Municipal Building, 123 South Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois, and will be publicly opened at 10:00 A.M. on March 12, 1973, for Refuse Collection.

The Village of Arlington Heights reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, to waive informality in bidding and to accept the proposal deemed by the Village Board to be the most favorable to the interests of the Village.

Specifications may be picked up at the Finance Department, Purchasing Division, weekdays 8:30 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. K. M. DUNDER, Village Clerk. Published in Arlington Heights Herald, February 12, 1973.

Public Notice
STATE OF ILLINOIS) COUNTY OF COOK) SS
APPLICATION UNDER THE ILLINOIS MOTOR CARRIER OF PROPERTY LAW
Before the Illinois Commerce Commission
Docket No. 9900 MC-Sub 3
To Whom It May Concern:
The undersigned Applicants hereby give notice to the public that they have filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission under and by virtue of the Illinois Motor Carrier of Property Law, as amended, an application for transfer of authority as a Common Carrier under Certificate No. 111 CC 9900 MC-C from Richard Bandringa, d/b/a Bandringa Movers, whose address is 1623 W. 107th Street, Chicago, Illinois, transferor, to Thomas A. Clements, d/b/a Clements Movers, whose address is 7048 Barry Avenue, Rosemont, Illinois, transferee.
Such Certificate, sought to be transferred, authorizes the following: As a Common Carrier, commodities: Household goods and office equipment to or from any point within the State of Illinois; also, household goods and office equipment within a fifty (50) mile radius from the base point of operation designated as 7153 South Halsted Street, Chicago, Illinois, and to transport such property to or from any point outside of such authorized area of operation for a shipper or shippers within such area.
The Transferee Thomas A. Clements, d/b/a Clements Movers, now holds no other authority to operate as a motor carrier of property. The initial hearing on the application will be held at 2:00 o'clock P.M. in the offices of the Illinois Commerce Commission at 180 No. LaSalle St., 19th Floor, Chicago, Illinois, on the 27th day of February, 1973.

Dated this 5th day of February A.D. 1973.
Applicants' Attorney and Address: Routhman & Lawley, 300 Reisch Bldg, Springfield, Illinois.
Applicants' Names and Addresses: Richard Bandringa d/b/a Bandringa Movers, Transferor, 1623 W. 107th Street, Chicago, Illinois.
Thomas A. Clements, d/b/a Clements Movers, Transferee, 7048 Barry Ave., Rosemont, Illinois.
Transferee's principal place of business in Illinois will be: 7048 Barry Ave., Rosemont, Illinois.
Published in Palatine Herald, February 12, 1973.

Notice to Bidders
The Village of Elk Grove Village is accepting sealed bids for extension of approximately 341 feet of an 8-inch sanitary sewer line and 234 feet of a 12-inch water main. Specifications may be obtained from the Village Engineer at 301 Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, Illinois. Bids will be opened at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, March 1, 1973, at the Municipal Building.
GEORGE C. CONEY, Director of Finance. Published in the Elk Grove Herald, February 12, 1973.

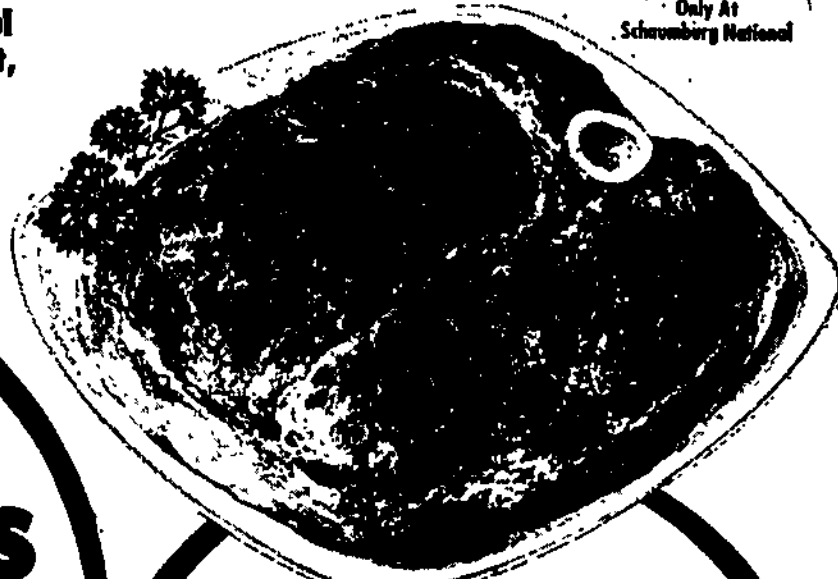

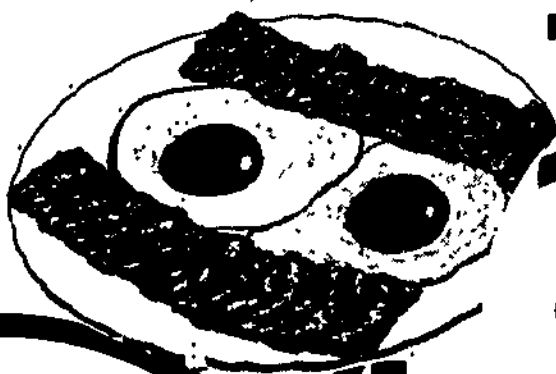

Hire the veteran and you hire experience.

... people with solid, practical experience in dozens of fields. And hundreds of specialties. From clerk-typists to truck drivers. Painters to programmers. Mechanics to machinists. Many have months of special training in addition to their education. Plus the self-discipline, determination and loyalty that make them assets to your company. And funds for additional on-the-job training are available under the G.I. Bill.

For help in hiring veterans, contact your local office of the State Employment Service; for on-the-job training information, see your local Veterans Administration office.

Don't forget. Hire the vet.

Before I joined the
Savings Plan, all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 3 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

YOUR GUIDE TO SECURITY THROUGH EMPLOYMENT

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Herald Newspaper does not knowingly accept HELP WANTED ads that indicate a preference based on age from employers covered by the AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT. HELP WANTED headings directed specifically toward either men or women are used merely for the convenience of our readers, to let them know which jobs have historically been more attractive to persons of one sex than the other. The placement of an ad under a heading is not in itself an expression of a preference, limitation, specification or discrimination based on sex. For further information contact the Wage and Hour Division Office of U.S. Department of Labor at 4032 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Illinois. Telephone (312) 736-2909.

Hersey matmen win another loop title

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

The story's title was the same. But after that, they pretty much threw away the script.

It was the third running of the Mid-Suburban League's conference wrestling tournament, a gathering dominated by Hersey on each of the past two occasions. And, as expected, the Huskies were at it again this time when the loop's 12 teams gathered on the Arlington mats Friday and Saturday.

Terry Ruddy

Gary Evans

Accumulating enough points even before the finals to maintain its conference supremacy, coach Tom Porter's outfit looked little different from the Hersey teams which marched on to state titles in each of the past two campaigns.

That was before the finals Saturday. The closing combat turned out to be a string of wild and exciting championship bouts for the most part, full of heroics and laden with surprises. When it was over, the Huskies were still in firm command of team laurels, but the individual plaudits were quite widely spread around.

To be sure, all the heroics and drama were not limited to the title action. The antics of such as Hersey's Pat Hart, Arlington's John Norton, Conant's Bob Fisher, Prospect's Randy DiVito, Fremd's Steve McGuinn, Schaumburg's Glen Komerska, Elk Grove's Tom Balmes and Rolling Meadows' Mike Caravella did much to set the stage for the wild windups.

Last winter the Huskies captured five of the individual crowns and let the other 11 clubs scrap over the rest. Saturday, Hersey again had five grapplers battle their way into the finals but this time only the last two survived as Wheeling, Schaumburg and the host Cards each snatched away a pair of titles.

Forest View, Elk Grove, Conant and Glenbard all got in on the championship picture, too. And with all but one of the 12 clubs represented in the finals, the trend appeared to be toward a more balanced circuit, quite likely at the expense of Hersey's overwhelming previous superiority.

"I don't know what happened," shrugged Porter afterwards. "We were moving along pretty well and then . . . crash. I can't say I'm totally satisfied although I don't want to take anything away from the kids. They came down here to win the team trophy and I don't think they left much doubt about that."

"We just have to regroup and start aiming for the district now," he added.

That Hersey already had 75½ points going into the last session more than 30 ahead of the rest of the pack, did indeed make the finals anticlimactic. But what Porter was thinking, is that things were good but they could have been a great deal better.

First his 90 pounder Joey Rizza suffered his first conference defeat in the finals — at the hands of a foe he had stuck only a week earlier.

Then his 105 pounder Kurt Weisenborn was soundly topped after maintaining an unbeaten streak through his first 20 bouts of the season.

Later Hart was also turned back decisively at 115. It wasn't until the second-to-last match of the evening that Jeff Reinhard brought some individual kudos to the Hersey camp with an impressive shutout at 185.

Kevin Pancratz followed up with a pin at heavyweight, jacking his season slate to 25-0. The victories by Pancratz and Reinhard were among the few unsurprising verdicts of the whole evening session.

The win at 95 was posted by Falcon John Gross and it was Gary Evans of the Saxons triumphing at 105. Both were second seeded.

At 112 precedent was further shattered with neither of the top two seeds around and Terry Ruddy giving the Saxons their second title in succession.

The next couple of champs — Craig Mann of Elk Grove at 119 and John Beck of Conant at 128 — were as expected, although their hard-scraping opponents Mike Savagnago of GBN won at 138 by were not according to schedule.

pinning the top seed. At 138 Kent Lewis of the Wildcats maintained his top billing rather methodically but after that the action revved up quite a bit as Arlington's Tom Patterson, Wheeling's Ken Smith at 155 and Card Steve Frankovic at 167 came through.

Frankovic's triumph capped an overall team performance by the hosts that probably cut into Hersey's thunder as much as anything. Jack Cullip's band had not been impressive in recent weeks and especially after one of their top seeds was written off the day the tourney opened, the Cardinals were not pegged to make much noise over the weekend.

Through the efforts of Patterson, Frankovic, Norton and the rest, Arlington came on to tie for second in the tournament and take second place in the overall rankings outright. It was quite a rise from last year's eighth place wind-up.

Here's the tournament story by weight:

90 Pounds — When Rizza disposed of Gross in their first round during dual meet action just a week earlier, it pretty much tended to settle the matter for Saturday. Gross had other ideas, though, even after trailing 4-3 going into the final period. Rizza let him up and took him down almost immediately to move up 6-4, but as time wound down Gross reversed things and he was close to pinning the top seed as the buzzer sounded, winning 9-6.

Gross had gained the finals by pinning

DANDY DISTANCE MAN Ed Fitzsimmons gulps some air while flashing to victory in the 200-yard freestyle Saturday at Marmion Military Academy, site of the third annual Suburban Catholic Conference meet.

"Fitz" glided to an easy victory in the 400 and then came back two events later to anchor a thrilling win in the 400 free relay. St. Viator won on both levels.

Dunkings for St. Viator coaches after triumphs in league meets

by PAUL LOGAN
Swimming Editor

John Fleck and Bob Regan experienced some blurred vision late Saturday afternoon. Recovery from this "malady" is quick, too quick for these two.

You see, Fleck is the varsity swimming coach for St. Viator with Regan handling the sophomore team. Both wear glasses and both received the victory dunking at Marmion Military Academy after the third annual Suburban Catholic Conference championships.

"I love it," remarked the Lions' young head man. "It's fun."

His youngsters flipped him in — completely clothed — after dashing the hopes of the rest of the SCC with a 91-point production. Coming the closest was Notre Dame with 70. Then followed Marmion (62), Marist (21) and St. Patrick (15). St. Viator's frosh-soph team also won big.

Victory was especially sweet for Fleck as he explained:

"I felt very strongly that we had to win. I felt bad last year, my first year coaching here, and the first year they had lost it (a conference meet). We lost by two points."

The Lions avenged the school's only conference loss in eight tries with some impressive showings, especially by distance man Ed Fitzsimmons. This lanky junior was the meet's only double winner, taking the 200-yard freestyle in 1:53.2 (tying a conference meet mark) and the 400 free with 4:07.5.

"Fitz" also surged in the 400 free relay with an anchor leg split of 49.7. Fleck called that performance the highlight of the meet. Trailing heading in his portion of the event, Fitzsimmons overtook his Marmion competitor on the final turn home and touched him out.

Having the last event end up this way was especially pleasing to Fleck for Marmion had "won that relay last year by just a touch and that beat us by two points," he recalled. "We wanted that relay pretty bad."

Joining in the relay win with "Fitz" were Mike Salerno, Chris Kenny and Jeff Iversen. Their time was 3:27.6, just off state qualifying.

Joining Fitzsimmons win individual wins were Salerno in the backstroke (56.8) and Kevin Szarabajka in the breaststroke (1:06.6). Both were heavily favored to take their events.

This twosome also led off the 200 medley relay. Jim Wolf and Joe McMahon finished the work with a winning time of 1:45.8.

Wolf accounted for the team's only second as he held on to just touch out teammate Monte McCollum in the butterfly with a 58.8. McCollum had 58.9.

Also posting thirds were Wolf in the 200 individual medley (2:16.6), McMahon in the 50 freestyle (24.0), Iversen in 100 freestyle (52.8) and Tom Onstot in diving (349.80).

St. Viator's overall depth continued to show its strength with plenty of fourths, fifths and sixths:

Fourth — Jerry Tully in diving

(298.76), Chris Kenny in 200 freestyle (1:59.6), Iversen in the 50 freestyle (24.0) and Joe Schroeder in the 100 breaststroke (1:10.1).

Fifths — Kenny in the 400 freestyle (4:26.0) and McCollum in the 100 backstroke (1:05.3).

Sixths — Bob Silvester in the 100 breaststroke (1:12.8) and McMahon in the 100 freestyle (54.4).

"This year I was dunked before at Proviso," recalled Fleck. "I hope to be dunked again at the district."

St. Viator, Arlington and Deerfield are the favorites in that big meet which is two weeks away.

(See complete varsity scoring, St. Viator feature, more meet pictures and details on the Lions' frosh-soph win in Thursday's special swim section.)

South champions again

No champagne but Prospect does celebrate

by ART MUGALIAN

What, no champagne? The question was on everybody's lips "I thought you were going to bring it."

"But, I thought you were going to bring it."

No matter. The Prospect Knights are all underage anyway.

Bill Slayton's boys may be short on years, but they certainly aren't lacking in basketball skills. They displayed them once again for their enthusiastic home court fans Friday night by dumping Schaumburg 75-32 in a genuine no-contest match. Prospect's win clinched the title in the South Division of the Mid-Suburban League.

Even though they had to go sans champagne, the Knights whooped it up afterwards in the locker room. "This is the third year in a row we've done it," Slayton said of his squad. "There's a little pride involved in it. At the beginning of the season we set up a few priorities and this is the main one."

Prospect took its first step toward repeating as MSL champs with, for one thing, an expert shooting demonstration. Showing off their virtuoso talents were Brian Groth on the long jumper, Tom Bergen with his patented 15-foot hook shot, and Will Freeman with an assortment of jumpers. Bergen, with 20, led both teams.

Schaumburg utilized their customary game-slowing tactics, helping only to hold down Prospect's scoring opportunities. More often than not, the Saxons lost control of the ball while trying to find someone under the basket. When they did connect with an open man, all too often he missed his shot.

"We had some good shots but we weren't hitting," Saxon coach Joe Breault lamented. "Bergen may have intimidated them. They knew he was sitting back there waiting."

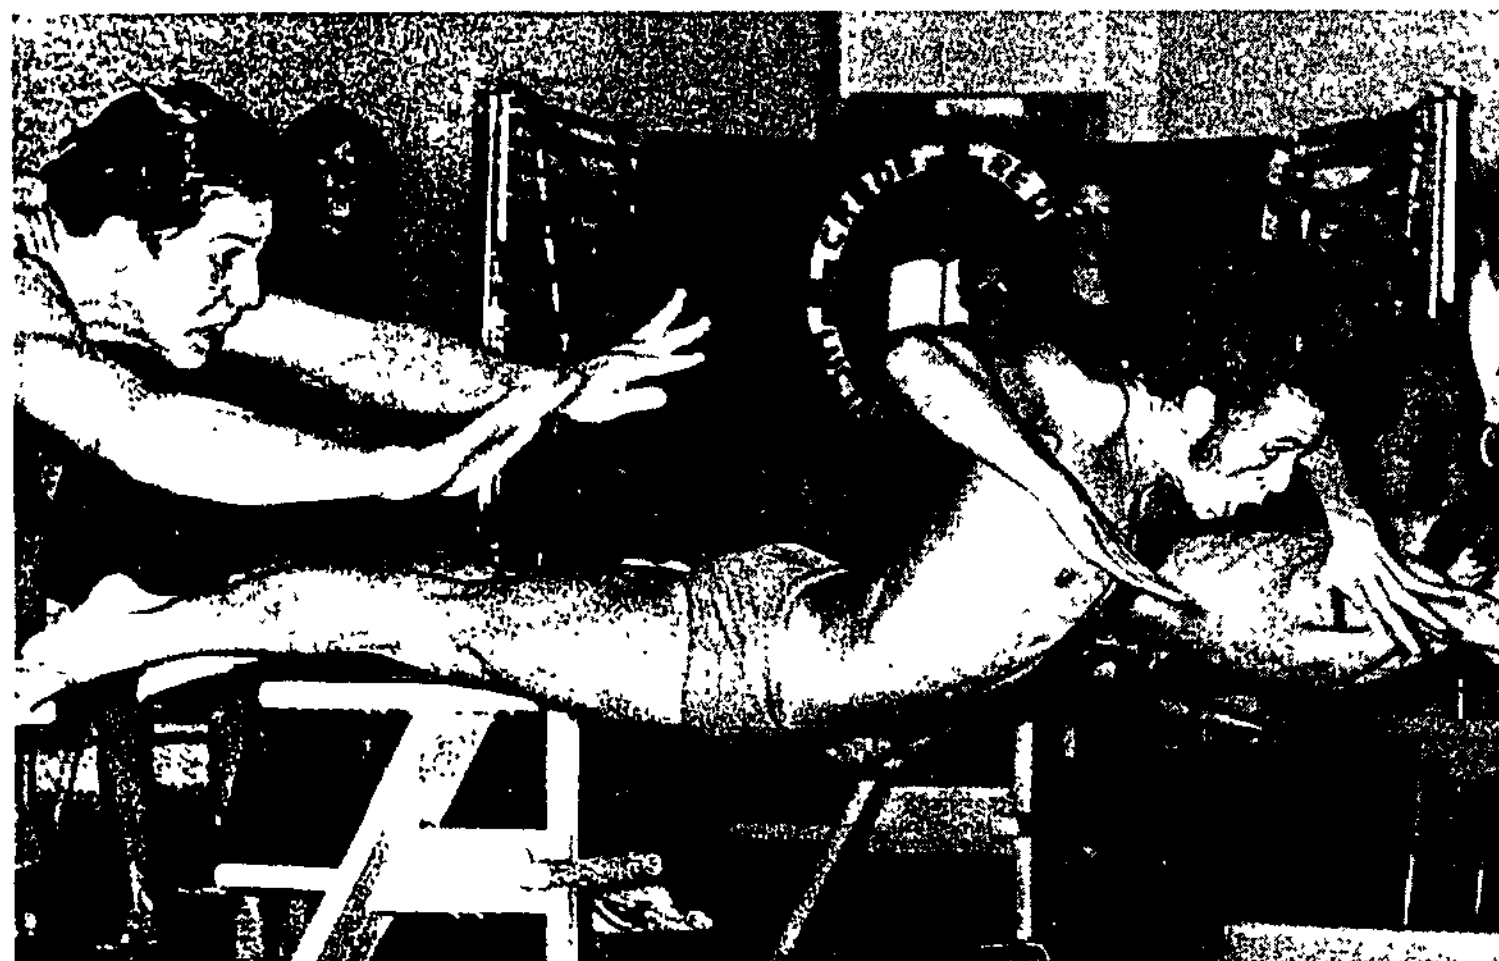

The 6-foot-9 Bergen was tough under the boards, as always. But so was Bob Bostrom, the Knights' 6-foot-5 forward. Prospect dominated the rebounding game thoroughly, rarely allowing Schaumburg a second shot.

More than a minute and a half passed in the first quarter before Freeman got

Harper shots won't fall in 66-48 reversal

by STAFF WRITER

Both Harper and Triton had four basketball players in double figures, but the latter's foursome outscored the former's, 66-48.

The Hawks, lacking the usual scoring punch of two players, dropped the Skyway Conference game, 76-81, Saturday night at the Warriors' smallish home court.

"We have problems when these two don't score," said Roger Bechtold, Harper's coach, while referring to his two top guns — Steve Heldt and Scott Felge. Heldt had 13 and Felge 11, but many of their outside bombs were not finding the mark.

"They played a 3-2 zone and we just couldn't hit from outside," continued Bechtold. "On a given night we would have blown that zone out."

The taller Warriors dared the Hawks to bomb away and then waited underneath for the misfires. They out-rebounded the visitors 44-31.

"I didn't feel like our kids went out and were ready to play the game," said Bechtold. After hitting on just eight of 36 attempts in the first half and trailing 32-18, the Hawks just couldn't make up the difference.

"They did play better the second," he admitted. Harper cut the margin to 10 with a few minutes left, but couldn't overcome the tall boys of Triton.

The loss ended a modest three-game winning streak and dropped the Hawks' overall record to 9-14. They are 7-5 in the league. Triton is 8-3.

Harper will tackle contending Wau-bensee at Wheeling High School on Tuesday at 8 p.m. Wau-bensee's 9-2 and is the only other SC team capable of overtaking Lake County (11-1). "I think we'll play better than we did against Triton," he added.

Fremd's 4th period surge sends Hersey reeling to 58-50 setback

by JIM COOK

Chalk another one up for Snow White and the seven dwarfs.

Snow White in this case was Fremd's blond super-sub Terry Whiteley and the seven dwarfs, appropriately enough, were his comparatively under-sized teammates.

Comparatively is essential since anyone who plays against Hersey's 6-foot-11 Dave Corzine and 6-foot-6 Greg Hale is dwarfed.

But what the Vikings lacked in physical attributes, they more than supplanted in quickness, composure and defense while spanking the Huskies, 58-50.

Whiteley was summoned by Fremd coach Leon Kasuboske immediately after Corzine had been tagged with his fourth personal foul and with 4:57 still showing on the scoreboard clock.

"I told the kids to take our game to Hersey," Kasuboske later revealed. "I'd seen too many other teams try to play their game away from Corzine and it just didn't work. I told them to drive the lane and hit the boards and not be discouraged when he (Corzine) blocked their shots."

Whiteley translated the strategy to the court where he filled in admirably for Bob Youman. At the outset of the fourth quarter, Terry drew the Vikings into a 37-37 deadlock by converting an offensive rebound and pulling down an errant Hersey shot to start the break that found teammate Doug Mize gashing a cripple that afforded Fremd's first lead in the game, 39-37.

Seconds later, Whiteley intercepted a pass from his center-line post on Fremd's effective full-court press and fired a perfect strike to streaking Mark Funk who increased the margin to four, 41-37.

With 5:20 remaining, Snow White snagged his fifth rebound of the period and his contact with Corzine on the play found Hersey's jumbo giant disbelievingly on his way to the bench with his fifth personal.

Whiteley swished both ends of the one-and-one bonus free-throw situation, added another pair moments later and then watched as Bob Frank put on a second and third-effort show under the Vikings' bucket that netted four quick points and a 51-41 Fremd cushion that was never threatened down the stretch.

"Our defense did the job, too," Kasuboske added. The Vikings entered the affair as the second stingiest overall team in the Mid-Suburban and upheld their reputation by limiting the Huskies to 50 with an air-tight 2-1-2 zone.

A total of 46 fouls were whistled in the physically brutal contest which eventually claimed four players. Rival play-making guards Kevin Lephart of Hersey and Fremd's Funk were especially handicapped as each wore the burden of four personals at halftime.

Hersey literally held the upper hand behind Corzine's nine, John Kanellis' eight and Tim Conard's half-dozen points before the intermission. While Fremd was battling Hersey even in the rebound department, the Huskies carried a 27-23 bulge to the lockerroom at the half by shooting 41 per cent from the floor to the Vikes' 35.

The Huskies appeared headed for a sweep of their two-game series with Fremd when Corzine, Kanellis and Hale boosted the visitor's margin to 33-23 with 5:04 left in period three, but Kasuboske put in the call to Whiteley moments later and the Vikings lived happily ever after.

"A win like this over Hersey has got to be a big boost for us," Kasuboske said. "It not only helps us prepare for the regionals, but I think a game like this even helps our lower levels when they see us beat a team with as great a stature and reputation as Hersey has."

Kanellis emerged as the game's top scorer with 21 points spiced by a one-man field goal show during the waning minutes that found him gunning for Hersey's final eight points and 13 of its last 15. Corzine completed the Huskies' double-figure list with 12.

Fremd spread its scoring wealth around to include Youman's team-lead-the Knights on the board with a long jumper. Then buckets by Groth, Bergen, and another by Freeman boosted the score to 8-0 before the Saxons lit the lights.

Schaumburg would move down the court, led by their little playmaker, Artie Abraham, and set up for the open man. The Knights' rugged defense forced countless turnovers on bad passes and travelling violations. The turnovers, combined with the Saxons' slowed-down game, resulted in only six Schaumburg shots in the first quarter.

Prospect opened up the game by applying a tenacious half-court press, trapping Abraham and the Saxons' other small guard, Dave Hill.

"We thought they tried to hold the ball on us," Slayton offered. "We talked about that all week. We wanted to go in and change the game."

That they did. The Knights piled up a 37-10 halftime margin, owing to 10 first half points from Groth and Freeman, and 12 from Bergen.

But that was only the beginning. Prospect opened up a 48-point lead before the third quarter ended, aided by a scoring surge from Bostrom. The Knights didn't give Schaumburg a chance to slow down the proceedings.

"It's the lesser of two evils," Breault reasoned, referring to the slow-paced game he had mapped out. "If we tried to run with them it would have been a worse score than it was. We can't run with them. We're just trying to do our best."

"We missed our shots and they made theirs," Breault continued. "They pulled ahead early and that ruins the strategy. There's not much point in holding the ball when you're down 30 or 40 points."

Closing rush gives Wheeling another victory

by DON FRISKE

Ken Arneson, Rolling Meadows coach, finally had the starting lineup and game plan that he had been looking for since Christmas.

It worked and kept the Mustangs in the game against the Wheeling Wildcats last Friday night until the fourth quarter.

The Wildcats, under coach Ted Ecker, outscored the Mustangs 18-4 in the final period and outlasted their hosts to win the game, 60-43.

Arneson's starting lineup change was to move Pat Geegan from his previous guard position to a forward.

"I'd been looking for the right man to replace Pat at guard and I finally found him last week," stated Arneson. Gary Olson, who scored 14 points in the previous week's game, was Arneson's choice.

Geegan and Olson finished the game with nine points apiece and Geegan had the same number of rebounds to lead the Mustangs in that category.

The Mustangs and Wildcats battled all the way into the fourth quarter, but Meadows was behind at the end of each quarter. The third quarter ended with Wheeling owning only a slim 42-39 lead.

"We were down and flat, coming off a big win against Arlington," explained Wheeling's Ecker.

"There was big improvement shown in our boys," said Arneson. "We played well and at least we didn't get blown out of the game."

Wildcats George Kaage and Bill Pickler were the thorns in the Mustang attack. Kaage scored 17 of his game-high 21 points in the first half and finished the game with 17 rebounds. Pickler scored eight points in the fourth and deciding quarter.

The Wildcats crept out to an 18-12 lead at 1:34 in the first period and kept about a four to six point edge on the Mustangs throughout the game.

They built their lead up to nine points 34 seconds before half-time on a three point play by Kaage, 33-24.

The Mustangs outscored the Wildcats 12-9 in the third quarter and they closed the gap to 39-37 at 1:48 in the game period on a 12 foot jump shot by John Hogan.

Gary Lesley, Meadows' high scorer with 12 points, scored all four of the Mustangs points in the last quarter as they were stopped cold by the Wildcats.

"We finally wore them down and played better defense in the last quarter," commented Ecker. "Meadows executed their plays very well. They hustled and took their time. We finally got together in the last quarter."

Arneson had been looking for a better offensive attack than he had been getting.

"We finally got some offensive teamwork out there," said Arneson, "but we were having a little trouble against their zone defense."

The final statistics were close, with Wheeling getting the edge on almost all of them. The Wildcats out-rebounded their opponents, 37-32, and 20-11 in the second half.

The Wildcats shot 40.3 per cent from the floor while the Mustangs hit at a 34.8 per cent clip. Wheeling had 16 personal fouls; Rolling Meadows finished with 12. The Wildcats also had 23 more attempted field goals than the Mustangs.

There were only 21 turnovers and 28 free throw attempts for both teams combined.

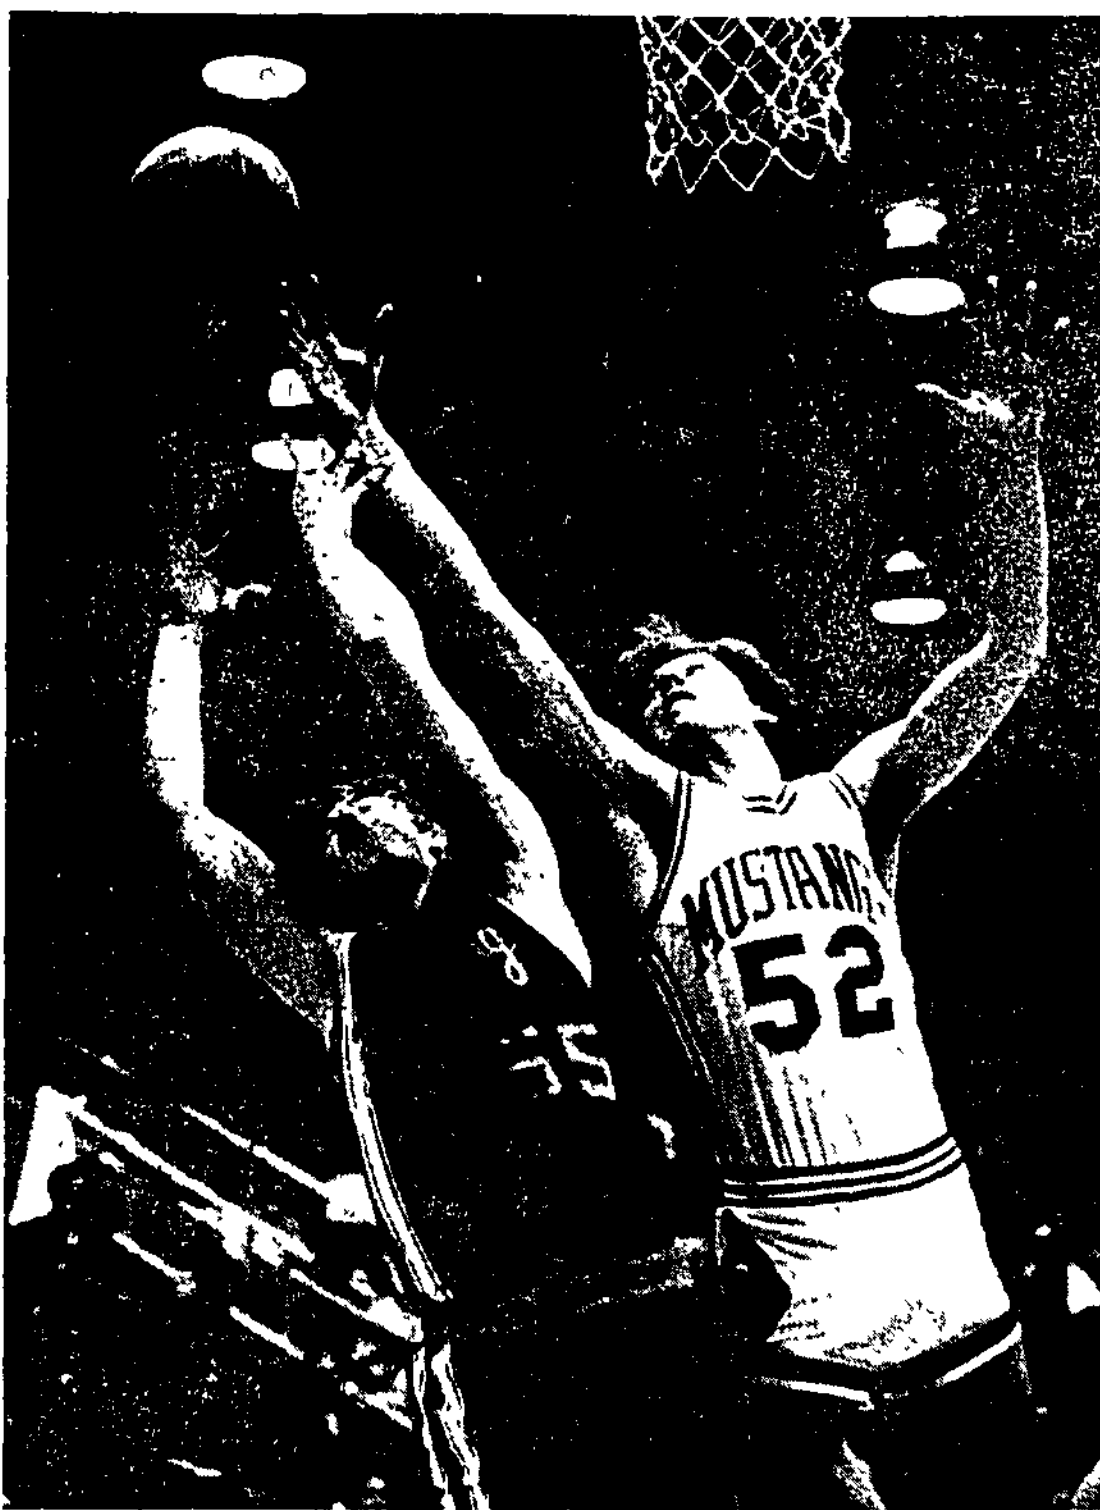

The Mustangs did, however, hold the edge in free throw accuracy. They shot for 64.7 per cent, while the Wildcats hit at 54.5.

The Wildcat win moved them within one game of division-leading Arlington, who was idle on Friday night. The Mustangs are still trying to fight their way out of last place in the North Division, with only one conference victory.

Sander pulls down 32 rebounds

Conant bumps Forest View, 53-47

by LARRY EVENHART

The spirit of Christmas still prevailed at Forest View Friday night, seven weeks late.

Both the Falcons and Conant's visiting Cougars were in generous moods, playing a somewhat sloppy game for this late in the season.

One guy who didn't feel like playing Santa Claus, though, was Conant's Roger Sander. He was enough to make the difference for a 53-47 Cougar victory that left him in a tie for second place in the Mid-Suburban League's South Division with a 7-4 record (11-6 overall). Forest View dropped to 9-5 and 9-10, respectively.

"One word," smiled Conant coach Dick Redlinger afterward in summing up the game — "Sander. He was something, wasn't he?"

That couldn't be denied. Sander, a 6-foot-3 forward well in excess of 200 solid pounds, was credited by student managers as pulling down 32 rebounds, which is a school record. It seemed a legitimate total, too. For good measure, Roger tossed in 16 points to take scoring honors. Just about all the rebounds and points were the result of his usual fierce determination.

But other than Sander's performance, Teammate Steve Irion's 14 points and 13 rebounds, and Nick Haaning's 13 points for Forest View, there wasn't much else worth writing home about.

Both sides were guilty of as many turnovers as you'd expect to see on opening night. Forest View shot a horrendous 27 per cent from the field (Conant had 42 per cent), there were 39 fouls whistled, and the Cougars made only 11 of 23 free throws — a continuation of a season-long problem for them.

Perhaps the biggest single factor besides Sander was that the Falcons' usually hot-shooting guard Tom Mueller was held to two points. It wasn't that Mueller

At Rolling Meadows

Pat Hofer had the high game and series when she rolled 213-549 last week in the Wednesday Morning Melodies league at Rolling Meadows-Fair Lanes bowl.

Other series-high game scores were Ila Hart 500-188, Marilyn Graham 480-163, Donna Donges 476-167, Barb Bade 472-178 and Honey Reese 468-173.

Some individual high games were Melinda Van Allen 181, Eileen Darnstaedt 177, Carol Webb 178, Elly Holzer, 161 and Marilyn Elliott 156.

The team high series and high game were both recorded by the Alley Cats who rolled 2,220 and 787.

had that bad a night — but he was on the bench much more than he is accustomed to because of early foul trouble. Mueller had averaged 20 points a game for the last six, of which Forest View had won five.

If the game lacked artistic excellence, it made up for it in excitement. Conant nursed only small leads until pulling away late on free throws — even though it made only five of 13 in the fourth quarter.

Actually, Conant was never behind after the opening minute, although its lead was cut to one point four different times in the second half. The last time was with 4:45 left when it was 44-43 on Haaning's basket from the side.

But Dick Southworth rattled 21 seconds later with a 17-footer for Conant. After both sides went through a cold spell, Sander slipped in a layup and two free throws for an insurmountable 51-43 cushion with 1:08 left.

In the first quarter nearly everyone contributed for both sides and neither led by more than two until midway through the second quarter when three straight Irion baskets staked Conant to a 16-10 lead. Haaning kept the Falcons close, but Sander put in two rebound shots. Lou Leuzzi's free throws for Forest View with a second left in the half made it 23-19 at intermission.

'Deserve to be No. 1': Wasielewski

Marist red-hot in win over Lions

by JEFF RAWIS
St. Viator Coach Ed Wasielewski only had words of praise for the Marist Redskins Friday night after they destroyed his Lions charges 75-50 in Arlington Heights.

After watching the confrontation, which from the outset was no contest at all, Wasielewski said, "According to the performance tonight, I feel that the Marist squad should be number one." That's the position they currently occupy in a tight Suburban Catholic Conference race.

He remarked that the Redskins have nice size, good experience, good balance and are good shooters, and they should win the conference championship.

Mike Cook

Through the first three quarters while the Redskins regulars were still playing, they hit a miraculous percentage from the field, hitting 21 of 31 shots from the floor for more than 70 per cent accuracy. In the second stanza alone they made eight of ten shots for 80 per cent accuracy.

Scoring was spread evenly among four of the five regulars with ace gunner Russ Rade leading his teammates with a total of 19 points. Rade hit 70 per cent of his shots.

The three other Redskins also hit in double figures, Tom Malloy with 13, John McKeague with 11 and Tom Richardson with 10.

All the Redskins who dressed for the contest were able to enter the tilt at one time or another during the 32 minutes of action and all but three figured in the scoring.

The Redskins combined for their highest-scoring endeavor this season.

About the Lions, Wasielewski said, "We met one of the better teams and played as well as could have been expected."

Against lesser teams than the Redskins, the Lions had had trouble all season primarily because of three factors: miscues resulting in turnovers, personal fouls allowing their opponents many more shots and resulting in the forcing out of some of their key players at crucial moments, and poor shooting from the floor.

Friday night was no different than in the previous encounters.

The Lions allowed the Redskins 30 charity tries and they made 19 of them, compared to 12 of 18 for the hosting netters.

The Lions committed 23 turnovers in the contest and, for the whole ball game, they only were able to hit 39 per cent.

The only bright spot in the closing home contest of the season for the Lions was that Mike Cook, senior starter, was able to collect 20 points for the game on seven buckets and six of seven from the free throw line. Sixteen of Cook's points came in the second half.

The Lions only managed to stay close to their guests in the slow-moving first four minutes of the contest.

With two free throws by Dave Hutch-son, the Lions knotted the score at 6-6 at 5:04.

The Redskins scored the next five points before Cook scored on a jump shot and then the Redskins closed out the first stanza with two more baskets and two free throws to take a 17-6 lead.

That was the closest the Lions were for the remainder of the game.

In the second quarter, the Redskins stretched the lead to 22 points, outscoring the Lions at one point 14 to 2, before the Lions scored again near the end of the half.

The second half continued the way the first half left off. Twice in the game, the Redskins widened the margin to 35 points at 72-37 and 74-39.

The Lions only managed to bring the score back down to 25 points when the starters and most of the second string netters had been replaced for the Redskins.

Lion matmen finish third in league meet

St. Viator claimed two individual titles and three second place prizes while finishing third as a unit in the Suburban Catholic conference wrestling meet conducted at Notre Dame Saturday.

Carnet was team champion, as expected, of the eight-team gathering although their margin of victory was not nearly as wide as expected. They just nudged the hosting Dons, 66-64.

Notre Dame and the Corsairs each grabbed a trio of individual crowns, as did Holy Cross and the Crusaders finished fourth in the team rankings behind the Lions 57 1/2 to 46.

Viator's champs were Tom Marwitz at 98 pounds and Mike Mooney at 155, a repeater from last year. Taking runner-up honors for John Zid's crew were John Marwitz, Dave Nozicka and Ralph Bosch. See Wednesday for details on the Suburban Catholic meet.

Hersey wrestlers repeat

Roy Carlstrom of Meadows and then easing by third-ranked Keith McCreary of Conant 1-0. Rizza topped Paul Bordenkircher 12-8 and then walloped Grenadier Jim Heffern after Heffern had upset Wheeling's fourth seeded Bob Daulton 12-4. Carlstrom fought back to annex third place.

185 Pounds — Evans captured his second conference title in a row by breaking a 3-3 deadlock in the late going and then pouring it on. The once-beaten Saxon triumphed 13-3 eventually after earlier turning back Fisher 4-3 and pinning 'Cat Tom Kozlmar, Weisenborn had gone into the finale with impressive 15-5 verdicts over Knight Jim Bethel and Pete Pectekaj of Glenbard. Fisher, meanwhile, 6-7 going into the tourney, bounced back with wins over Kozlmar and Pectekaj to capture third place.

112 Pounds — Before Jan. 1 Ruddy wasn't even wrestling varsity. Friday and Saturday, he didn't yield a point in surging to first place. The third-seeded sophomore blanked Mike Oster of Fremd first and then shut out No. 2 ranked Roger Mattix before capturing a 7-0 decision in the finals over Bob Wahl of Palatine.

Wahl was not even seeded and had to work his way up with wins over Drew Taylor of GBN, fourth ranked Mike Czarnack of Hersey and top ranked Neal Kendall of Wheeling. Mattix later took third place with an overtime win over Kendall.

119 Pounds — Mann successfully defended his title by fending off Viking Dave Motta in one of the more closely contested struggles of the night. Mann picked up his two tallies on a second-period reversal and hung on the rest of the way to remain undefeated after 18 bouts this season. He turned back Dwayne Gordon of Conant and Mustang Gary Ahr along the way while Motta reached the showdown with wins over Panther Chris Nunnery and Pirate Rich Harold. Unseeded Harold, who had disposed of third-ranked Knight Al Weber after dropping Schaumburg's Rich Kuchnia, later battled through the wrestlingbacks for third place, nipping Ahr 2-1. Arlington's second-seeded Murray Reid did not make weigh-in.

124 Pounds — Beck came back strong from a 2-0 deficit to throttle 'Cat Mike Millay 8-2 in the title skirmish. Both were impressive going in, with Millay stopping Grove's Rick Morris and Huskie Mike Pusatera while Beck was handling Chuck Tuttle of Palatine and Fremd's John Lynch. Pusatera rallied to claim third prize.

132 Pounds — Savagnio, whose brother Frank was a fourth-place finisher in state last year, proved some of the talent has worn off by pinning top seeded Mike John Lynch at 3:30 in the big showdown. Savagnio built up a big lead early and was ahead 8-2 at the time of the fall and he had earlier pinned Wheeling's Jay Siezak and decisioned Cougar Dave Thomas. Lynch outpointed Falcon Dennis Beach and Card Dave Weber to reach the finals. Weber turned back Thomas 4-3 for third place.

138 Pounds — Lewis broke up a scoreless deadlock in third period for his 27th win in 30 bouts this season, 3-0, over Palatine's John Lonergan in the finals. His victims along the way included Jim Martin of Elk Grove and Komerska, both by shutout, while Lonergan felled Hersey's Keith Hahn and blanded Prospect's Randy Cherwin.

Komerska, who opened with 20-6 and 19-0 romps, rallied after losing to Lewis 5-0 by turning back Martin and then pinning Hahn in the third place bout.

115 Pounds — It turned out to be just as brutal as expected. Patterson claimed it by throttling Dan Szymkowiak of Conant, slipping by Wheeling's Steve Jorgenson and then clouting Hart in the finals 8-2. The final outcome overshadowed some terrific preliminaries including McGulinn's elimination of Knight Larry Maco (13-2-1) right off and Hart's subsequent overtime win over McGulinn, 11-7. Hart then had to tangle with Panther Lon Yearly (17-1) and come from behind to wrest away another overtime triumph 12-7.

McGulinn (19-3-2) came back afterwards to blank a weary Yearly 8-0 and then in the bracket's unprecedented third overtime hookup, drop Jorgenson (20-4-1) by a 9-5 count. Attesting to the ruggedness of this weight is the fact that Jorgenson, who was runnerup at 145 last year, could fare no better than fourth.

155 Pounds — Smith issued Steve Dolphin of Forest View only his second setback in 25 bouts 7-5 after a savage third period that had Dolphin leading 1-0 at the outset. Smith scored a reversal to go up 2-1, then Dolphin did the same to regain a 3-2 advantage. In the last 30 seconds Smith rebounded with another reversal and a near fall but even at the buzzer the Forest View entry was challenging with another two-point move. Smith had clubbed Jeff Sveinsson of Fremd 22-10 and pinned Conant's Larry Wood going in while Dolphin stopped Huskie Bob Noll and Balmes.

Balmes reached the quarterfinals with a pin and then an upset win over third seeded John Tuttle of the Pirates. Balmes had only wrestled five varsity matches previously, and lost three of them. Sveinsson, another rookie, finally claimed third place.

167 Pounds — After finishing second at this weight last year, Frankovic claimed top prize this time but only after another last second flurry allowed him to nose Prospect's Phil Audet, 9-6. Frankovic was down 4-0 to Audet at one time but escaped early in the third stanza. Then, with less than 30 seconds to go, he hit for four quick points to take the lead. Audet countered with less than 10 seconds to regain the lead but the Card entry struck one more time just before the buzzer to pull it out.

Frankovic knocked off Kevin Harrington of Meadows and pinned Viking Tom Bullen en route while Audet disposed of Palatine's Lon Marchel and Hersey's Brian Nelson. Nelson, in the meantime, humped off third-ranked Van Wintz of the Grove before getting beat himself and came back to garner third place honors with a 6-5 decision over Bullen.

185 Pounds — Reinhard remained untouched in conference and gave the Huskies their first title of the meet when he blanked Conant's Bill Koppert 5-0. His earlier wins were over Grenadier Jeff Steinbock and Card Ward Schell while Koppert advanced with verdicts over Pirate Bruce DeWyze and Mike Caravello of Rolling Meadows.

Caravello had gained a crack at Koppert by disposing of Falcon Mike Meade for the second time this season. Second-seeded Meade took a 20-3 slate in Caravello later lost a tangle to Schell, 4-3, in the skirmish for third place.

Heavyweight — Pancratz pinned his way through, polishing off first Tom Esmaill of Palatine, then Mike Petran of Forest View and finally Randy Divito of Prospect at 1:54 in the finale. Divito worked his way to the showdown by first pinning 'Cat Bob Wargo, then knocking off second seeded Tom Hoey of Fremd and then sticking fourth-seeded Norton. Nortonous tired with two impressive wins, including a 14-5 nod over Hoey to capture the third slot.

Boating safety program scheduled at boat show

Boat riding, gunnel riding, and riding the top of seat boats are three of the most dangerous boating practices, according to the U.S. Coast Guard Safety Detachment stationed at Fox Lake.

Safety in Boating will be discussed by Coast Guard officers at 7:30 p.m. each evening at their booth at the Midwest Boat Show, March 9-18, at the Arlington Park Exposition Center in Arlington Heights.

More than 100 marine dealers will display all kinds of pleasure craft and boating accessories at the show, a buyers market that attracts boating fans from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa as well as the Chicago and suburban area.

Informational programs on Coho Salmon fishing, Underwater Photography, a marine photography exhibition, and other entertainment features will highlight the Midwest Boat Show along with the safety lectures by the Coast Guard.

Gunnel Riding, the Coast Guard will point out, may be a hazard to boat operator and passengers alike. There's only a 50 per cent chance of survival if someone falls overboard. In falling, the operator's natural reaction is to pull the wheel in the direction of the fall which can put the boat into a hard turn, resulting in others falling in the water and a runaway boat.

Boat riding, though it looks like fun, can have serious consequences. Even at slow speeds, boats cannot stop fast enough to avoid striking someone who falls off the bow. Riding on top of the seat back while operating a boat also is dangerous because it is more difficult from this position to reach controls and avoid collisions.

The Coast Guard points out that running a boat so that it endangers life, limb, or property can incur a fine as much as $1,000 or a federal prison term or both.

Besides coming to the Midwest Boat Show, boaters may contact the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, or the United States Power Squadrons for information available about boating safety courses. Boating course schedules are available by calling 800-243-6000.

More than 100 marine dealers will display all the latest in pleasure craft and boating accessories at the 10-day show, billed as a "Buyers Market Place."

Midwest Boat Show hours are Friday, March 9, 6 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, March 10 and 11, noon to 10:30 p.m.; Monday through Friday, March 12-16, 4 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.; Saturday, March 17, noon to 10:30 p.m.; and Sunday, March 18, noon to 7 p.m.

Admission is $2.00 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Elk Grove bounces back; smashes Panthers, 76-33

by DWIGHT B. ESAU

Nothing much was at stake in the Elk Grove-Glenbard North rematch Friday night, but two big questions were answered, one for each team.

Question No. 1 whirling around in the mind of Grenadier Coach Bill Parmentier all week: Could his Grens rebound from two heart-breaking losses and being knocked out of the Mid-Suburban South race?

Question No. 2, occupying Panther mentor Terry True: were these Panthers putting it together now, as shown by that win over Schaumburg and a good game against Forest View?

Answer for Parmentier: A resounding yes. He prayed for "a win, any kind of win," and got a mind-boggling victory.

Which means that the answer for True was a shattering "No!"

It was a Grenadier laugher, 76-33. Parmentier was turned once more into an optimist as he prepares his team for the regionals in a couple of weeks. True, on the other hand, probably is just as glad he will leave the Mid-Suburban League next year, and mix it up in the Tri-County Conference.

Parmentier was happy with his team's performance, naturally, but he was surprised at the Panthers' bad game. "They looked so good against Schaumburg and Forest View, but not tonight," he commented. He was proudest of his defense. "We worked together nicely, and prevented them from penetrating, and we got so many turnovers that led to easy baskets that the boys had fun."

The Grens started as if they had written the zone defense book, which reads: Shut off the middle, follow the ball, keep the enemy away from the basket, and wait for him to make a mistake.

That's just what happened as Elk Grove raced out to a 15-0 lead before the Panthers managed a basket.

Time and again the frustrated Northmen tried to get the ball inside to either Mike Mellale or Mitch Paine, and usually the ball wound up in the hands of Bob Prince, Mike Millner, or Ken Pollitz.

The Grens then attacked the Panther basket swiftly before North could set up on defense, and the result was devastating.

It was 18-4 at the quarter and right away Parmentier, seeing the fire in his team's eyes, started to substitute to get everyone in on the fun. The Grens never paused, racing out to a 34-10 half-time lead behind Pollitz' 14 close-in points and Millner's 10 from farther out. When the Grenadiers got the first four baskets of the third quarter to make it 46-14, Parmentier then let Jeff Schroeder, Butler and others have a go at it.

The poor Panthers were not the team that gave Forest View fits for three quarters and whipped Schaumburg. They looked as if they didn't know where the basket was, on either end of the floor.

They only could score with any consistency in the fourth quarter, when Elk Grove's entire second string was in. Mellale was their only offensive weapon, with 12 points.

Marion Brooks, the Panthers' best all-around player, rarely got a shot at the basket, was consistently out-positioned for rebounds, and finished with only seven points.

"I was glad to give all the boys a chance, and it was good to see us playing together again," said Parmentier.

Pollitz poured in 22 points and single-handedly out-rebounded the entire Panther team. Millner, playing only half the time, tossed in 16 points, and Butler added 12, seven of them in the fourth quarter when he led the Grove offense.

The Grens now are 6-5 in the South Division and the Panthers have only won once.

Elk Grove's quickness on the fast break was amazing. Prince or Millner would steal a North pass, look up, and find one or two teammates, under full steam and all alone, heading for the Panther basket. On one occasion, both Jeff Stewart and Pollitz were downcourt 10 yards in front of the entire Panther team. Jeff, the kind quarterback that he is, let Ken take the cripple.

HEAVY TRAFFIC. Action is fierce under the boards as Conant's Roger Sander grabs one of his amazing total of 32 rebounds, despite the presence of Forest View's Rick Haaning, during the Cougars' 53-47 win. These two front-liners also were high scorers for their teams with Sander canning 16 points and Haaning 13. (Photo by Bob Finch)

Mid-Suburban's girls begin basketball play

Another first for the high school girls in Illinois and in the Mid-Suburban Conference got underway recently when all 12 of the schools in the conference competed in basketball.

This is the first year in which the Illinois High School Association has permitted high school girls to represent their school as a team and compete against other schools in this sport.

Each school is represented by one team in the Sports Day season schedule and will compete in four Sports Days.

Harper rolls to mat honors

Harper crowned four individual champions and placed no worse than third at any weight down the line while successfully defending their Skyway Conference title at the league tournament in Waukegan Saturday.

Bernie Kleiman, Kurt Ehling, Ron Orwerth and John Majors all captured top honors for the Hawks, spearheading a 97½ point team total that easily outdistanced Triton at 71.

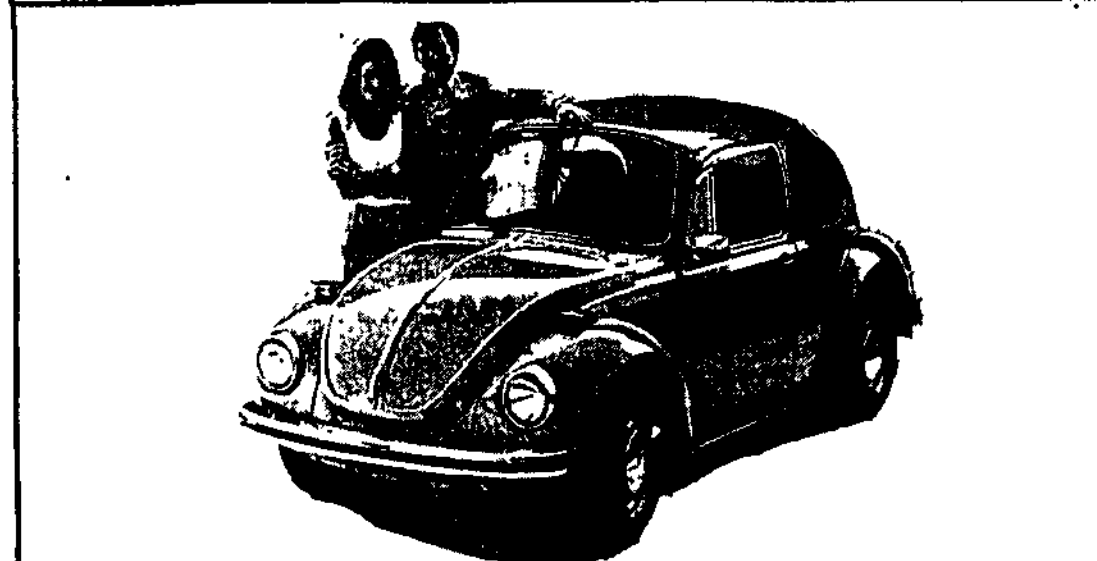

Coach Ron Bessemer also got runnerup finishes from Paul Morris, Tryst Anderson and Phil Reider and third place wind-ups from Al Gordon, Tom Dal Campo and Rick Odum.

'Best game' for Larson sparks East

By DOUG PALM

"It was undoubtedly his best game ever, and what makes it so sweet is that he's only a junior."

Maine East coach Paul McClelland was obviously pleased with the outstanding offensive performance turned in by junior guard Keith Larson in Maine East's 70-41 victory over neighboring Maine North Friday evening at the winner's gym.

The Maine East Blue Demons are a team that seemingly shun the 15-20 foot shots, whether they are open or not. The offensive patterns are geared to penetrating the lane, and hitting the open man or taking it all the way to the basket. Friday evening the man said drive, and drive they did.

The final margin, however, fails to reveal the fact that victory was not so easily achieved. In fact, had the visiting Norsemen continued to play like they had during the first half, especially in the first quarter, it would have been a lot closer.

The young Maine North team, however, has been victimized throughout the present season by lapses and inconsistency. Such was the case Friday evening. These moments seemed less in frequency and duration, but in the end they were equally critical.

The first quarter was by far the best played of the entire evening from the standpoint of both teams. Maine East moved to a 4-0 lead on two quick baskets by Larson, who scored off a rebound and a steal. Maine North evened the score at 4-4 on jump shots by Mike Wilson and George Kaufman, but East went back on top on a nifty drive from the left by Larson.

The 6-2 1/2 junior guard was really going to the hoop as he scored the first nine East points of the game. East, with its 1-3-1 wing offense, was working a pick play which continually enabled Larson to get free into driving situations. If the lane was clogged, he would try to dump it off to a teammate or take a 10-15 foot jumper.

The scrappy Norsemen stayed close, however, despite Larson's hot hand, and moved to within a single point at 9-8. Center Bill Castanzo put East up 11-8 on a drive off a give and go. North cut the margin to one again, when Bob DeMarco was fouled and successfully converted a one-and-one situation.

Larson then canned a jumper from the top of the key to give the Blue Demons a 13-10 lead. An offensive foul called on Kaufman gave East a disputed free throw situation. Mike Faden hit both ends of the strange one-and-one to boost East's lead to five, at 15-10. Kaufman retaliated with an 11-foot turnaround jumper which was offset by still another Maine East drive. This one came off a give-and-go with Faden on the receiving end. The quarter came to a close when Kaufman hit a base line jumper. Maine East led 17-14.

From a slim three point advantage, East bolted to a 25-14 lead as eight straight points went unanswered by the Norsemen. The man-to-man full court press employed by the Blue Demons from the outset began to take its toll on the Norsemen during the second quarter. Turnovers, especially stray length-of-the-court passes, really stymied North in its attempts to mount any sort of offense.

Larson was not one to be standing around as he tallied the first five of those eight straight East points, and eight for the quarter. East left the floor at half-time with a 33-24 lead. Larson led all scorers with 19 points, while Kaufman topped the North ledger with 12 points.

In that particular point, two factors were playing against the Norsemen: Maine East's height advantage on the boards and the pesky full court press, which if it did not directly disrupt North's offense, did so indirectly. Sometimes, the threat of such a press can be as damaging as the real thing.

Maine North regrouped and made a run at the Blue Demons in the opening moments of the third quarter as they cut the East lead to 33-30. The Blue Demons, however, withstood the charge and behind the hustling play of Doug Moorad blitzed the visitors, 19-9, to increase their lead to 52-39 after three quarters of play.

Moorad, who had been scoreless and ineffective, seemed to come to life when he picked up his fourth personal of the evening early in the third quarter. His play at both ends of the court was the difference as he bothered North on defense and scored six points.

Maine North, although they reacted much better to the press, could come no closer the rest of the way as they were outscored, 18-8, in the final quarter. Larson added three points to finish the night with 29 points.

McClelland, in post game comments, stressed the point that "we did just about what we wanted to do: play a man-to-man full court press and work the ball inside." Although he felt they were "a little sloppy" in the early going, his team's "overall strength proved too much" in the end.

In addition to Larson, who shot a torrid 12 for 18 from the floor in his game high effort, McClelland had special mention for Moorad who "really didn't start playing until his fourth foul."

Coach Jerry Nelson of Maine North felt "that it was a pretty good game... at times." In regards to his team's floor game, Nelson commented that "we threw the ball away quite a bit in the beginning, but did a lot better job in bringing it up court later." Nelson added that his club's biggest problem, more so than turnovers, was being "intimidated by taller teams." "Our team was very passive in going to the boards. Against smaller teams we crash away." North was out rebounded 38-27.

In summary, Nelson underscored the point that "the consistency is not there; we just can't seem to maintain momentum." Kaufman remains the most consistent North player, as he scored off numerous moves for his 18 points.

By winning, the Blue Demons evened their overall record at 9-9 and raised their Central Suburban League mark to 5-4. Maine North is now 0-14 and 0-9 in the CSL.

North fights back but it's too late in loss

by A STAFF WRITER

It's getting downright uncanny, the way Maine North treats its varsity basketball opponents.

When they're bad, the Norsemen are terrible. They'll cure any team's ailments.

They're almost a Most Valuable Team. Play Maine North and you'll always come away with that good feeling.

But when they work together, Jerry Nelson's Norsemen are competitive with anyone. Whether the other club happens to be big stuff or little stuff.

North's latest Central Suburban League episode was Saturday night's 78-56 loss to Niles East.

An apparent smash? Yes. Did it figure that way? No.

These were the last place teams of their respective divisions. North has improved lately behind sophomore George Kaufman. East has gone nowhere in the South Division and proven itself short on ticket money.

Halftime score: Niles East 40, Maine North 12.

Kaufman, so excellent of late, had just one point.

But everything changed after intermission. Kaufman hit 19 second half points, finishing with 20 to lead all scorers.

The Norsemen outran and outshot the Trojans for a 44-36 second half advantage. Admittedly, it was all too short.

Sunday morning, Nelson talked with pride about his kids. About how they didn't fall apart. About the future.

"Somehow or another, this type of attitude will carry over," Nelson said. "They lost the ballgame, right. They lost to a team they could maybe beat on another given night, certainly not last night."

"But the kids came back and gave it all they had the second half. That type of attitude will win a lot of ballgames for us next year, if not some this year."

Nelson said perhaps Niles East had a bit more opening momentum after coming off Friday's 60-52 win over heavy rival Niles North.

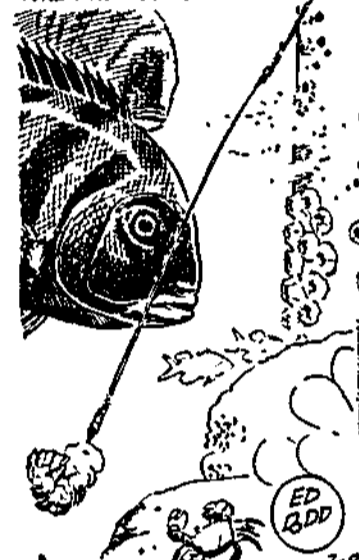

Until beating Maine North, the Trojans had only two wins over Niles North's Vikings through nine conference games.

"But we shot only five of 28 in the first half, got only one offensive rebound and had just 10 defensively," Nelson said. "It went up once and we never saw it again."

By halftime, the Trojans had a rebound advantage of over 30 against the Norsemen. Niles East won the boards battle, 54-11.

Skobel gets nod to skate tonight

Roller Derby Commissioner Jerry Selzer will be on hand when the Chicago Pioneers battle the Los Angeles Hawks tonight in the Prospect High School fieldhouse at 7 p.m.

The commissioner has also permitted Roller Derby Hall of Famer Sammy Skobel to skate in the warmup drill with the Pioneers.

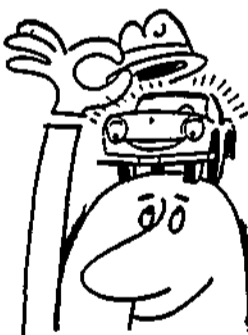

Skobel, owner of Sammy Skobel's Hot Dogs Plus in Mount Prospect, still holds sprint and mile records on the banked oval track from his star-studded playing days.

All proceeds of the contest, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Lions Club, will go to the Billed Ski School at Four Lakes Village in Lisle and the motto of the evening will be "Watch Them Skate So The Blind Can Ski."

Tickets are still available at several area sites at $4. They may also be purchased at the door which will be open at 6 p.m. with seats available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Thimm stars; Warriors split weekend contests

by MIKE KLEIN

Should some rich soul get inspired and donate substantial greenbacks for a new Maine West gymnasium, they ought to call it "The House that Thimm Built."

As in Joe Thimm, basketball player. Not that there's anything dumpy about "The House that Taxpayers Built." And built and built and...

It's just that Thimm is doing some very special things in the old place and might be deserving of his own hardwood pad.

Last Friday evening, before the Warriors' first packed house, the 6-foot-5 senior scored 31 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, the latter figure half of his team's total.

It happened during an 86-64 victory by Maine South over West. This game was closer and infinitely more exciting than the score would say.

His offensive outburst moved Thimm to an 18.3 Central Suburban scoring average before Saturday's game at Glenbrook South. Three super games ending league play could give him a league scoring title.

When talk eventually turned to selection of this year's All-Conference team, South coach Bernie Brady said of Thimm: "He'll be on it, no doubt about it." Thimm earned the honor last year also.

Thimm was fabulous individually as part of a great team effort. These Warriors had fallen to Maine South by 40 points two months earlier.

They would settle for none of that nonsense Friday, making good on a better showing claim. West and South meet on the same floor in regional action next month. That ought to be a real lulu.

Thimm erred on only six of 17 field goal attempts, hitting a remarkable 64 per cent. He sank nine of 13 free throws, giving him 61 points in West's last two league games.

Accumulating just two fouls, Thimm went all the way for Gaston Freeman's Warriors. He couldn't rest because 6-8 center Doug Myers was sidetracked with two fouls after two minutes. Myers later fouled out as did West's Chris Bouchee plus South's Jerry Jones and Pete Boesen.

It was during the final eight seconds that his Warrior teammates tried helping Thimm to a 12th field goal. That would have netted him 33 points, high CSL individual game this year.

But as the scoreboard raced along, the ball evaded Thimm about one dozen feet from the hoop. He never got off a shot.

"He needed only the one field goal so we tried to get it for him," Freeman said. "Somebody had brought that fact to my attention."

Thimm impressed even his opponents' fans. Midway through period three, one fellow said, "Gee, I guess they just can't do anything with that guy, can they?" It wasn't a question.

"We looked a little sluggish out there. Nevertheless, I'll take a 22-point win anytime," South's Brady said after the Hawks moved to 8-1 in league play and 14-3 overall.

From the moment West's Bouchee put a smashing block on Bill Harbeck's lay-up attempt to open the game, South knew the Warriors were full of fight.

For one, Brady never expected the man-to-man defense that was staring his club in the face. "We worked all week against a zone," he said.

Freeman's explanation was simple. "We made up our minds after the last ballgame (93-53) that we'd go man-to-man."

"They're just too good shooting," he said. "And they're gentlemen too. They play good clean ball."

South held a 20-14 lead after one period and marched into its lockerroom with a 43-31 halftime advantage.

But it wasn't until final moments of the third period that the Hawks assumed the control they needed to begin pulling away.

The backbreaker hit West when Joe Prang received a loose ball pass and was headed for an apparent breakaway layup that could have made it a 60-48 ballgame.

But South's Harbeck, a super quick 6-foot-1 guard, caught up and blasted the ball out-of-bounds as Prang delivered it toward the board.

The period ended with South leading 60-46. A Harbeck bucket plus two by Tony Reibel made it 66-46 within one minute of the fourth quarter.

"Yes, that was a big play," Brady agreed about Harbeck's block on Prang. "In fact, we did that a couple times tonight. Those give you incentive."

Said West's Freeman: "I don't remember that particular call, but there were a couple instances where we just couldn't get below the 10-point mark."

"I thought it was interesting that they got five baskets off five missed free throws."

The Hawks had three 22-point margins over West, all with about two minutes or less remaining in the game. Continually a pesty lot, the Warriors stayed within 10-12 points most of the going after South opened up a 24-14 second quarter lead.

Coming down the stretch, it was Reibel, Harbeck's running mate at guard, who really clamped on the clincher. Twelve of his 16 points came in the second half, most on baseline jumpers he seemingly couldn't miss.

"They were laying off him and giving away some shooting room," Brady said. "Out top, I wanted him to start shooting off the screens too but he just never did."

Six players and all five starters scored in double figures for Maine South. Reibel, Harbeck and Jones hit 16 points apiece. Substitute Jim Hirsch hit 12; Bob Westman and Boesen 10 apiece.

Bouchee, with 12 points, was West's next highest scorer. His four rebounds was also second to Thimm's 16 as the Warriors outrebounded Maine South, 32-28.

The Warriors hit 43 per cent from the field (24-55) as the winners hit 58 per cent (36-62).

Losing dipped Maine West to 5-4 in Central Suburban play and 8-10 overall before Saturday's date at Glenbrook South.

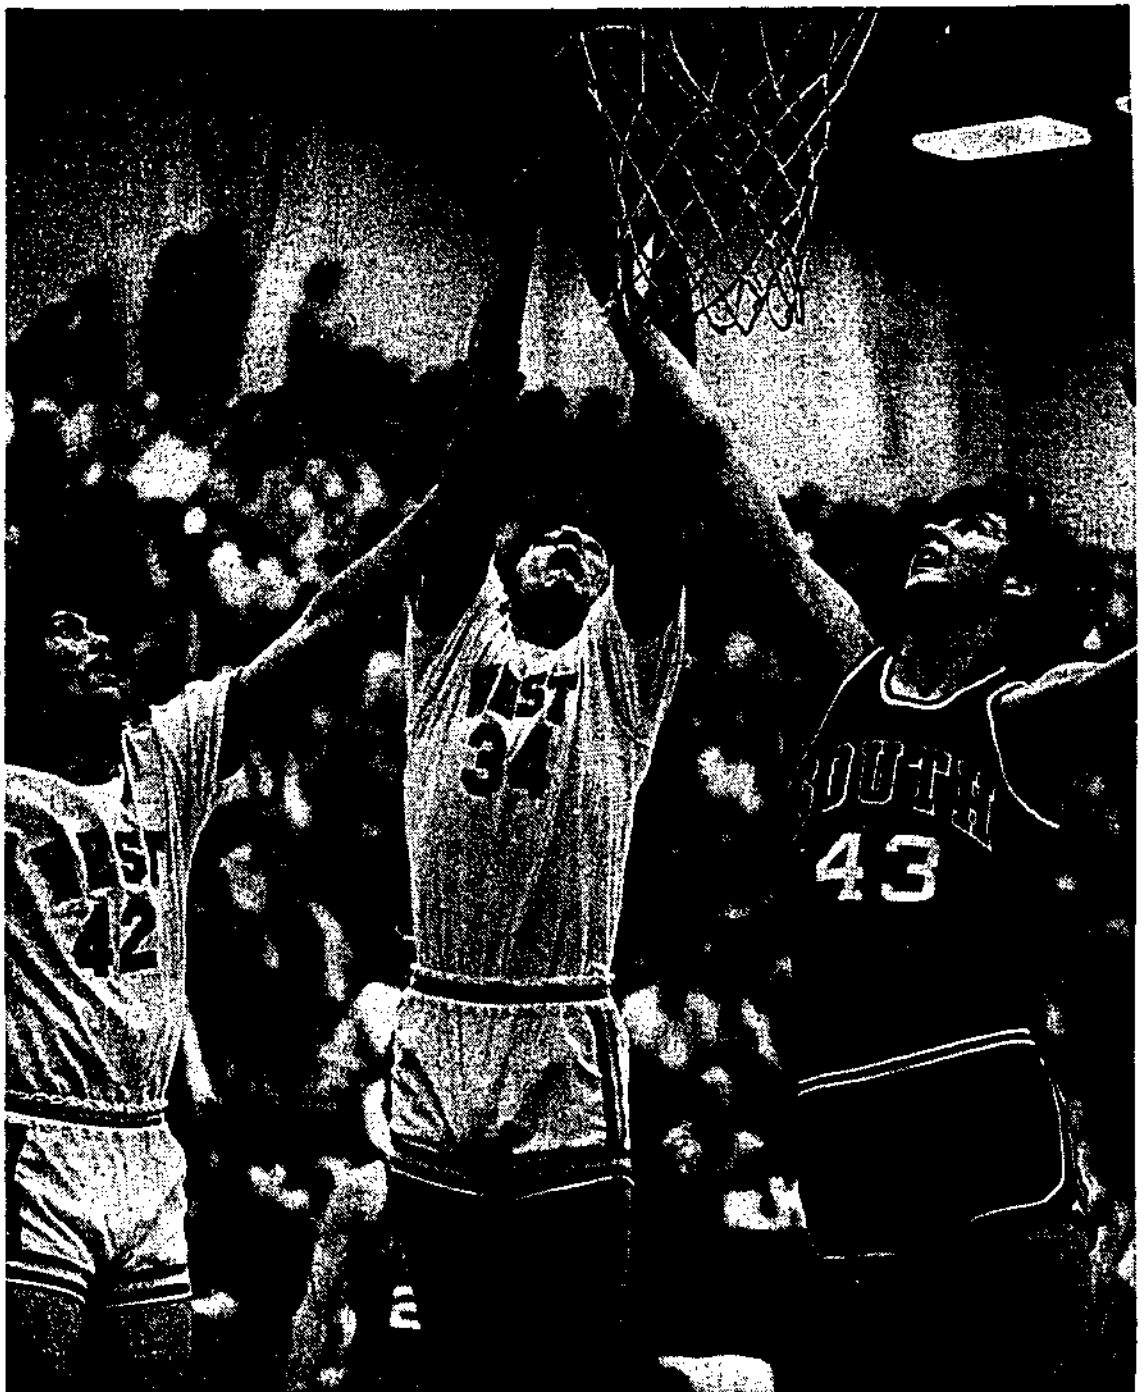

Freeman's kids have played good ball of late but have only a win over Niles East to prove it. Had they been working this way all along, however, that record would be radically different.

Thimm and Myers. What a combination! Between them Joe Thimm and Doug Myers outscored the entire Glenbrook South team Saturday night as Maine West outlasted the stubborn Titans, 65-47, on Glenbrook's court.

Myers, the 6-foot-8 center, tallied 27 points, 14 coming in the final quarter. Thimm banked 25 points before leaving with a leg injury with 3:19 left in the game.

"The movements of our two big boys were pretty good," coach Gaston Freeman said after the game. "For Thimm that's 25, 31 and 28 points in his last three games."

Glenbrook South, coached by Steve Power, employed a slow-down style designed to take away Maine's fast break and force Warrior mistakes. "They tried to control the ball," Freeman noted. "So we trapped them with a press."

The strategy succeeded in holding the Titans to 14 first half points as West took an intermission lead of 27-14.

The first half was marked by sloppy passing on Glenbrook's part. They had to settle eventually for long jump shots, most of which missed — and most of which were cleared by the Warriors' trio of rebounders, Myers, Thimm and Chris Bouchee.

Kurt Angstact and George Latta were the high scorers for Glenbrook with 15 and 12 each. Latta hit 10 in the second half when the Titans mounted a mild comeback threat. Trailing at one point in the third quarter by 18, South chipped away at the lead until, with less than three minutes left in the game, the score stood at 52-45.

Coach Freeman chose this spot for a timeout. When his boys went back on the court, they took charge and led the game away. Myers canned 10 points in the final two minutes to nose out Thimm for top-scoring honors.

Hapless Glenbrook South, with only one victory in the Central Suburban Conference, played a fine offensive fourth quarter once they abandoned the deliberate attack. But their defense couldn't contain Thimm and Myers.

"Our kids played a good basketball game," Freeman said. "They did some excellent things out there."

And they made it a team effort. Two boys may have scored most of the points, but the others contributed. Fine guard work was turned in by John O'Connor, Bruce Freeman, and Joe Prang, and Bouchee's ball-hawking abilities were invaluable on both offense and defense.

Still, the big story was Thimm and Myers.

Maine East rolls past Deerfield

by JIM STUART

The word was penetrate.

Penetrate. Heard over and over by Maine East guards Keith Larson and Doug Moorad Saturday night from the mouth of their coach Paul McClelland.

Penetrate. Basically what it means in basketball lingo is to take the ball as far as possible toward the basket before passing or shooting it, the object being to work for the best and closest possible shot.

Larson and Moorad heard McClelland loud and clear Saturday night. And penetrated. The result was a surprisingly easy win over Central Suburban League opponent Deerfield, and the culmination of a very profitable home weekend in which the Blue Demons swept Maine North and the Warriors.

The final score against Deerfield was 71-60, but it was nowhere near that close. When McClelland cleared his bench midway through the fourth quarter the Demons were leading 70-44, and it was only the fact that the Maine reserves were outscored 16-1 that made the outcome semi-respectable.

Actually, McClelland didn't have to scream too loud about penetration. His team seemed to have the message from the opening tip, as the Demons pierced the Warrior zone defense for four good shots right off.

And on this night that the Demons could do no wrong, all of them connected for an 8-2 lead that East would never give up.

And those four shots also set another pattern for the evening: they were all hit by different players, setting the stage for an amazingly balanced scoring output in which seven Blue Demons scored between eight and 14 points.

That tremendous offensive balance was pretty much the story of the game; that and an excellent zone defense set up by Maine that put the pressure on Deerfield as soon as the Warriors crossed the half-court line.

Plus the fact that both boards were dominated by the Maine East front line of Bill Castonzo, Rick Schumacher and Mike Faden.

Offense, defense and rebounding? Just say that the Blue Demons outplayed Deerfield in every facet of the game.

Moorad, Castonzo, Larson and Schumacher got those first four baskets for East, and then after a dry spell of one missed shot, Faden hit from 15 feet to make the score 10-2. Five players, six shots and 10 points. Not bad.

Deerfield's Randy Morris connected from outside (the word penetration was foreign to the Warriors all night) to make the score 16-4, but then drives by Schumacher and Faden and a last-second shot by Schumacher again, coupled with two free throws by Moorad, put the Demons safely on top by 18-6 at the quarter.

It was Larson and reserve Jim Cromer taking charge in the second quarter as Deerfield began closing the lane and the hosts had to settle for outside shots. Cromer came off the bench to hit three shots from the floor, and Larson, as loose as the shirt he wears outside his pants, hit four including a 25-foot beauty as the horn sounded ending the first half.

A new face appeared on the scene in the third period, that of forward Greg Maloney. Maloney, after having watched the first half from the bench, came on to score seven points in the third quarter including two jumpers to get the second half off to a good start for the home crowd.

With the help of a perfect 7-for-7 from the free throw line, Maloney wound up Maine's third high scorer with 11 points, just behind Larson's 14 and Schumacher's 13.

A tribute to Maine East's defense was that not one of the Deerfield starters scored in double figures. Two of the starters, Tom Skiffington and Pat Carroll, were completely shut out in the scoring department, and the team was led by reserve Carl Fritzsche's 15 points.

Four Demons, Faden, Castonzo, Moorad and Cromer, all scored eight points.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you please explain the readings in a prothrombin blood test of 23/13. I am taking five Coumadin tablets a week. I had a heart attack last year.

Dear Reader — Many people are taking Coumadin after heart attacks so I am sure your question will be of general interest. To find out how effective the medicine is in preventing your blood from clotting, a sample of normal blood is tested at the same time your blood is tested. The number 13 refers to 13 seconds required for the normal control blood's clotting mechanism and the 23 refers to the 23 seconds it requires for your blood to react. Basically this means that the clotting mechanism of your blood is prolonged to about twice that of a normal individual.

These laboratory tests are reasonably complex and tend to vary depending on the reagents used and this is why a controlled blood sample from a normal person is used to check against your blood each time the test is done.

If your medicine is effective, your prothrombin time should be considerably prolonged compared to the normal blood. The object is to prevent your blood from having a tendency to clot, hoping to prevent a new heart attack. Too much medicine may cause bleeding while too little isn't effective in preventing blood clotting.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read your daily column and always find it interesting. I would appreciate some answers to these questions.

Q — How can 10 glasses of alcoholic beverage be poison if one is not?

A — That's simple. Even our best medicines if taken in excessive amounts can be poisonous. Digitalis, for example, one of our most common heart medicines when given in the right amount can prevent heart failure. When given in too large an amount it can be toxic and even cause death. Even small amounts of alcohol, however, are harmful to some people.

Q — If your patient needs a sedative, do you prescribe alcohol?

A — If the individual tolerates alcohol well and it is not upsetting for him to use it, I wouldn't hesitate to prescribe it to an individual. It's just as good or a better sedative than a lot of sleeping pills which are used. It doesn't happen to be the medicine that I usually prescribe for this purpose, but on the other hand I see no harm in it in reasonable amounts in specific cases.

Q — You tell your readers not to smoke tobacco and not to drink coffee, why don't you tell them not to drink alcohol?

A — If you've read my columns regularly as you mentioned, you'd know that I do.

Q — Should anyone besides husband and wife or those engaged to become husband and wife kiss on the lips?

A — That's a moral question not just a medical one, and up to the individuals concerned. Between healthy people it is unlikely to cause any problems. It is, however, a means of transmitting colds, respiratory infections and sometimes other illnesses whether one is married to a kissing partner or not.

Q — Do you believe in preventing pain and spread of disease.

A — That's what I went to medical school for.

Cancer cure linked to old Southern brew

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — Residents of swamplands in Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi have for years sworn by the medicinal powers of a brew made from moonshine whiskey and the root of the pitcher plant, a swamp wood.

Although non-moonshine drinkers have scoffed at the claims, scientists are now taking a serious look at the concoction — and believe it may hold some answers to the fight against some types of cancer.

Dr. D. Howard Miles, a 29-year-old assistant professor of chemistry at Mississippi State University, has been awarded a $30,000 grant by the National Cancer Institute to research the properties of the swamp weed, or sarracenia.

Miles said there is some evidence that the pulp of the plant — properly treated with alcohol and refined — may have inhibiting qualities in combating the growth of cancerous tumors.

While working on his doctorate at Georgia Tech, Miles became interested in researching the plant after hearing that natives of the Okefenokee Swamp in south Georgia had for decades made medicine from roots of the swamp weed.

Since then, Miles and two graduate students at Mississippi State have collected specimens of the plant in Mississippi, Georgia and Alabama.

Parents will see classes in action

Parents at Hersey High School will be able to see classes in action during four tours sponsored by the school's Teacher-Parent Council.

The first classroom tour will begin at 9 a.m. Tuesday and will conclude with lunch in the school cafeteria. Other tours will be conducted on Feb. 22, 27 and March 1.

Registration for the tours can be made through the school office.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

North Vietnam now a 'favored nation'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the signing of the peace treaty, North Vietnam has gained an enviable status among the nations of the world — that of a former enemy of the United States.

From the standpoint of future economic development, it probably would have been better if the North Vietnamese had been defeated outright.

Then they would have been the beneficiaries of a rebuilding program that would have restored the country 10 times — yes, mayhaps even 50 times — over.

As has happened to some of the more fortunate countries that lost their wars with the U.S.A.

But, as the North Vietnamese will soon discover, it is better to have fought the United States inconclusively than never to have fought at all.

BY MY calculation, North Korea is the only former enemy that has failed to achieve spectacular post-war prosperity.

But bear in mind that North Korea underwent comparatively little bombing and thus failed to qualify for a massive recovery program.

Although the war with the North Viet-name was equally inconclusive, luckily for them they took enough of a pounding to become eligible for U.S. reconstruction aid.

A recent Gallup Poll showed that 40 per cent of the American people favored helping repair the bomb damage. And that survey was taken before the peace agreement was announced.

The next poll likely will boost the helping hand ratio to over 50 per cent, a figure that might well have been above 90 per cent had North Vietnam capitulated.

IT IS NOT, however, through direct aid that former U.S. enemies prosper. The big boom comes when they start selling us automobiles, motor bikes, transistor radios, tape recorders, television sets and imitation Zipper lighters.

Already, you may be sure, Hanoi is getting ready to begin production of the Homobile, the Hocycle, the Stereoho, the TeleHo and the PhotoHo — consumer goods named in honor of Ho Chi Minh and tailored for the American market.

What I fear is that we may eventually have so many former enemies we will be unable to absorb their industrial output.

Should that happen, some of our former enemies might resume hostilities in order to renew the demand for their products.

But we can strike back by refusing to engage them in combat. Leading, perhaps, to the coinage of a new maxim: The only way to achieve lasting peace is to take all the profit out of getting clobbered.

'Carelessness' blamed for fire tragedy

by RICH HONACK

"Careless use of smoking materials" is assumed to be the cause of a fire that killed a young Wheeling couple early Friday.

The announcement was made by Wheeling Chief Berole Koepfen following an investigation by a deputy state fire marshal. Koepfen said the fire apparently started in a couch in the living room.

The couple, Michael and Barbara Devitt, died as a result of the fire at 705 S. Merle Ln.

Devitt, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Devitt, 20, died two hours after she was pulled from the burning building, officials said.

THE OFFICIAL cause of death are being withheld by the Cook County Coroner's office pending an inquest in six weeks.

According to Koepfen, firemen received the alarm at 3:38 a.m. Friday from Devitt's neighbor, William Null. Null was awakened by Larry Steward, 586 E. Merle Ln., who discovered the blaze.

Koepfen said Steward ran to the Devitt residence and pounded on windows and doors. When he didn't get a response he told Null to call the firemen.

The first firemen to arrive on the scene said the house was completely engulfed in flames. They said they found Mrs. Devitt lying unconscious by the back door. She had burns over much of her body.

DEVITT WAS found in a corner of a back bedroom. According to officials, he was not badly burned and apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Koepfen could not explain why the bodies were found in different parts of the house. "No one can explain why people do what they do in a fire. You may think you're running one way and you are going another," said the chief.

He added, "We believe both people were near windows, yet it looks like Mrs. Devitt ran through the fire to try to get to the door."

Koepfen said everyone should have some type of system for exiting a home during a fire.

THE DEVITT home is located in the more established area of Wheeling. According to officials, the house burned very rapidly.

The fire deaths are the second and third to occur in Wheeling this year. A 78-year-old resident died in his smoke-filled apartment almost one month ago. The cause of that fire was also attributed to burning ashes falling into a chair.

Wheeling reported no fire deaths in 1972.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

Caterpillar
still at large

Has anyone seen a large Caterpillar tractor driving around Buffalo Grove or Wheeling? If so, call your local police department, because they are searching for one.

The theft of the $50,000 Caterpillar front wheel loader was reported to the Buffalo Grove Police Department last Friday. The tractor belongs to the DiPaolo Construction Co., which is working on the widening of Dundee Road.

Police said the large tractor was last seen in a parking lot at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads late Wednesday night. They added that it must have been taken early Thursday morning after the snow had stopped.

Police also said they believe the vehicle was not taken by a private citizen. Construction company officials said a person must have working knowledge of the controls to drive the machine.

The top speed of the tractor is 20 miles per hour, and police believe it was loaded on a truck, rather than driven away. The vehicle is yellow-orange and has a cab in which the driver can sit.

Strong Street case delay requested

by LYNN ASINOF

A new wrinkle in the W. Strong Street zoning case surfaced Friday before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert Downing announced he was not yet prepared to issue a decision in the case.

Attorney Jack Siegel, representing the village, entered a motion asking that the decision be delayed. He told the court that the Village of Wheeling is currently taking steps to consider rezoning the entire W. Strong Street area for multi-family development.

The residents who filed the suit are objecting to rezoning of 47 lots in the area for multi-family development. They contend that the zoning is unreasonable because it does not take into consideration the single-family homes now in the area.

SIEGEL ARGUED that the court's decision should be delayed so the village record on zoning in the area is complete. He also asked that the village be granted the right to re-open the case when the new zoning decision for the entire area is made.

Attorney John Burke, representing the Strong Street residents, began to object to the motion, but was interrupted by the judge.

"I was going to point out myself that I did not have the time to get all the information I want," Judge Downing said. He explained that a court reporter he needed to read back the court record had been sick, and therefore he was not yet ready to issue his ruling.

"As far as the court is concerned, I would like to put the whole thing over for a week," he said. The judge then continued the case until 10 a.m. Feb. 28.

DOWNING EXPLAINED that at that time the attorneys could argue the motion. He added that if he had already decided by Feb. 28 to deny the motion, he would have his decision on the case ready when the court convened.

Siegel later explained that the village zoning board is going to consider recommending rezoning the Strong Street property Tuesday when it makes its annual review of the official village zoning map.

If the zoning board recommends to the village board to rezone the property, the zoning board will be directed to hold hearings on the rezoning.

"As long as this is apparently an issue in the case, and the village is considering this anyway, I think the whole picture should be before the court," Siegel said.

If the village does decide to rezone the property and if the court accepts Siegel's motion, this new evidence might be sufficient to counteract the resident's claim that the present zoning is spot zoning.

Burke, however, said he had no comment on the effect of the motion on his case. He did say he was aware of the motion before court convened Friday.

Residents to press boundary requests

Residents of the Cambridge subdivision of Buffalo Grove will resume their fight to have their area included in the attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at the High School Dist. 214 Board meeting today.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will consider proposals for changes in the Buffalo Grove High School boundaries that would place Cambridge in the Buffalo Grove area while transferring some Mount Prospect residents from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

One alternative presented last month

by the Cambridge residents would put their area into Buffalo Grove and would allow residents of the entire Rand Junior High School area, now set to go to Buffalo Grove, to remain at Hersey. In addition, residents of Mount Prospect in Elementary Dist. 21 south of Palatine Road would be transferred from Hersey to Wheeling.

A SECOND ALTERNATIVE, which the Cambridge residents suggested the board could adopt if it wanted to cut enrollment at Hersey further, would split the Rand attendance area along Rand Road so the Berkeley Square, Pinegate and Ivy Hill subdivisions would go to Buffalo Grove. Under that plan the Mount Prospect residents would also be transferred.

The board in November adopted attendance boundaries that place students from the Rand and Cooper junior high school areas into Buffalo Grove and send Cambridge students to Wheeling.

Buffalo Grove High School is now under construction at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove. It is scheduled to open September, 1973.

Also on the agenda for today's meeting is a report from the district's administration outlining plans for a study on school district organization in the area. The study will consider possibilities for forming unit school districts in the area and is being planned in reaction to unit district moves under way in Elk Grove Township Dist. 69.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,000 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong released 142 American prisoners of war last night — the first of nearly 600 to be freed in the Vietnam peace settlement — to U.S. officials waiting to fly them to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. One hundred fifteen American POWs were released in Hanoi and 27 held in jungle camps were released at Loc Ninh, 73 miles north of Saigon. Planes from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines flew to Vietnam for the evacuation.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Helmsley Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other person, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Helafjell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese Prime Minister Pham Van Dong met for a total of six hours in Hanoi in two three-hour segments. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced. "The atmosphere in the meetings has been cordial," Ziegler said.

Mundelein man hurt in one-car accident

A Mundelein man was injured last week when he lost control of his car on Old McHenry Road and Fairway Green near Wheeling.

Eugene Kukawinski was reported in fair condition at Holy Family Hospital following the crash that occurred Thursday afternoon. Hospital officials said Kukawinski had a broken leg.

According to Illinois State Police, Kukawinski was southbound on Old McHenry Road when, after passing another car, he lost control of his vehicle and hit a mailbox, fence post and utility pole.

The accident reportedly tied up traffic on Old McHenry Road for several minutes as rescue crews tried to free Kukawinski from the car. Police charged him with speeding.

Benefit to aid school for exceptional kids

A celebrity auction and dance to raise funds for the Summit School for Exceptional Children is planned for Saturday, Feb. 24, in St. Mary's School Hall in Buffalo Grove.

Several children from the area who have special learning disabilities attend Summit School, which is temporarily located in St. Monica's Church in Carpentersville.

The proceeds from the auction and dance are to be used to help construct a permanent school in Dundee.

According to Mrs. Doug Baillie, 695 Patton Dr., who is chairman of the Summit School parents' group, several personal items from such people as President and Mrs. Richard Nixon, Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Arnold Palmer, Mayor Daley and members of the Chicago Cubs baseball team will be auctioned.

Anyone interested in ticket information should contact Mrs. Baillie at 537-3153.

Board to consider employe ordinance

The Wheeling Village Board tonight will consider an ordinance specifying various benefits for employees and officers.

These benefits were previously agreed upon during negotiations between the village and the village employees. The ordinance merely makes official those items previously decided.

The board also will consider tentative acceptance of underground developments at Pleasant Run planned development.

Bids will be opened for repairs to one of the village wells. The board will also vote on two ordinances annexing land to the village. The two parcels to be annexed are at 628 McHenry Rd. and directly south of 745 McHenry Rd.

Ex-school board member weighs race

Bruce Wallace, former Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board member, said he "is considering" running for the board again in April.

Wallace, 1211 N. Highland Dr., Prospect Heights, has picked up a nominating petition for election to a three-year term on the board. He said he will announce if he is definitely a candidate after Wednesday's board meeting. He would not say why he was waiting until then.

"I'm thinking about running because of the numerous problems in the district — negotiations, curriculum problems," he said. He pointed to the open school concept at John Muir School, on Drake Terrace, as one problem in curriculum. "To a certain extent, I am opposed to it," he said.

WALLACE, 40, served on the board from 1968 to 1971, when he was a member of the board's site, building, policy and negotiations committee. In 1971, Wallace ran unsuccessfully for reelection.

Employed by Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Wallace has lived in Prospect Heights 14 years and has four children. He is active in the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA).

Alan Krinsky, whose appointed term to the board expires in April, has also picked up a nominating petition. He said, "I will probably get it filled and submit it." He added he would announce if he is definitely a candidate at Wednesday's school board meeting.

Lori Sarner, the only other board member whose term is up in April, said she will not seek reelection to the board.

Unit school district study 'high priority'

Study of a tentative unit district composed of the attendance areas of High School Dist. 214's four southern high schools has been given high priority by the Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee in School Dist. 59.

The four-high school model is one of three boundaries for a unit district (grades kindergarten through 12) that will be studied in depth by the committee. Twenty-one of the committee's nearly 50 members met Thursday night and voted on a list of five proposed boundaries. Those that will be studied, in order of preference by the committee, are:

- A unit of the four high school attendance areas, including Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect;
- An Elk Grove Village Unit;
- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.

A unit district of three of Dist. 214's high school attendance areas, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect or Rolling Meadows, was rated fourth by the committee. A unit of all of Dist. 214 was rated fifth. As a result, they were both dropped from the list.

After voting to study a unit of all of Elk Grove Village, the committee amended the boundaries to include a small portion of the village just west of Ill. Rte. 53. That portion is currently in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, which feeds into High School Dist. 211.

GEORGE CONEY, chairman of the general committee, said Dist. 54 has indicated it would be willing to give up that portion of its district to a unit district. Coney also said residents in that area have indicated they would be in favor of coming into such a unit district.

Coney stressed he hoped members of the five sub-committees, which will make separate studies of the proposed unit districts, will recommend any changes in the boundaries they feel necessary.

The vote on boundaries came after more than a hour's discussion. Bob Melroy, vice-chairman of the facility and transportation committee, said he thought an Elk Grove Village unit would be advantageous, but difficult "to sell."

"I think from Elk Grove Village's standpoint, it would be very advantageous," Melroy said. "But it would be the most controversial boundary, the hardest to get through." Melroy said such a boundary would create opposition because it would create a split in existing Dist. 59.

Victor Johnson, also a member of the transportation and facilities committee, pointed out that a unit of Dist. 59 boundaries would create "a lot of shuffling of students." Currently students from Mount Prospect Dist. 57 attend Forest View High School along with those from Dist. 59.

EMIL BAHNMAIER, secretary of the general committee, estimated that under such a unit, 400 to 500 students would have to be transferred. He said, however, "We could avoid a lot of shuffling" if the attendance for Juliette Low School, in Dist. 59 and Arlington Heights, was left out of such a unit district.

Many committee members opposed studying Dist. 214 as a whole because of the size. "I don't think the finance committee could undertake a study along those lines," said Tom Guy, of the finance committee. "We would have to do it in conjunction with Dist. 214's study committee. I think then the whole idea of a unit district might die in committee and never get onto the floor."

Several committee members estimated they would need about two months to complete an in-depth study of the three sets of boundaries.

The steering committee will meet Feb. 28 to discuss the progress of the subcommittees. The steering committee will also set a new deadline for the citizen's group report. Committee members voted two weeks ago for an extension after they decided they could not meet the original March 1 deadline.

The general committee will meet again on March 1 to hear speakers opposing a unit district.

'Frustrated history teacher'

Phil Crane back in the classroom

by JILL BETTNER

Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, who described himself as a frustrated history teacher turned congressman, was back in the classroom Friday.

In a relaxed, confident style developed during the years he taught at Indiana and Bradley universities, Crane fielded questions from some of his young constituents at Wheeling High School, St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights and Harper College Palatine.

Abortion became the topic of a lively debate between Crane and several students. Crane called the recent Supreme Court pro-abortion ruling "an unbelievable error" and charged the Court with legislating morality.

"When you start to nationalize moral decisions like this, you begin to sow seeds of rage and destroy the credibility of the entire system," Crane said. He feels the issue should be resolved individually by the states.

ONE STUDENT said he favored legal abortion because he would feel guilty bringing a handicapped child into the world.

"Who's entitled to play God with the life of another human being?" Crane countered. "I certainly wouldn't want anyone to tell me, if I had a child with a congenital defect, that he would have to go to the scrap heap because he wasn't perfect."

Crane was also questioned about his views and votes on several other issues, including federal aid to education. Asked why he voted against the major federal school aid bills, Crane said federal funds were not a gift to Illinois schools.

"The federal aid program is predicated on the basis of taking from the 'have' state and giving to the 'have not' states," Crane said. "Unfortunately, Illinois is one of the 'have' states and because it is, it costs our taxpayers about $1.67 for every $1 of federal aid."

ASKED WHETHER he voted his conscience or as his constituents wanted him to vote, Crane said he acted on his best judgment even when his feelings contradicted those of a great many voters.

"It's just like getting an A on a test even though you missed one question," Crane told the students. "My constituency's redress of grievances is not to re-elect me."

Questioned on what he considered the present political tide of opinion in the country to be, Crane said President Nixon's landslide election was the answer.

"Political surveys have shown that even the majority of Democrats who were elected are Nixon supporters in principle," Crane said. He added that he felt, however, that a large part of Nixon's victory was due to the number of no votes against Sen. George McGovern.

Crane's main reason for traveling to this area Friday was to attend a Republican fund-raising affair in Chicago Saturday.

Schools may form group to study future needs

An increase in the number of single- and multi-family housing units proposed for the Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 area may lead to formation of a committee to study future needs of the district.

Supt. Edward Grodsky last week recommended formation of such a committee "so that we are not overcrowded by the time all the developments are completed." Grodsky pointed to a 1,200-unit apartment complex proposed for the southwest corner of Hintz and Wheeling roads in Wheeling. The development is just east of John Muir School, on Drake Terrace in Prospect Heights.

"Within the next three years I feel that the majority of vacant property in Prospect Heights will be developed for single and multiple dwellings," Grodsky told board members.

Board Pres. Melvin Dace and the board will discuss the committee at a board meeting Wednesday night. He said he felt such a committee was needed because current enrollment projections for Dist. 23 are inadequate.

IN HIS recommendation, Grodsky said he was "very concerned" about the proposed Wheeling development. Developers of the complex have received preliminary plat approval from the Wheeling Plan Commission. They are scheduled to appear before the commission again Feb. 22 to get final plat approval. The developer also has to be approved by the Wheeling Village Board.

Grodsky said the complex will place "a strain on enrollment at Muir School." He pointed out that Dist. 23 is currently busying students from the Northgate and Ivy Hill developments in Arlington Heights to Muir School until a new school can be built in that area. Muir now has 280 students in a building designed for 310 students.

The apartments, known as Tara Village, would consist of 600 two-bedroom, 480 three-bedroom and 120 four-bedroom on 75 acres. According to developers, the Larwin Multi-Housing Corp., two retention basins are also being planned "at the south end and one towards the north-east end of the property."

The developer told plan commissioners that he and Dist. 23 had "come close to an agreement," Grodsky stressed, however, that "absolutely no deals have been made." The school board has instructed its attorney, Henry Vallety, to send registered letters to the developer and plan commission indicating there have been no negotiations.

Grodsky told board members that Dist. 23 could never consider placing either of the retention basins required for the complex on Muir land. He said the district would need the land to build additional classroom space to take care of the increased enrollment. He and board members also re-emphasized they would never allow basins on school property because of the safety hazard to students.

Wine-tasting session to highlight meeting

The Wheeling Jaycee Jills will be tasting wine after their monthly meeting Tuesday at the Hartmann House.

A short business meeting is scheduled prior to the wine-tasting. Items on the agenda include a discussion of plans for the third annual babysitting clinic, scheduled for Feb. 28. Members will also discuss the monthly bingo party for the elderly residents of Addolorata Villa, Wheeling.

U. S. REP. PHILIP M. Crane, R-12th, told students at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights that he was against amnesty for draft dodgers, against using a lottery to add to state revenue, against the recent Supreme Court decision on abortion and against paracaid. Crane toured several high schools in the 12th Congressional District Friday during a trip here which included a Republican fund raising dinner in Chicago.

Four arrested, $50,000 'pot' seized at school

A two-month investigation of drugs at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village ended Friday night with the arrest of four persons and the confiscation of 100 pounds of marijuana with a street value of more than $50,000.

"We theorize that we have now cut off the major supply of marijuana to the Elk Grove Village area," police Lt. Ray Marinac said of the arrests.

Arrested at the Hyatt House Motel in Lincolnwood were Chuck Carroll, 19, of 1301 Cumberland Circle East, Elk Grove Village; Paul Maheris, 22, of 501 Briarwood Ln., Elk Grove Village; Todd Raemisch, 22, of Madison, Wis., and Tom Paepaka, 22, of Barrington, Wis.

The four were arrested after agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an area-wide law enforcement agency, and Elk Grove Village Detective Richard Rusch arranged and witnessed the sale of the marijuana for $15,000. Both the money and the marijuana were confiscated in the arrest.

Carroll was charged with delivery of marijuana, Maheris with delivery of marijuana and resisting arrest. Paepaka was charged with conspiracy to deliver and sell marijuana. Raemisch was charged with delivery of marijuana and aggravated assault. Raemisch allegedly was carrying a loaded .22-caliber automatic pistol at the time of the arrest.

THE CONFISCATION of marijuana Friday was one of the biggest caches in which Elk Grove Village police have been involved in recovering.

Bond for Carroll and Raemisch was set at $4,000. Bond for Paepaka and Maheris was set at $2,500. All four were released on bond. Their court date was set for Feb. 27 in Skokie.

In another apparently unrelated incident, Elk Grove Village police arrested two men Friday night for possession of marijuana.

The two, Kenneth Eckel Jr., 28, of 4325 N. Richmond Ave., Chicago, and Sten Fischel, 21, of 422 W. Lake St., Addison, were arrested in the parking lot of Jake's Pizza, 66 E. Devon, when they offered an undercover policeman a marijuana cigaret. Both were charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

$100,000 plant fire being probed

Officials from the Elk Grove Village Fire Department and the state fire marshal's office are investigating the cause of a fire that broke out Friday at International Fiber Glass Inc., 340 Bennett. The fire gutted the building and caused an estimated $100,000 damage.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said there is some indication the fire may have started in the loading dock area of the building.

Every truck and engine from the village fire department was called to the scene to fight the blaze. Hulett said the first fire call was received at 5:16 a.m. Friday. By the time the first fire engine arrived, the entire building was engulfed in flames and part of the roof had collapsed.

No one was hurt by the fire, but three firemen narrowly escaped injury when a section of the roof collapsed. Hulett, Lt. Donald Langland and firefighter Paul Mack left an office portion of the building moments before the collapse.

During the fire, an engine from the Schaumburg Fire Department served as a backup unit at the Elk Grove Village fire station. Schaumburg Chief Lloyd Abrahamson accompanied the engine.

A backup ambulance from the Hoffman Estates Fire Department also was called in.

Levitt project to be discussed

A project planned by Levitt & Sons Inc., will be discussed at 8 p.m. Tuesday in a public hearing by the Buffalo Grove Village Board. Tonight's regularly scheduled meeting has been deferred in observance of Abraham Lincoln's birthday.

The Levitt development will be the first to be considered since the trustees last week tentatively approved the proposed village master plan and lifted a building moratorium.

The plan commission has recommended that the village board approve Levitt's request to rezone and develop two parcels of land north of Rte. 83.

The strength of the proposed master plan could be tried because Levitt's plans conflict with the suggested land uses on the map.

If the developments are redesigned to conform with the master plan which calls for strictly single-family homes in the area, Levitt will lose approximately 30 acres of buildable land. A representative of the firm has said this would make annexation to the village "economically unfeasible."

Levitt intends to build 75 single-family homes, 225 apartment condominiums and 182 townhouse condominiums on a 50-acre site known as the Koelper-Demuth parcel east of Arlington Heights Road and north of Rte. 83. The development includes several acres of recreational use and open space.

A nearby 61-acre site known as the Wagner parcel is also to be developed with 404 townhouse condominiums. It is located south of Aptakisic Road and east of Arlington Heights Road.

2 party slates, 2 independents weigh local race

Two party slates and at least two independent candidates probably will be on the ballot for the April 17 Buffalo Grove municipal election.

Don Kearns, 471 Middlesex Ct., filed his candidacy Friday and incumbent trustee Jerry Driscoll, 8 University Ct., told the Herald Friday that he intended to file by today's deadline.

Two others, John Ayres, 403 Indian Hill Dr., and Clarice Reeh, 348 Cherrywood Rd., have also taken out petitions and may still file.

Kearns, Chicago sales manager for the Solar Division of International Harvester Co., has been active in community events in the past six years he has lived in the village.

KEARNS is a founder and vice president of the Omni-House Youth Services Bureau and is currently president of Project H.E.L.P.

The father of five children, Kearns says the welfare of youth in the community is one of his biggest concerns. He says Omni-House is "a giant step forward, in helping our younger citizens, but more should be done."

Other issues Kearns feels strongly about are:

—The ratio of multi-family to single-family dwellings in the village.

—Enrollment of all local students in Buffalo Grove High School.

—Finding solutions to flooding problems in the village and finding "a more satisfactory solution" for cleaning up the White Pine Ditch.

DRISCOLL will be running for his first elected term on the board. He is currently serving out the unexpired term of former trustee Chuck Vogt.

He has worked with the Buffalo Grove Alliance (BGA), is a past president of the Booth Tarkington School PTA and has worked as liaison with Cub Scouts and Dist. 21 schools.

Driscoll said he decided to run because he is interested in continuing to provide village residents with responsive government.

"Government should be personal in a town our size," Driscoll said. "Any individual should be able to pick up the phone and get an official or someone to go to bat for him on any problem."

An advertising salesman for the Magazine for Industry publishing house, Driscoll and his wife, Audrey, have lived in the village for about four years. They have three children. Driscoll is a member of St. Edna's Catholic Church in Arlington Heights.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Mrs. Devitt was found alive but later died at Holy Family Hospital. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

'Carelessness' caused fatal fire

by RICH HONACK

"Careless use of smoking materials" is assumed to be the cause of a fire that killed a young Wheeling couple early Friday.

The announcement was made by Wheeling Chief Bernie Koeppen following an investigation by a deputy state fire marshal. Koeppen said the fire apparently started in a couch in the living room.

The couple, Michael and Barbara Devitt, died as a result of the fire at 705 S. Merle Ln.

Devitt, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Devitt, 20, died two hours after she was pulled from the burning building, officials said.

THE OFFICIAL cause of death are being withheld by the Cook County Coroner's office pending an inquest in six weeks.

According to Koeppen, firemen received the alarm at 3:38 a.m. Friday from Devitt's neighbor, William Null. Null was awakened by Larry Steward, 588 E. Merle Ln., who discovered the blaze.

Koeppen said Steward ran to the Devitt residence and pounded on windows and doors. When he didn't get a response he told Null to call the firemen.

The first firemen to arrive on the scene said the house was completely engulfed in flames. They said they found Mrs. Devitt lying unconscious by the back door. She had burns over much of her body.

DEVITT WAS found in a corner of a back bedroom. According to officials, he was not badly burned and apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Koeppen could not explain why the bodies were found in different parts of the house. "No one can explain why people do what they do in a fire. You may think you're running one way and you are going another," said the chief.

Koeppen said everyone should have some type of system for exiting a home during a fire.

THE DEVITT home is located in the more established area of Wheeling. According to officials, the house burned very rapidly.

The fire deaths are the second and third to occur in Wheeling this year. A 78-year-old resident died in his smoke-filled apartment almost one month ago. The cause of that fire was also attributed to burning ashes falling into a chair.

Wheeling reported no fire deaths in 1972.

Residents to press boundary requests

Residents of the Cambridge subdivision of Buffalo Grove will resume their fight to have their area included in the attendance boundaries for Buffalo Grove High School at the High School Dist. 214 Board meeting today.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 799 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

The board will consider proposals for changes in the Buffalo Grove High School boundaries that would place Cambridge in the Buffalo Grove area while transferring some Mount Prospect residents from Hersey to Wheeling High School.

One alternative presented last month

by the Cambridge residents would put their area into Buffalo Grove and would allow residents of the entire Rand Junior High School area, now set to go to Buffalo Grove, to remain at Hersey. In addition, residents of Mount Prospect in Elementary Dist. 21 south of Palatine Road would be transferred from Hersey to Wheeling.

A SECOND ALTERNATIVE, which the Cambridge residents suggested the board could adopt if it wanted to cut enrollment at Hersey further, would split the Rand attendance area along Rand Road so the Berkeley Square, Pinegate and Ivy Hill subdivisions would go to Buffalo Grove. Under that plan the Mount Prospect residents would also be transferred.

The board in November adopted attendance boundaries that place students from the Rand and Cooper junior high school areas into Buffalo Grove and send Cambridge students to Wheeling.

Buffalo Grove High School is now under construction at Dundee and Arlington Heights roads in Buffalo Grove. It is scheduled to open September, 1973.

Also on the agenda for today's meeting is a report from the district's administration outlining plans for a study on school district organization in the area. The study will consider possibilities for forming unit school districts in the area and is being planned in reaction to unit district moves under way in Elk Grove Township Dist. 29.

Caterpillar
still at large

Has anyone seen a large Caterpillar tractor driving around Buffalo Grove or Wheeling? If so, call your local police department, because they are searching for one.

The theft of the $50,000 Caterpillar front wheel loader was reported to the Buffalo Grove Police Department last Friday. The tractor belongs to the Di Paolo Construction Co., which is working on the widening of Dundee Road.

Police said the large tractor was last seen in a parking lot at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads late Wednesday night. They added that it must have been taken early Thursday morning after the snow had stopped.

Police also said they believe the vehicle was not taken by a private citizen. Construction company officials said a person must have working knowledge of the controls to drive the machine.

The top speed of the tractor is 20 miles per hour, and police believe it was loaded on a truck, rather than driven away. The vehicle is yellow-orange and has a cab in which the driver can sit.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,600 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong released 142 American prisoners of war last night — the first of nearly 600 to be freed in the Vietnam peace settlement — to U.S. officials waiting to fly them to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. One hundred fifteen American POWs were released in Hanoi and 27 held in jungle camps were released at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. Planes from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines flew to Vietnam for the evacuation.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese peace delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Helmsay Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other persons, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Helafjall volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Residents to vote on ice skating complex—again

For the third time in two years, Elk Grove Park District residents will vote on a proposal to build an indoor ice skating complex.

The proposition will be included in a two-part park district referendum. The second proposal will call for a park development plan.

Park district commissioners voted unanimously at their meeting Thursday to hold the referendum. Date of the referendum will be set at the next park district meeting.

Park Comr. David Von Schaumburg who proposed the referendum called for a cost of up to $700,000 for the ice rink. Park development costs will total $300,000.

THE COMMISSIONERS' decision comes a few months after a recommendation from a citizens' committee that the park district hold a referendum on the ice rink issue.

The committee was established last summer by the park district to make recommendations for future park district projects. The committee's recommendation was based on a survey of park district residents.

The park district decided to hold the referendum even though two years ago proposals for an ice complex and park development were voted down twice in two months.

Park Dist. Pres. Edward Hauser said during Thursday's consideration of the referendum, "I'm not able to determine how the situation has changed from two years ago."

VON SCHAUMBURG agreed with Hauser but pointed out that construction costs on an indoor ice complex are climbing: "In another five to six years costs will be much higher, and other park districts will probably limit their rinks to residents' only use and block Elk Grove residents."

Park Comr. Lew Smith contended the board must abide by the results of the survey. (Board members have long indicated they would follow the recommendations that came from the citizens' committee survey). As to whether there has been a change in voter attitude, Smith said the referendum would be the best way to find out.

The board also discussed relative costs of an indoor ice skating rink. According to Roland Schapanaki, park district architect, a facility described as a "bare, functional rink" would cost about $483,000. The facility would be without locker rooms, spectator areas and the like. A more complete facility, similar to one built recently in Winnetka, would cost up to $600,000, he said. Schapanaki stressed, however, these were only preliminary estimates.

Four arrested, $50,000 'pot' seized at motel

A two-month investigation of drugs at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village ended Friday night with the arrest of four persons and the confiscation of 100 pounds of marijuana with a street value of more than $50,000.

"We theorize that we have now cut off the major supply of marijuana to the Elk Grove Village area," police Lt. Ray Marnece said of the arrests.

The four were arrested after agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an areawide law enforcement agency, and Elk Grove Village Detective Richard Rusch arranged and witnessed the sale of the marijuana for $15,000. Both the money and the marijuana were confiscated in the arrest.

Carroll was charged with delivery of marijuana, Maheris with delivery of marijuana and resisting arrest. Paepaka was charged with conspiracy to deliver and sell marijuana. Raemisch was charged with delivery of marijuana and aggravated assault. Raemisch allegedly was carrying a loaded .22-caliber automatic pistol at the time of the arrest.

THE CONFISCATION of marijuana Friday was one of the biggest caches in which Elk Grove Village police have been involved in recovering.

Bond for Carroll and Raemisch was set at $4,000. Bond for Paepaka and Maheris was set at $2,500. All four were released on bond. Their court date was set for Feb. 27 in Skokie.

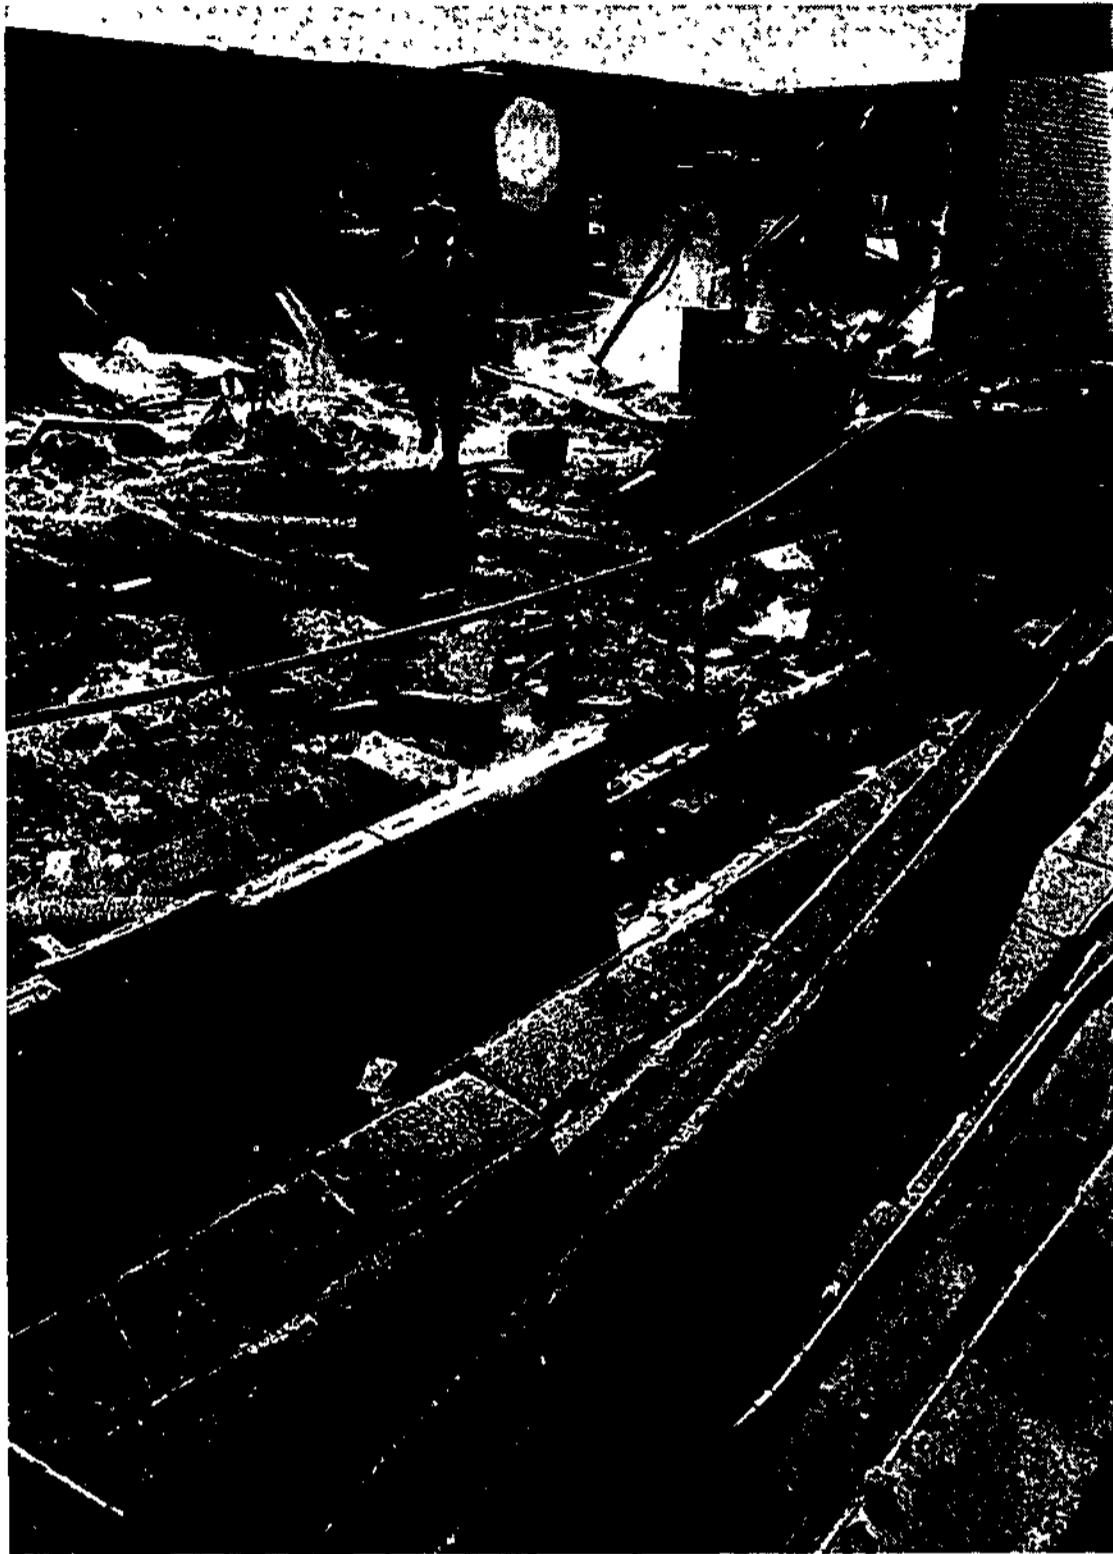

In another apparently unrelated incident, Elk Grove Village police arrested two men Friday night for possession of marijuana.

The two, Kenneth Eckel Jr., 28, of 4325 N. Richmond Ave., Chicago, and Sten Fischel, 21, of 422 W. Lake St., Addison, were arrested in the parking lot of Jake's Pizzeria, 66 E. Devon, when they offered an undercover policeman a marijuana cigarette. Both were charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

Schools closed for Lincoln's Birthday

Schools in Elk Grove Village will be closed today in honor of Lincoln's Birthday. All Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 schools, Elk Grove High School, and Queen of the Rosary School will be closed.

All village, Elk Grove Township, library, park district and Community Service facilities will be open regular hours today.

Unit district study 'high priority'

Study of a tentative unit district composed of the attendance areas of High School Dist. 214's four southern high schools has been given high priority by the Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee in School Dist. 59.

The four-high school model is one of three boundaries for a unit district (grades kindergarten through 12) that will be studied in depth by the committee. Twenty-one of the committee's nearly 50 members met Thursday night and voted on a list of five proposed boundaries. Those that will be studied, in order of preference by the committee, are:

- A unit of the four high school attendance areas, including Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect;
- An Elk Grove Village Unit;
- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.
- A unit district of three of Dist. 214's high school attendance areas, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect or Rolling Meadows, was rated fourth by the committee. A unit of all of Dist. 214 was rated fifth. As a result, they were both dropped from the list.
- After voting to study a unit of all of Elk Grove Village, the committee amended the boundaries to include a small portion of the village just west of Ill. Rte. 53. That portion is currently in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, which feeds into High School Dist. 211.

GEORGE CONEY, chairman of the general committee, said Dist. 54 has indicated it would be willing to give up that portion of its district to a unit district. Coney also said residents in that area have indicated they would be in favor of coming into such a unit district.

Coney stressed he hoped members of the five sub-committees, which will make separate studies of the proposed unit districts, will recommend any (Continued on page 3)

$100,000 plant fire being probed

Officials from the Elk Grove Village Fire Department and the state fire marshal's office are investigating the cause of a fire that broke out Friday at International Fiber Glass Inc., 340 Bennett. The fire gutted the building and caused an estimated $100,000 damage.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said there is some indication the fire may have started in the loading dock area of the building.

Every truck and engine from the village fire department was called to the scene to fight the blaze. Hulett said the first fire call was received at 5:16 a.m. Friday. By the time the first fire engine arrived, the entire building was engulfed in flames and part of the roof had collapsed.

No one was hurt by the fire, but three firemen narrowly escaped injury when a section of the roof collapsed. Hulett, Lt. Donald Langland and firefighter Paul Mack left an office portion of the building moments before the collapse.

During the fire, an engine from the Schaumburg Fire Department served as a backup unit at the Elk Grove Village fire station. Schaumburg Chief Lloyd Abrahamson accompanied the engine.

A backup ambulance from the Hoffman Estates Fire Department also was called in.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand Corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,600 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Fallsades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong released 142 American prisoners of war last night — the first of nearly 600 to be freed in the Vietnam peace settlement — to U.S. officials waiting to fly them to Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. One hundred fifteen American POWs were released in Hanoi and 27 held in jungle camps were released at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. Planes from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines flew to Vietnam for the evacuation.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Helmaney Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other persons, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Helafjell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

3 independents call for 'fiscal responsibility'

Three independent candidates for Schaumburg Township public office have called for fiscal responsibility in releasing their platform. They said they want to play a key role in managing the $750,000 the township will receive this year.

Independents Charles R. (Dick) English, 1916 Cloverdale Ct., Timothy O'Brien, 1401 Elmhurst Ln., and Frank Domenico, 233 Salem Dr., all of Schaumburg, emphasized they are an independent slate.

At a press conference kicking off their campaign, English said he and his running mates are not against the Republican slate of nine that is seeking the election in April.

Stressing what he called "a positive campaign," he said, "We are running for office and are not against anyone. In fact we are all three registered Republicans," English said. "But we don't expect any help from the GOP party," he added.

"But that doesn't mean we think we can win the election ourselves," he said.

Admitting he and O'Brien are members of the Schaumburg United Party, English said the slate would not turn down support from SUP or any other interested party in the township.

"IN FACT I went to Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher, a fellow SUP member, for advice when I wanted to run for office. It was just an amateur asking the expert for advice and my efforts as a candidate are as an independent," said English.

"Our campaign will be funded by the three of us and we worked alone to put together a platform based on sound financial management and local action to achieve desirable results."

The five-point election platform is based on these planks:

• Mosquito control by developing a township wide mosquito control program in cooperation with and as a supplement to other governmental programs.

Financial management that calls for a reduction of the tax rate as the tax base increases, a reduction of township administrative costs and preparation and publication of semi-annual reports.

• A youth committee that includes teenage leaders and representative of all youth oriented organizations in the township. The committee and officials will work together to channel township funds directly to these organizations.

• And, continued support in a businesslike manner of "traditional township programs such as mental health and welfare and roads."

ELABORATING ON the planks, English said the slate, if elected, will look closely at office costs.

"What do they really do?" asked English. He said his slate is not charging negligence, "but just wants to make sure all the present employees are needed."

The independents said they conducted a study that shows the township will receive $750,000 from taxes and federal revenue sharing this year.

"That money should be used to pay for programs that residents would normally pay for out of their own pockets."

"We will find out if we can legally give funds to the Boy Scouts, YMCA or other youth groups."

"Instead of putting the money into township offices or staff expenses, it will go for such programs," said English.

Domenico, who is active in youth work through the Schaumburg Jaycees, said he "wants to see a redefinition of youth programs stressing positive ideas."

"I've been meeting with young people and they say they want to be in what's happening. They should be active members of the youth committee," he added.

Domenico would organize a committee to work with local organizations to centralize youth programs and projects.

A working relationship with park and school boards to set up personal development courses where girls could learn to cook or learn habits of good grooming, is one of Domenico's goals.

HE ALSO wants the township to give youngsters notice where open parks exist so they can use them when organized activities are not going on. The youth committee plank also calls for an exchange of ideas between communities, and working with school and park districts to help the drop-outs develop skills.

All three candidates say their campaign will start by making the public aware that township government exists and can affect their lives in a positive way.

Any group that wants to hear the three explain their campaign pledges can contact any candidate to arrange a coffee or talk session, said English.

English, 32, is married and has two children. He works as a corporate auditor for the Arvey Corp. and holds a degree in finance. A Sheffield Park homeowner for the past three years, he is a member of SUP, the Schaumburg Jaycees, the Sheffield Park Homeowners Association, and is sustaining membership chairman for the Boy Scouts of America.

O'Brien, 33, is married and has two children. A Sheffield Park homeowner for the past 15 months, he also is a member of the homeowners association. He is employed as manager of programming for Allied Mills of Chicago, and is a member of SUP and the St. Hubert's West, Church Board. O'Brien has a degree in mathematics and business administration.

Domenico and his wife, Barbara, have lived in Schaumburg for four years. He is an active member of the Jaycees and chairs the drug abuse, youth, and walk-for-mankind committees. He organized a Cub Scout pack. Domenico is employed at Baxter Laboratories in Deerfield.

Speedskating contest to be held Saturday

The first annual speedskating contest, co-sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees and the Elk Grove Park District, will be held at 4 p.m. Saturday at Olmstead Park, Kennedy Boulevard and Cypress Lane.

The contest is open to boys and girls up to 15 years old. Applications are to be distributed through the schools.

Trophies will be awarded to first place finishers in each age group and the winners will be eligible to advance to the Jaycees' regional speedskating contest.

Age groups and skating distances for boys are: six years old and under, 100 yards; seven years old, 110 yards; eight years old, 220 yards; nine years old, 220 yards; 10 years old, 330 yards; 11 years old, 330 yards; 12 years old, 440 yards; 13 years old, 440 yards; and 14 and 15 years old, 880 yards.

Girls age groups and distances are the same as the boys except that 14 to 15 year old girls will skate 660 yards.

Dog obedience class will begin Feb. 19

A dog obedience course, sponsored by the Elk Grove Park District, will begin Feb. 19. The eight-week course will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday at the Grant Wood Youth Center, Ridge Avenue and Elk Grove Boulevard.

Dogs must be at least six months old and have all required vaccinations before being enrolled in the course. Owners must be old enough to control the dogs, no one younger than a sixth grader will be accepted.

The course will be taught by Linda Hoiste, who taught the park district's dog obedience course last summer.

The course is limited to 20 dogs and the registration fee is $3. Information about the course may be obtained by calling the park district, 437-8780.

Girl Scouts slate 'Friendship Fair'

Girls Scout service unit 481 of Elk Grove Village will hold a "Friendship Fair" from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Elk Grove High School field house.

The fair will present the dress, food and customs from various foreign countries. Information and equipment for various camping trips open to Elk Grove Village scouts will also be available at the fair.

After the fair, Clara Spizewski will be welcomed as the new chairman of the service unit.

Grant Wood School fun fair Saturday

The Grant Wood School PTC will sponsor a fun fair from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the school, Ridge and Elk Grove Boulevard, Elk Grove Village.

Games booths, games and refreshments will be available at the fair.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was found alive but later died at Holy Family Hospital. Des Plaines, while her husband was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

For mental care counseling

Two-township health center formed

A new agency known as the Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships Mental Health Center has been created to oversee mental health counseling for the two townships.

The new organization was set up last Thursday as part of the reorganization of Elk Grove Community Service, an Elk Grove Village not-for-profit social agency.

The reorganization of Community Service with the creation of the new agency was required after the agency received a $32,000 state grant last summer to establish a mental health center for Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. Prior to the awarding of the grant, Community Service had been an Elk Grove Village agency.

A 15-member board of directors will govern the new agency which will be responsible for the administration and funding of mental health counseling services for the two townships.

ALL NON-COUNSELING services and programs of Community Service will continue to be operated by the Community Service Board of Directors.

As a result of the reorganization there will be a board of directors for Community Service and a second board for the mental health center. However, the two boards will share some members.

The new mental health center board will consist of nine members of the present Community Service board and six representatives from Schaumburg Township. All members of the Community Service board are Elk Grove Village residents.

A nominating committee of the nine members will select the Schaumburg Township members who then will be elected to the new board by the other board members.

THE NEW BOARD members will have three-year terms. A means of staggering the terms will be worked out after the board has been selected.

Further details on the organization of the new group will be worked out at a March 8 meeting.

The reorganization of Community Service came about at the annual meeting Thursday of the not-for-profit corporation. Before the meeting, the Community Service Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting. At this meeting:

Jordan Rosen, executive director of Community Service, gave a report on the changes in the boundaries they feel necessary.

The vote on boundaries came after more than a hour's discussion. Bob Melroy, vice-chairman of the facility and transportation committee, said he thought an Elk Grove Village unit would be advantageous, but difficult "to sell."

"I think from Elk Grove Village's standpoint, it would be very advantageous," Melroy said. "But it would be the most controversial boundary, the hardest to get through." Melroy said such a boundary would create opposition because it would create a split in existing Dist. 59.

Victor Johnson, also a member of the transportation and facilities committee, pointed out that a unit of Dist. 59 boundaries would create "a lot of shuffling of students." Currently students from Mount Prospect Dist. 57 attend Forest View High School along with those from Dist. 59.

EMIL BAHNMAIER, secretary of the general committee, estimated that under such a unit, 400 to 500 students would have to be transferred. He said, however, "We could avoid a lot of shuffling" if the attendance for Juliette Law School, in Dist. 59 and Arlington Heights, was left out of such a unit district.

agency's requests for grants from state, township, village and charity organizations.

Jean Seidlin, chairman of the newly formed Committee of Women, announced plans to start a monthly newsletter for the women of the village. The board of directors authorized $400 for the cost of the first issue, to be published in May.

The board approved the hiring of a counseling consultant for Community Service. Rosen said the consultant will be paid from state grant funds.

480 pounds of wiring stolen from plant

Some 480 pounds of copper wiring worth $330 was stolen last week from Chicago Magnet Wire Corp., 901 Chase Ave., Elk Grove Village. Police said a forklift probably was used to remove the wiring.

Independent Party
files for public office

The Village Independent Party (VIP) candidates for the Palatine Village Board officially filed petitions Saturday to be listed on the April 17 ballot.

The candidates submitted the petitions in village hall.

Hending the VIP slate for village president is Clayton W. Brown, 42, of 508 W. Glenwood Rd. He has been a village trustee since 1967.

Seeking the four-year trustee seats are incumbents Thomas F. Ahern, who was appointed to the village board in 1971; Terry L. Leighty, appointed, then later elected to the board in 1969; and Shirley A. Munson, appointed to the board in 1972. Kent L. Bradley is the VIP candidate for the unexpired two-year trustee seat, and Marilyn J. Bogen is the party's candidate for village clerk.

The VIPs will face a slate put forth by the Palatine Township Regular Republican Organization.

Independent candidates have until 4:30 p.m. today to file for village office. Petitions bearing the signatures of at least 204 registered voters must be submitted to village hall.

Palatine trustees Saturday grappled with the prospect of a strict animal control ordinance with no teeth.

They agreed that the ordinance, put on the books last fall, must either be enforced or virtually revoked but did not decide whether to provide the funds needed to carry out its provisions.

The four members of the village board who attended the budget meeting — finance committee chairman Shirley A. Munson and trustees Thomas F. Ahern, Clayton W. Brown and Wendell E. Jones — chose to put off a decision until this Sunday when another budget discussion will be held. Absent Saturday were Mayor Jack Moodie and trustees Terry L. Leighty and Fred H. Zajonc.

At stake is the effectiveness of the controversial animal control ordinance that was adopted overwhelmingly by the trustees in October.

BECAUSE OF a manpower shortage, the village health department has not attempted to enforce the ordinance, except for answering complaints involving cats or dogs creating a nuisance.

Some $9,800 was provided in the preliminary 1973-74 village operating budget for a fulltime animal warden, but Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun later deleted the item when told to reduce expenditures.

Some of the trustees appeared unwilling to restore the $9,800 to the budget, but environmental health director Richard A. Dawson said he believed that within two years, the animal control program would "substantially pay for itself."

Only 160 cat licenses had been sold as of the beginning of February, which Trustee Brown suggested indicated a lack of support for the animal ordinance.

DAWSON COUNTERED, however, that "people aren't going to pay for something they don't think they have to get," and unless the ordinance is effectively enforced, residents simply will not bother licensing their pets. He estimated that there are "thousands" of cats in the village.

The ordinance was designed to regulate the behavior of the animals by restricting their presence outdoors to their owner's property or "within a reasonable distance" of the owner. In that way, it was believed, fewer nuisances would be caused and the stray population could be controlled.

Most of Saturday's budget session was devoted to scrutinizing budget requests for the public works department.

The trustees agreed to purchase a $45,000 high-pressure sewer cleaner, but did not decide whether to take the funds from the budget or from federal revenue sharing funds.

THE MACHINE, which operates on a vacuum principle, removes sludge from sewer lines, thus restoring their full capacity.

The trustees also tentatively decided that the village would continue its tree removal and trimming programs, but left open the possibility that these expenses may later be trimmed from the budget.

A decision over whether to undertake large-scale repairs to the combined sewer system in Palatine Park and older sections of town — and how to finance such repairs — was put off until over-all Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage plans are finalized, possibly a year.

Today's last day to get on ballot

Today is the final day Palatine residents with political ambitions can get themselves listed on the April 17 local election ballot.

Petitions bearing the signatures of 204 registered voters must be submitted by 4:30 p.m. today to village hall, 54 S. Broadway St., for candidates to be included on the ballot.

Candidates must be registered voters living in the village.

Don't trust government, Crane says

by CINDY TEW

"Don't trust government or politicians," U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, told 300 St. Viator High School students Friday. "Man is imperfect and so are his institutions."

Crane spent more than a half an hour responding to students' questions ranging from parochialism and abortion to amnesty to draft dodgers. Crane launched into his hardest hitting commentary when asked about the waste in government and why people are losing faith in their representatives.

"There are 2.8 million people in the federal bureaucracy — that monstrosity on the Potomac," said Crane. "It's too big to be managed and we don't even know half of the corruption that's going on."

The only way the problem is going to be solved, according to Crane, is to decentralize the government and give the power back to the people.

"REVENUE SHARING is a step in the right direction — at least the local governments are getting back some of the local taxpayers' money," said Crane.

A well-known conservative, who won a landslide victory in November in the new 12th congressional district, Crane was well received by the students. Many students said they agreed with most of his ideas.

The congressman received a smattering of boos, however, for his views on parochialism.

"State aid to non-public schools should not be given as an outright monetary contribution," said Crane. As the boos died down, Crane was quick to point out that he planned to submit legislation so parents could receive a tax credit for tuition paid to non-public schools.

"Direct financial aid to non-public schools is unconstitutional but a monolithic school system in the county is undesirable," said Crane. "By offering tax credit for tuition cost the church and state could remain separate and the extra cost of non-public education wouldn't be such a burden."

U. S. REP. PHILIP M. Crane, R-12th, told students at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights that he was against amnesty for draft dodgers, against using a lottery to add to state revenue, against the recent

MIKE MOONEY, a senior at the Arlington Heights Catholic boys school, told Crane he disagreed with the congressman's position of no amnesty for draft dodgers.

"I am totally opposed to amnesty for draft dodgers," said Crane. "Unless you become a conscious objector and declare that you object to all wars you have two options if you don't want to be drafted. Either leave the country and don't come back or pay the price by going to jail."

"The laws of the country cannot be chosen selectively to meet your needs of the moment."

Crane also said he was "appalled" by both the Supreme Court decision on abortion and the possible use of a lottery to increase state revenue.

"I'm appalled that the Supreme Court would even get into the abortion issue. Now it is the law of the land that until a fetus is able to live outside the womb it is not human. I think life starts at conception and who is the Supreme Court justice to tell me otherwise." Crane has seven daughters and a son. "All we need is two more girls and we'll have a volleyball team and a water boy," he said.

CRANE SAID every state should make its own decision on the abortion issue.

"If the people at New York want abortion on demand, I'll despair, but in Illinois, where more sanity prevails, I'll fight to keep strict abortion laws," said Crane.

Crane said he is against a state lottery because the people who would get involved are those who can least afford it.

"It is improper for the state to resort to that sort of thing — it's unwholesome," he said.

Board seeks athletics rule review

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education will join with a Fremd High School parent in seeking a change in athletic eligibility rules enforced by the Illinois High School Association.

The board agreed to ask the IHSA board of directors to review the rule prohibiting student participation in "coaching schools" during the school year after hearing the cases of three Fremd girls who have been declared ineligible for interscholastic competition.

In all three cases, described by William Whiting, the father of two of the girls, the girls were ruled ineligible because they received instruction in sports other than the ones they were participating in.

Kim Whiting, a Fremd freshman, was ruled ineligible for the school's volleyball team because she had received group tennis lessons at a private club, Whiting said. Because of her ineligibility the Fremd junior varsity volleyball team forfeited all games she had participated in.

KIM'S SISTER Sue, Whiting said, was barred from the girl's basketball squad because she had also received coaching in tennis at a private club.

In addition, he said, Mary Yelovick, a freshman at Fremd, was declared ineligible for the school's varsity volleyball squad because she was also a member of the Countryside YMCA swim team. Fremd has a tennis team but does not provide any interscholastic competition in swimming.

Whiting explained he has written a letter to Harry Fitzhugh, executive secretary of the IHSA, the governing body for competitive high school sports, asking that the rule which made all three girls ineligible be reconsidered.

In his letter Whiting described himself as "a confused parent intensely interested in the school programs designed to develop well-rounded children scholastically, athletically and in other interest." He said he has not yet received a reply from Fitzhugh.

The rule in question specifically prohibits students from participating in any "coaching school" in any interscholastic sport while a member of any school team. Included in the rule are community recreation programs and "any program . . . sponsored by any organization or individual or designed specifically to instruct participants in the theory or practice of any interscholastic sport."

THE RULE defines as interscholastic sports baseball, softball, basketball, cross country, fencing, football, soccer, golf, gymnastics, swimming, tennis, track and field and wrestling plus any other sports with inter-school competition.

Whiting told the board he understands how the rule might be used to prevent football or basketball teams from becoming "professional," but added, "The rule prevents students from taking tennis, golf or swimming lessons during the school year and it doesn't seem quite the purpose of the rule to do that."

Following Whiting's presentation, Board Pres. Robert Creek asked Supt. Richard Kolze to draw up a formal letter to the IHSA board. Creek said, "I think I sense the board is feeling, if not outraged, at least that this is a chicken rule and should be changed."

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand Corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,600 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

A procedural question over the release of Communist prisoners could stall the return of all POWs, a Viet Cong spokesman said. A South Vietnamese spokesman at the Bien Hoa prison camp, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, said the Communist POWs there were refusing to board the planes to take them to freedom, UPI correspondent Tracy Wood reported. A North Vietnamese spokesman confirmed the refusal and said the POWs were waiting until the American truce representative arrived.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission, peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Heimaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other persons, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Hekla volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Enrollment increased in instrumental plan

Instrumental enrollment is up by 27 students in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 this year.

Fourth through eighth-grade students are recruited for the Dist. 15 instrumental program every fall with the target enrollment at the fourth-grade level.

Total enrollment in the instrumental program is 1,613 students this year. This compares to 1,588 in 1971 and 1,496 students in 1970.

Significant enrollment increases were experienced at Cardinal Drive, Carl Sandburg, Willow Bend and Plum Grove Schools in Rolling Meadows and Pleasant Hill and Joel Wood Schools in Palatine.

A decrease in enrollment of 10 or more students was experienced at Virginia Lake, Lincoln, Gary M. Sanborn and Hunting Ridge Schools in Palatine and Jonas Salk and Kimball Hill Schools in Rolling Meadows.

3 students expelled from high schools

Three students were expelled from High School Dist. 211 schools for the remainder of the semester by the district's board.

Included in the expulsions were two Schaumburg High School students and a Palatine High School student. All were expelled for gross disobedience and misconduct.

73 Miss Palatine entrants sought

Comb those locks into place, girls, and brush up on the old soft shoe. It's "Miss Palatine" time again.

The Palatine Jaycees are sponsoring the contest again this year. The winner will go on to the Miss Illinois contest, and possibly, the Miss America pageant.

Local entrants must live in Palatine and be between 18 and 28 years of age, as of Sept. 1, 1973.

Judging will be on the basis of talent, appearance and personality, according to Dr. Lee Bell, who is coordinating this year's contest for the Jaycees.

Miss Palatine 1973 will be named at a ceremony April 28. Entries, which can be made by individuals or organizations, must be submitted to Dr. or Mrs. Bell, 339-0538, by April 2.

Judges in the contest will be affiliated with the Miss Illinois and Miss America contests.

Township Dems looking for big crossover vote

by JULIA BAUER

Palatine Township Democrats are looking for a big crossover vote in the April 3 election, based on their stand that Palatine Township government should be abolished.

The abolition issue is likely to become the primary debating point between Republican and Democratic township candidates. But Richard Mugallan, Democratic committeeman, said abolishing township government is a "completely non-partisan" concern of candidates who have promised to run for that purpose.

Mugallan contended that voters, regardless of party affiliation, should recognize that township government is "kind of a wasteful, duplicative kind of government."

At party caucuses last week, Republican township candidates vowed to support the township concept in Palatine, while Democrats said they would work to get the township level defeated in a referendum if they are elected.

THE FIRST abolish-township rumblings began last year when the Palatine League of Women Voters (LWV) circulated petitions requesting township officials to include the question of abolishing that level of government at the polls Nov. 7.

When those petitions were denied, the LWV took township officials to court in a legal battle that continued until the day before the election. One of the chief organizers of the local abolition move is LWV member Ann Scollay, who has been the league's township observer for 2½ years.

Mrs. Scollay's husband, Jack, is the Democrats' township supervisor candidate. And he and the other members of the Democratic slate appeared convinced that the area would be better off without township government.

Republicans have traditionally dominated the township, but the first election with candidates actually running under the GOP label was in 1961. And the Republicans technically lost that one.

IN PREVIOUS elections before 1961, only local party candidates entered the contest. For the eight years following the '61 vote, one of the hottest campaign issues was whether or not national parties should enter local candidates for election. That issue split both the Republicans and the relatively small Democratic party.

The Township Non-Partisan Party, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans opposing the regular organization, won all but two of the major township offices in 1961. A third group, the Citizens United Party, were all Democrats and many have stalled a Non-Partisan sweep of the township race. By 1965, the balance had tilted.

Liston Pennington, township supervisor from 1961 to 1965, was running for reelection under a Republican-Democrat coalition calling themselves the Better Government Party. When the ballots were in, straight-ticket voting brought an end to local parties in Palatine Township elections.

Nearly half of the township votes cast in 1965 were straight-Republican. The regular Democrats were haggling among themselves and did not enter a slate. Pennington, a Republican, was defeated by Howard I. Olsen, a Republican running as a Republican.

THE MOST recent vote, in 1969, was also the first township election that officially put Democrats against Republicans. Olsen and most of the other current township officers swept the election by a three to one landslide to win a second term.

Now, it's Democrats against Republicans for the second time in Palatine Township. Pennington is running with Olsen in this race. And the Democrats are entering the contest for offices they say should be legally abolished. If the Democrats can convince enough voters of that, they could swing the independents to their side and balance out the roughly two to one Republican edge in the township, Mugallan said.

Whatever the outcome, a majority of the new township board of auditors will be different people than the current board members, who have served for the past eight years. All three incumbent auditors, Carl Bals, Russell Bramwell and Richard Bayer, are not entering the race, and highway commissioner Vernon L. Bergman is resigning.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was found alive but later died at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, while her husband was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

PTA notes

Chief White Eagle, a motion picture and TV personality, will be the guest speaker at the Paddock School PTA on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Chief White Eagle will appear in his native costume and tell little known humorous and educational facts about the American Indian. His presentation will include facts relating to past generations, coupled with facts about the modern Indian and way of life in the space age.

"HOTLINE FOR a mental skinned knee or fractured carnum" will be the topic of the Sanborn-Wood PTA meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Sanborn School gymnasium.

The phrase is used to describe the many services that the Bridge offers Palatine residents. Two staff members of the Bridge, Don Rago and Leanne Levchuk, will be at the meeting to describe the services offered by the Bridge, and answer questions.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting. Free babysitting and coffee will be provided.

Board of education meeting Tuesday

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education will hold a committee-of-the-whole meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the administration building, 505 S. Quentin, Palatine.

The purpose of the committee meeting is to discuss bids on the life safety code work to be done at Winston Park School in Palatine this spring and summer.

The bids will be accepted at the board's regular meeting on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the administration building.

County Farm Bureau still growing—after 53 years

by JOANN VAN WYE

"A farm bureau won't last three years in Cook County."

That was the common sentiment in 1920 when the Cook County Farm Bureau was organized.

Today, 53 years later, the Cook County Farm Bureau not only exists, but is the largest in the state, boasting a membership of 8,200.

And the last time there was any talk of dissolving the Cook County Farm Bureau was in 1925 when some wanted the county to be carved up and given to adjoining counties for farm bureau services. Leaders of the farm bureau held on. Now the Cook County Farm Bureau is so sure of its continued role in serving Cook County that it is planning to construct a new facility in Rolling Meadows.

"We have just outgrown our present facility," said Gordon Fox, executive secretary of the Cook County Farm Bureau. When the farm bureau moved to its present Arlington Heights location at 201 N. Dunton Ave. in 1934 there were five or six employees. There are 20 farm bureau employees there now.

GROUND WILL be broken this spring for a new two-story building on the west side of Hicks Road, just north of Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows. Fox is hopeful the building will be ready for occupancy in the fall. The University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service will share the building with the Cook County Farm Bureau and there will be additional office space for rent.

Membership in the Cook County Farm Bureau has increased steadily despite the demise of farmers as land becomes too expensive to farm and is bought up by developers who erect large apartment complexes and subdivisions on what was once prime farm land.

GOP hopefuls to hold 'Listen-In' session

The Republican candidates for the Palatine Village Board will hold another "Listen-In" session this week to obtain suggestions for the party's platform.

This time, rather than seeking residential input, the "Listen-In" will be primarily for business and industrial ideas.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the Slade Street fire station.

Most people don't realize it but there are still 75,000 acres of land in cultivation in Cook County, but mainly in the southern portion of the county, said Fox.

And approximately 50 per cent of the Cook County Farm Bureau's membership is made up of farmers. These are the voting members of the bureau who have retained the control and guidance of the farm bureau. Many of the voting members don't actually farm in Cook County but own farms downstate and live in the county.

THE OTHER members of the county farm bureau are called associate members and they have no vote. These members usually join the farm bureau to take advantage of the commercial services it offers to members including insurance programs.

The farm bureau system was originally organized to help farmers become more efficient producers and promote a more profitable system of agriculture.

Over the years, the scope of the farm bureau has broadened. In addition to educational services, the farm bureau maintains a lobby both in Springfield and Washington, D.C. and offers commercial services to its members.

Three full time lobbyists represent the farmers in Springfield serving as watch dogs to head off legislation detrimental to agriculture and push for more favorable legislation. The national association also maintains a full time lobby corps in Washington, D.C. to present a strong united voice for farmers.

COMMERCIAL services were added to the farm bureau's operation in the 1920s and 1930s. Insurance was one of the first business services the farmers called for. In 1929 Country Life Insurance Co. was organized to meet the needs of farmers in Illinois. Country Companies Insurance now offers its members a complete line of insurance.

A second commercial service available to farmers is the Lake-Cook Farm Supply Co. This is a farmer's cooperative that makes seed, petroleum, garden supplies and other agricultural needs available to farm bureau members at reduced prices. There are four stores in Cook County that farm members can purchase from. Farm bureau members become common stockholders of the cooperative and at the end of each fiscal year they receive a patronage refund based on the amount of supplies they purchased from the cooperative during the year.

The farm bureau also maintains a sports program. This includes bowling and softball tournaments.

It's an uncontested race in Inverness—probably

Inverness village trustee candidates, are likely to run unopposed in the April 17 election, with today the final day for filing a statement of candidacy with the village clerk.

All but two of the expiring terms will be filled by new officers. Alvin W. Ruck, currently a trustee, and Sandra Johnson, village clerk, are the only incumbents running for reelection.

Village president Forrest Ellemann told the trustees last month that he would not seek another term. Russell V. Fuzey, of 985 N. Blackburn Dr., filed Friday as a candidate for Ellemann's position.

Trustee candidates for four-year terms are Frederick P. Gore, 1891 W. Pheasant Trail and Harold E. Timmer, 1765 W. Kitson Circle. Wally Pugh of 1457 W. Banbury Rd. will be a trustee candidate for a two-year term.

INCUMBENTS WHO are not running for another term are Sy D. Moorman, Robert Nelson and Barbara Alexander, who was appointed to fill the office of Daniel P. Wachs after he resigned in August.

Villagers formed a nominating committee to make candidate recommendations to the Inverness Association, the village homeowners group. The Association, which acted as the governing body of the area before Inverness was incorporated into a village in 1963, was criticized during the last election for being too closed to nominations. The Association traditionally has nominated an unopposed slate of trustee candidates.

The citizen committee this year was an attempt to avoid such criticism. Association president Owen Doss said. Letters were mailed to all villagers requesting them to submit names of likely trustee candidates.

Continuing trustees whose terms will expire in 1975 are George W. Guderly and James Valliere.

Will oppose Jacobson

Macklin, zoning board member, to run in 5th Ward

A member of the zoning board of appeals will oppose Rolling Meadows 5th Ward Ald. Fredrick Jacobson in the April 17 election.

Bernard T. Macklin, 4601 Magnolia Dr., filed a petition Friday to challenge Jacobson for the seat. Macklin was appointed to the zoning board two years ago by Mayor Roland Meyer.

Macklin will have the support of Rudolf Balek, a police and fire commission member who had previously announced he would oppose Jacobson. Balek said Friday he has decided not to run and will work for Macklin's election.

Balek, a former alderman, was defeated by Jacobson in 1969 in a close race.

"I didn't think a three-way race would lead to Jacobson's defeat," Balek said Friday. "I had said that I didn't want to see anyone get in my ward on a free ride. But as long as there will be competition in the ward, I have decided not to run and to support Bernie Macklin."

BALEK SAID he discussed the election with Macklin prior to Macklin's filing. Balek said he agreed to support Macklin in an effort to unseat Jacobson, who Balek charged has been "insensitive to the needs of the people in the 5th Ward."

According to Balek, Macklin had supported Jacobson for the city council post in 1969 but feels now as Balek does that the incumbent has not provided the kind of leadership for the city they would like to see.

Jacobson could not be reached for comment Friday.

Macklin said Friday he had been urged to run by neighbors in the ward. "I think we need more equal representation in the ward because now both aldermen (Jacobson and Kenneth Retzko) live in the north end of the ward," Macklin said.

MACKLIN RESIDES in the southern end of the ward.

"I think I could do a better job of communicating with the people in the ward," Macklin said.

Macklin has lived in the city for the past six years after nine years as a resident of Bensenville. Before moving to Bensenville, Macklin's family lived in Rolling Meadows for four years.

He is employed as vice president of manufacturing at Electrical Conductors Inc. in North Chicago and is the father of four children.

Macklin's candidacy marks the first race for a council seat. Four other aldermen seeking reelection, Merrill Wuerch (1st), Thomas Waldron (2nd), Stephen Eberhard (3rd), and Daniel Weber (4th), have not yet had opponents file to run against them.

WEBER WAS THE last incumbent to file, having turned in his petition Friday. He had hesitated in declaring his candidacy because he thought future business commitments might interfere with his aldermanic duties.

However, he reconsidered when neighbors urged him to run and presented him with a completed petition which they had circulated.

Deadline for filing petitions is 5 p.m. today. Although city hall will be closed for regular business today in observance of Lincoln's birthday, Deputy City Clerk Elizabeth Houldsworth will accept petitions from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., except during the noon hour.

City, township halls closed for holiday

City hall, Palatine Township Hall, schools in Dist. 15, 211 and 214, banks and all federal government offices will be closed today in observance of Lincoln's Birthday.

Rolling Meadows Park District offices will be open and there will be a person at city hall all day to accept nominating petitions for the April aldermanic races.

U. S. REP. PHILIP M. Crane, R-12th, told students at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights that he was against amnesty for draft dodgers, against using a lottery to add to state revenue, against the recent

Supreme Court decision on abortion and against parochialism. Crane toured several high schools in the 12th Congressional District Friday during a trip here which included a Republican fund raising dinner in Chicago.

'Don't trust government,' Crane says

by CINDY TEW

"Don't trust government or politicians," U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, told 300 St. Viator High School students Friday. "Man is imperfect and so are his institutions."

Crane spent more than a half an hour responding to students' questions ranging from parochialism and abortion to amnesty to draft dodgers. Crane launched into his hardest hitting commentary when asked about the waste in government and why people are losing faith in their representatives.

"There are 2.8 million people in the federal bureaucracy — that monstrosity on the Potomac," said Crane. "It's too big to be managed and we don't even know half of the corruption that's going on."

The only way the problem is going to be solved, according to Crane, is to decentralize the government and give the power back to the people.

"REVENUE SHARING is a step in the right direction — at least the local governments are getting back some of the local taxpayers' money," said Crane.

A well-known conservative, who won a landslide victory in November in the new 12th congressional district, Crane was well received by the students. Many students said they agreed with most of his ideas.

The congressman received a smattering of boos, however, for his views on parochialism.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,000 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

A procedural question over the release of Communist prisoners could stall the return of all POWs, a Viet Cong spokesman said. A South Vietnamese spokesman at the Bien Hoa prison camp, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, said the Communists were refusing to board the planes to take them to freedom, UPI correspondent Tracy Wood reported. A North Vietnamese spokesman confirmed the refusal and said the POWs were waiting until the American truce representative arrived.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Heimaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other person, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Heifafell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

ROLLING MEADOWS

Enrollment increased in instrumental plan

Instrumental enrollment is up by 27 students in the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 this year.

Fourth through eighth-grade students are recruited for the Dist. 15 instrumental program every fall with the target enrollment at the fourth-grade level.

Total enrollment in the instrumental program is 1,613 students this year. This compares to 1,586 in 1971 and 1,495 students in 1970.

Significant enrollment increases were experienced at Cardinal Drive, Carl Sandburg, Willow Bend and Plum Grove Schools in Rolling Meadows and Pleasant Hill and Joel Wood Schools in Palatine.

A decrease in enrollment of 10 or more students was experienced at Virginia Lake, Lincoln, Gary M. Sanborn and Hunting Ridge Schools in Palatine and Jonas Sak and Kimball Hill Schools in Rolling Meadows.

3 students expelled from high schools

Three students were expelled from High School Dist. 211 schools for the remainder of the semester by the district's board.

Included in the expulsions were two Schaumburg High School students and a Palatine High School student. All were expelled for gross disobedience and misconduct.

Water main break didn't affect homes

A water main break at Rohlfing Road and Euclid Ave. in Rolling Meadows was repaired Friday without interruption to service, according to Public Works Supt. John Hennessy.

The break was repaired in four hours by public works crews. The break did not affect the water supplies of homes in the area, Hennessy said.

Correction

The Rolling Meadows Recycling, Ecological, and Beautification committee last month collected 33,540 pounds of paper, 10,710 pounds of glass, and 4,700 pounds of cans in its monthly recycling drive.

A story in Friday's Herald erroneously reported the totals in million figures rather than in thousands.

Township Dems looking for big crossover vote

by JULIA BAUER

Palatine Township Democrats are looking for a big crossover vote in the April 3 election, based on their stand that Palatine Township government should be abolished.

The abolition issue is likely to become the primary debating point between Republican and Democratic township candidates. But Richard Mugallan, Democratic committeeman, said abolishing township government is a "completely non-partisan" concern of candidates who have promised to run for that purpose.

Mugallan contended that voters, regardless of party affiliation, should recognize that township government is "kind of a wasteful, duplicative kind of government."

At party caucuses last week, Republican township candidates vowed to support the township concept in Palatine, while Democrats said they would work to get the township level defeated in a referendum if they are elected.

THE FIRST abolish-township rumblings began last year when the Palatine League of Women Voters (LWV) circulated petitions requesting township officials to include the question of abolishing that level of government at the polls Nov. 7.

When those petitions were denied, the LWV took township officials to court in a legal battle that continued until the day before the election. One of the chief organizers of the local abolition move is LWV member Ann Scollay, who has been the league's township observer for 2½ years.

Mrs. Scollay's husband, Jack, is the Democrats' township supervisor candidate. And he and the other members of the Democratic slate appeared convinced that the area would be better off without township government.

Republicans have traditionally dominated the township, but the first election with candidates actually running under the GOP label was in 1961. And the Republicans technically lost that one.

IN PREVIOUS elections before 1961, only local party candidates entered the contest. For the eight years following the '61 vote, one of the hottest campaign issues was whether or not national parties should enter local candidates for election. That issue split both the Republicans and the relatively small Democratic party.

The Township Non-Partisan Party, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans opposing the regular organization, won all but two of the major township offices in 1961. A third group, the Citizens United Party, were all Democrats and many have staked a Non-Partisan sweep of the township race. By 1965, the balance had tilted.

Liston Pennington, township supervisor from 1961 to 1965, was running for reelection under a Republican-Democrat coalition calling themselves the Better Government Party. When the ballots were in, straight-ticket voting brought an end to local parties in Palatine Township elections.

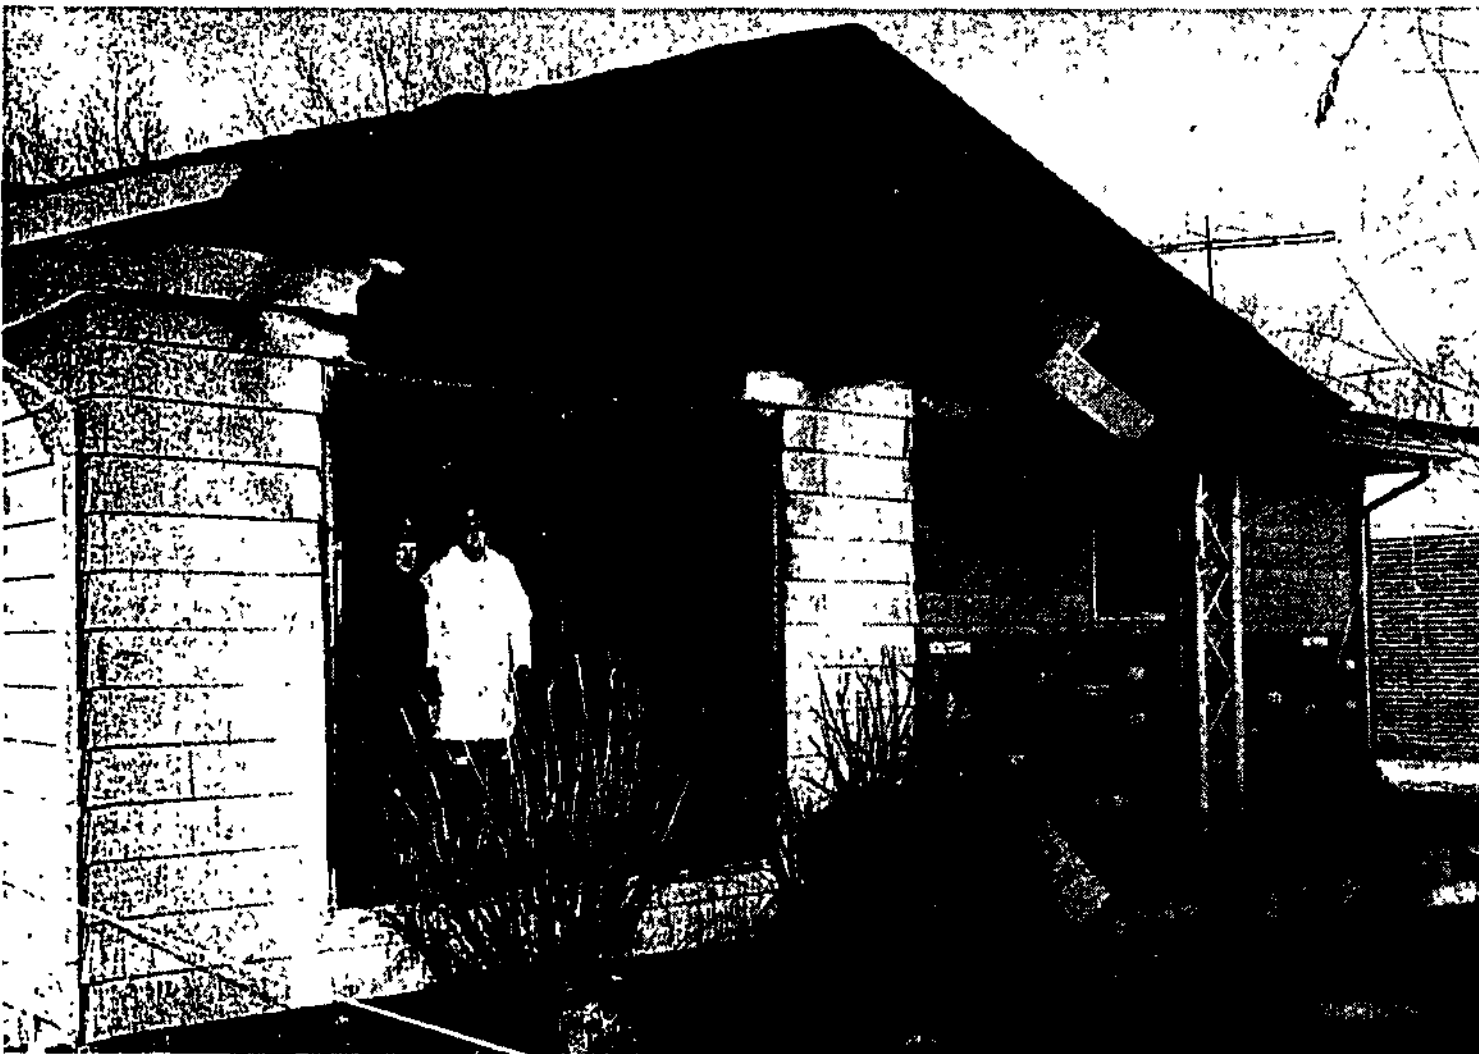

Nearly half of the township votes cast in 1965 were straight-Republican. The regular Democrats were haggling among themselves and did not enter a slate. Pennington, a Republican, was defeated by Howard I. Olsen, a Republican running as a Republican.

THE MOST recent vote, in 1969, was also the first township election that officially put Democrats against Republicans. Olsen and most of the other current township officers swept the election by a three to one landslide to win a second term.

Now, it's Democrats against Republicans for the second time in Palatine Township. Pennington is running with Olsen in this race. And the Democrats are entering the contest for offices they say should be legally abolished. If the Democrats can convince enough voters of that, they could swing the independents to their side and balance out the roughly two to one Republican edge in the township, Mugallan said.

Whatever the outcome, a majority of the new township board of auditors will be different people than the current board members, who have served for the past eight years. All three incumbent auditors, Carl Bals, Russell Bramwell and Richard Bayer, are not entering the race, and highway commissioner Vernon L. Bergman is resigning.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was found alive but later died at Holy Family Hospital. Das Plaines, while her husband was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

'Carelessness' caused fatal fire

by RICH HONACK

"Careless use of smoking materials" is assumed to be the cause of a fire that killed a young Wheeling couple early Friday.

The announcement was made by Wheeling Chief Bernie Koeppen following an investigation by a deputy state fire marshal. Koeppen said the fire apparently started in a couch in the living room.

The couple, Michael and Barbara Devitt, died as a result of the fire at 705 S. Merle Ln.

Devitt, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Devitt, 20, died two hours after she was pulled from the burning building, officials said.

THE OFFICIAL cause of death are being withheld by the Cook County Coroner's office pending an inquest in six weeks.

According to Koeppen, firemen received the alarm at 3:35 a.m. Friday from Devitt's neighbor, William Null. Null was awakened by Larry Steward, 586 E. Merle Ln., who discovered the blaze.

Koeppen said Steward ran to the Devitt residence and pounded on windows and doors. When he didn't get a response he told Null to call the firemen.

The first firemen to arrive on the scene said the house was completely engulfed in flames. They said they found Mrs. Devitt lying unconscious by the back door. She had burns over much of her body.

DEVITT WAS found in a corner of a back bedroom. According to officials, he was not badly burned and apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Koeppen could not explain why the bodies were found in different parts of the house. "No one can explain why people do what they do in a fire. You may think you're running one way and you are going another," said the chief.

He added, "We believe both people were near windows, yet it looks like Mrs.

Devitt ran through the fire to try to get to the door."

Koeppen said everyone should have some type of system for exiting a home during a fire.

THE DEVITT home is located in the more established area of Wheeling. According to officials, the house burned very rapidly.

The fire deaths are the second and third to occur in Wheeling this year. A 78-year-old resident died in his smoke-filled apartment almost one month ago. The cause of that fire was also attributed to burning ashes falling into a chair.

Wheeling reported no fire deaths in 1972.

"I'm appalled that the Supreme Court would even get into the abortion issue. Now it is the law of the land that until a fetus is able to live outside the womb it is not human. I think life starts at conception and who is the Supreme Court justice to tell me otherwise," Crane has seven daughters and a son. "All we need is two more girls and we'll have a volleyball team and a water boy," he said.

CRANE SAID every state should make its own decision on the abortion issue.

"If the people at New York want abortion on demand, I'll despair, but in Illinois, where more sanity prevails, I'll fight to keep strict abortion laws," said Crane.

Crane said he is against a state lottery because the people who would get involved are those who can least afford it.

"It is improper for the state to resort to that sort of thing — it's unwholesome," he said.

Unit school district study 'high priority'

Study of a tentative unit district composed of the attendance areas of High School Dist. 214's four southern high schools has been given high priority by the Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee in School Dist. 59.

The four-high school model is one of three boundaries for a unit district (grades kindergarten through 12) that will be studied in depth by the committee. Twenty-one of the committee's nearly 50 members met Thursday night and voted on a list of five proposed boundaries. Those that will be studied, in order of preference by the committee, are:

- A unit of the four high school attendance areas, including Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect;
- An Elk Grove Village Unit;
- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.

A unit district of three of Dist. 214's high school attendance areas, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect or Rolling Meadows, was rated fourth by the committee. A unit of all of Dist. 214 was rated fifth. As a result, they were both dropped from the list.

After voting to study a unit of all of Elk Grove Village, the committee amended the boundaries to include a small portion of the village just west of Ill. Rte. 53. That portion is currently in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54, which feeds into High School Dist. 211.

GEORGE CONEY, chairman of the general committee, said Dist. 54 has indicated it would be willing to give up that portion of its district to a unit district. Coney also said residents in that area have indicated they would be in favor of coming into such a unit district.

Coney stressed he hoped members of the five sub-committees, which will make separate studies of the proposed unit districts, will recommend any changes in the boundaries they feel necessary.

The vote on boundaries came after more than a hour's discussion. Bob Melroy, vice-chairman of the facility and transportation committee, said he thought an Elk Grove Village unit would be advantageous, but difficult "to sell."

"I think from Elk Grove Village's standpoint, it would be very advantageous," Melroy said. "But it would be the most controversial boundary, the hardest to get through." Melroy said such a boundary would create opposition because it would create a split in existing Dist. 59.

Victor Johnson, also a member of the transportation and facilities committee, pointed out that a unit of Dist. 59 boundaries would create "a lot of shuffling of students." Currently students from Mount Prospect Dist. 57 attend Forest View High School along with those from Dist. 59.

EMIL BAHNMAIER, secretary of the general committee, estimated that under such a unit, 400 to 500 students would have to be transferred. He said, however, "We could avoid a lot of shuffling" if the attendance for Juliette Low School, in Dist. 59 and Arlington Heights, was left out of such a unit district.

Many committee members opposed studying Dist. 214 as a whole because of the size. "I don't think the finance committee could undertake a study along those lines," said Tom Guy, of the finance committee. "We would have to do it in conjunction with Dist. 214's study committee. I think then the whole idea of a unit district might die in committee and never get onto the floor."

Several committee members estimated they would need about two months to complete an in-depth study of the three sets of boundaries.

The steering committee will meet Feb. 26 to discuss the progress of the subcommittees. The steering committee will also set a new deadline for the citizen's group report. Committee members voted two weeks ago for an extension after they decided they could not meet the original March 1 deadline.

The general committee will meet again on March 1 to hear speakers opposing a unit district.

Scouting news

More than 100 Camp Fire Girls and leaders recently attended an ice skating party at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex. The girls represented 10 different groups and following the ice skating party each group had a special event.

A WING-DING for all first grade girls and their parents will be held at Carl Sandburg School, 2600 Martin, Rolling Meadows on Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

Information on what the Camp Fire Girls do and a display of some of their projects will be presented at the Wing-Ding and there will be tables where girls can sign up for Camp Fire Girls.

The Camp Fire Girl colors are red, white and blue and the slogan is "give service." "WoHeLo" is the groups watch word taken from work, health and love. The law of Camp Fire is "Worship God, seek beauty, give service, pursue knowledge, be trustworthy, hold on to health, glorify work and be happy."

ROLLING MEADOWS Junior Girl Scout Troop 754 is taking the Gray Line bus tour of Chicago today. Included in the trip will be a guided tour of the loop, urban renewal, ghetto areas and the University of Chicago.

The troop will be stopping at the Chicago Historical Society and the Lincoln Conservatory. Lunch will be served at a restaurant in Chinatown where the scouts will have time for shopping.

$600,000 loan, school work may be halted

A $600,000 state loan and completion of the Edgar J. Hoover Elementary School, presently under construction in Schaumburg, may be threatened, said Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board member Donnie Rudd.

The 30-room school is to be located at Colwin Drive and Springguth Road in the Sheffield Park subdivision.

Rudd chairs the newly activated unit school district study committee, a subcommittee of the Dist. 54's education committee.

He fears the Capital Improvements Board (CIB), formerly the Illinois School Buildings Commission (ISBC) may call for a halt of Hoover construction.

"THE CIB MAY decide to hold up construction of the school until the Village of Schaumburg and School Dist. 54 resolve the issue of a separation of Schaumburg from the district," said Rudd.

The district was able to build the 30-room elementary school in the Sheffield town area of Schaumburg by obtaining an interest-free $600,000 loan from the state, he added.

"Eligibility for the CIB loan was based on the whole districts need for classrooms and the fact that the district was at the limit of its bonded indebtedness."

"If Schaumburg were to be successful in an effort to create its own school district and separate from Dist. 54, the situation would be different," he said.

IN 1972, DIST. 54 voters approved a rent levy that will pay for the Hoover School loan. Voters agreed to tax themselves so the district could use the tax money to pay the state a yearly rent on the Hoover School until the loan is paid. Until it is fully paid for, the school belongs to the state.

Rudd said Hoover School should be completed by spring of 1974 if construction proceeds according to schedule. Originally the school was to have been ready this September. At the time, application for the loan was made to the ISBC, it was in the process of turning its responsibility over to the CIB.

"This switchover resulted in a delay. The school could have been completed sooner. However, since we were the last state loan application granted we were glad to get it," he added.

Boy, 12, improving after auto accident

A 12-year-old Hoffman Estates boy remained in the intensive care unit yesterday at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village, after being struck by a car Saturday morning.

Frank Burke, 153 W. Burkley Ln., seemed to be "very well" and was expected to be moved from the intensive care unit today, a hospital spokesman said yesterday.

The accident occurred in the eastbound lanes of Higgins Road just west of Roselle Road, when the youth was struck by a car driven by Karen Merhar, 28, of 228 Mesa Ln., Hoffman Estates, said police.

The hospital spokesman said the youth suffered multiple skull fractures and that all his vital signs were good.

IN AN ACCIDENT Friday afternoon, two women received minor injuries at Higgins and Barrington roads. The collision occurred when Patricia Kemp, 24, of Hanover Park, turned left in front of an eastbound car driven by Susan Kehamer, 23, of Carpentersville.

Injured were Joan Drewke of Carpentersville, passenger in Miss Kehamer's car, and Miss Kemp. Miss Drewke was taken to Sherman Hospital in Elgin and Miss Kemp was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Both were treated for contusions and released.

Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District ambulances transported victims in both accidents.

Schools closed for Lincoln Birthday

Schools in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 and High School Dist. 211 will be closed today in observance of Lincoln's Birthday.

Classes will resume Tuesday. Dist. 54 administrative offices at 804 W. Bode Rd., Schaumburg, and Dist. 211 offices at 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine will also be closed.

Municipal offices will be open in both Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

A CAREFUL HAND and careful eye are used by Sue McCarthy to do a customized paint job on a new $3,200 car on the floor at Woodfield in Schaumburg. She was among college students who participated in an auto-painting contest at a mall, sponsored by the Open dealership. A $400 prize will be awarded today for the most impressive paint job. 'Credibility gap' in Schaumburg government charged

Carol Johnson enters trustee race

The need for greater community participation in Schaumburg government has prompted Mrs. Carol Johnson, 334 Hazel Dr., to seek a four-year village trustee term.

Announcing her candidacy last week, Mrs. Johnson expressed concern about flooding problems and suggested the number of building, safety and health inspectors be doubled or even tripled in the interest of quality. She also called for stepped-up efforts to preserve historical and cultural areas in the village.

"There is a difference between facts that sound good and good sound facts. I hope to show the people of Schaumburg that facts that sound good are not always based on good sound fact," said Mrs. Johnson, citing what she termed a "credibility gap" on the part of village officials.

THE CANDIDATE, a former teacher of mentally retarded children in the San Diego, Calif., school system, believes members of auxiliary boards, committees and commissions are "very carefully selected before being invited to apply which results in token representation."

She told of applying for a post on the zoning board of appeals two years ago when Herbert J. Aigner resigned to run for trustee.

"I was told I was qualified and that there was a place in Schaumburg government for persons like me but the more active I became in opposing the

Mrs. Popp to seek two-year term

An Independent, Suzanne Popp, of 1615 S. Winthrop Ln., will oppose Schaumburg United Party candidate Ray McArthur for a two-year village board term. McArthur presently chairs the village plan commission.

Mrs. Popp, 23, announced intentions to seek the short board term at a meeting Friday of independent citizens who support her candidacy. The group also is backing Helen F. Jackson and Carol Johnson for four-year trustee posts.

Mrs. Popp, who served as village chairman of Citizens for Richard Ogilvie last fall, echoed remarks made earlier by Mrs. Johnson concerning a team effort for the three independents. Mrs. Johnson did not attend the meeting.

She said she would not speak for the other candidates and does not want them to speak for her, though she would be guidelines of the village the lesser my chances for appointment to anything became," she said.

However, last September, Mrs. Johnson was asked to serve as secretary of the safety, health, recreation, education and environment committee (SHREEC).

willing to work as a team for purposes of convenience in speaking engagements.

The three candidates are expected to meet privately next week to decide to what extent they will act cooperatively and whether to seek financial assistance as a team.

Their supporters include Schaumburg Township Supervisor Vern Laubenstein; Township Auditor Walter P. Wing and his wife, Linda, a township GOP deputy committeewoman; Willard Meyer, a former village trustee who recently moved back to the community; Jane Murphy, George and Tammi Pape, of Weathersfield, and John J. Carsello of Sheffield Park West.

At the meeting, Wing indicated the group could be joined by a male candidate whose identity he refused to reveal.

opposition to locating a branch of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North on a 20-acre, builder-donated Schaumburg Road site.

As community affairs chairman for Timbercrest Home Owners Association, she testified against the proposal before the state hospital licensing authority last month. Her opposition is based on size inadequacy of the site, insufficient buildable land for expansion and that it could present a flooding threat to neighboring areas.

She is a member of Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board, a charter member and retired board member of the Hoffman-Schaumburg Provisional League of Women Voters, and a charter member of Lord of Life Lutheran Church.

Last year, Mrs. Johnson was one of five finalists selected by Schaumburg Jaycees for their Outstanding Young Woman award.

She and her husband, David, a candidate for election to Schaumburg Park District board, are parents of two sons.

She opposes Schaumburg United Party candidates for four year terms which include Aigner, now an incumbent seeking his second term, and Denis Ledgerwood, an appointed incumbent, plus Ray LeBeau, chairman of the village airport study committee.

Other independents seeking four-year terms are George Daugherty and Mrs. Helen Jackson.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,000 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

The world

A procedural question over the release of Communist prisoners could stall the return of all POWs, a Viet Cong spokesman said. A South Vietnamese spokesman at the Bien Hoa prison camp, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, said the Communist POWs there were refusing to board the planes to take them to freedom, UPI correspondent Tracy Wood reported. A North Vietnamese spokesman confirmed the refusal and said the POWs were waiting until the American truce representative arrived.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Heimaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other persons, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Heifjell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Poker-playing lesson needed

by NANCY COWGER

Politics and poker have a lot in common. It isn't what you have in your hand that counts in either one of them, but what shows on your face.

In both games, knowing the difference between a royal flush and two pair is elementary. Skill comes in the use of each. A good bluff can take the pot with a poor hand, and a full house can lose everything due to lack of confidence.

Because it's the same story in politics, members of the Democratic organization in Schaumburg Township would do well to play a little poker, and learn the game.

Tuesday's Democratic caucus was a blow to the spirit. Members started out not just expecting to lose, but afraid to place even a nickel-dime bet.

IT ISN'T THAT the Dems don't want to win. They think of winning like most of us contemplate a Lincoln Continental: beautiful, desirable and completely out of sight.

A few persons challenged this attitude Tuesday. "You're pessimists, too negative," they accused. Party oldsters (yes, there are some) were taken aback by the suggestion. Not pessimists, but realists is the accurate description, they said.

"When you've been around fighting, and losing, as long as we have, you'll know better than to challenge the machine. They have people, money and an organization. There are just a few of us," was the sense of their reaction.

The officials of the regular Democratic organization seem to have blinded themselves to a fact of life. Many people are moving to Schaumburg Township from Chicago. Not all, but certainly many, had Democratic affiliations where they came from. It's not unrealistic to assume the majority of new arrivals have Democratic leanings, remembering that many are also relatively young.

Given half a chance, they might hang onto those leanings, and restore a semblance of a two-party system in the community.

BUT WHAT DO the Democrats do to encourage newly-situated Democrats or independents to join their ranks? They quibble about whether anyone should enter an election. They reluctantly consent to forming a Young Democrats organization. They wait about the success of Republicans in winning Democrats from the ranks. And then they say, "bring a friend to the next meeting — this thing could mushroom."

Who, with any self-respect, would bring a friend to this type of a wake? Commiserating over the corpse of a political institution just isn't Friday night fun.

If the party ever hopes to be a party, in the truly active, questioning, issue-oriented sense of politics, it will have to "stand on its hind legs and fight," as one in attendance Tuesday suggested. The voters cannot cast their lot with a party when the party won't put a name on the ballot.

The Democrats who like to call themselves realists must learn that realism is more than assessing the facts. If those facts are not the way they would like them to be — they must do something to change them. Let their organization be willing to fight and lose, but design their fight to win.

A poker game is not won by folding every hand. It is won by knowing what you've got, and playing it for all you're worth.

High school board seeks to change athletic rules

The High School Dist. 211 Board of Education will join with a Fremd High School parent in seeking a change in athletic eligibility rules enforced by the Illinois High School Association.

The board agreed to ask the IHSA board of directors to review the rule prohibiting student participation in "coaching schools" during the school year after hearing the cases of three Fremd girls who have been declared ineligible for interscholastic competition.

In all three cases, described by William Whiting, the father of two of the girls, the girls were ruled ineligible because they received instruction in sports other than the ones they were participating in.

Kim Whiting, a Fremd freshman, was ruled ineligible for the school's volleyball team because she had received group tennis lessons at a private club. Whiting said. Because of her ineligibility the Fremd junior varsity volleyball team forfeited all games she had participated in.

KIM'S SISTER Sue, Whiting said, was barred from the girl's basketball squad because she had also received coaching in tennis at a private club.

In addition, he said, Mary Yelovick, a freshman at Fremd, was declared ineligible for the school's varsity volleyball squad because she was also a member of the Countryside YMCA swim team. Fremd has a tennis team but does not provide any interscholastic competition in swimming.

Whiting explained he has written a letter to Harry Fitzhugh, executive secretary of the IHSA, the governing body for competitive high school sports, asking that the rule which made all three girls ineligible be reconsidered.

In his letter Whiting described himself as "a confused parent intensely interested in the school programs designed to develop well-rounded children scholastically, athletically and in other interest." He said he has not yet received a reply from Fitzhugh.

The rule in question specifically prohibits students from participating in any "coaching school" in any interscholastic sport while a member of any school team. Included in the rule are community recreation programs and "any program . . . sponsored by any organization or individual or designed specifically to instruct participants in the theory or practice of any interscholastic sport."

THE RULE defines as interscholastic sports baseball, softball, basketball, cross country, fencing, football, soccer, golf, gymnastics, swimming, tennis, track and field and wrestling plus any other sports with inter-school competition.

Whiting told the board he understands how the rule might be used to prevent football or basketball teams from becoming "professional," but added, "The rule prevents students from taking tennis, golf or swimming lessons during the school year and it doesn't seem quite the purpose of the rule to do that."

Following Whiting's presentation, Board Pres. Robert Creek asked Supt. Richard Kolze to draw up a formal letter to the IHSA board. Creek said, "I think I sense the board is feeling, if not outraged, at least that this is a chicken rule and should be changed."

Don't worry, it washes off

'Paint your wagon' for a prize

by MARILYN HEISER

The days of stuffing 25 people into telephone booths are over. Fraternally hazing has supposedly ended, and Greek life has faded from many college campuses.

But a group of college coeds, mostly sorority girls, painting brand new Opel Mantas with flowers, figures, and flaming motifs bring back memories of late night pranks. Especially when the paint occurs in bustling Woodfield Mall.

"Tell me," one matronly shopper asked in passing, "How are they going to see to drive?" There were no signs explaining that completely painting over the windshields didn't matter. The paint was water soluble and could be washed off.

Impairing the driver's vision, ruining the present finish, and generally destroying the brand-new Opels, was the primary reaction of distressed shoppers who watched the girls at work.

OF COURSE there were some who just looked and laughed.

And others who ignored the whole thing, intent rather on looking with longing at the proudly displayed automobiles which had escaped the decorating paint brushes.

One maroon $3,232.50 number was the subject of many intrigued stares. After all, that is the idea behind parking cars in the middle of a shopping mall.

With the blasé attitude of seasoned observers of strange doings, few even asked why the girls were bothering, or who had instigated the whole idea. A paint-spattered artist volunteered that Ed Murphy Buick-Opel in Schaumburg organized the event.

"They called up the school and the art class wasn't interested. For $400, we figured, why not?" Brenda Harvey, a member of Alpha Sigma Alpha sorority, De Paul University, said. The money she referred to will be awarded to the group with the most pleasing creation.

THE ONCE LIGHT blue car Miss Harvey decorated was giving way to one covered with the frolicking figures of Goofy, Snow White, and Mickey Mouse. Each car followed a theme; this was a take-off on the Magic Kingdom of Walt Disney, or "Discover the Magic of Buick."

In front of Marshall Field's, a sun orange car developed pink doors for ears and became a cheerful rodent proclaiming "Opel Rides Quiet as a Mouse," or so the painters from Lambda Sigma Alpha, at Northwestern Illinois University said.

Rip Van Winkle, red mouth, pink nose and flowing white beard cascading over the windshield, snored, "Wake Up Opel," Joy Garter of the College of DuPage explaining her paint job said.

One mother with a child in stroller and a young son watching with fascination as the girls dabbed on glimmering colors said, "I told him we don't paint our cars like that. I know a kid who once got that bright idea."

AS A SMALL audience gathered around to watch, Sue McCarthy of Northeastern Illinois said her car represented Chicago. She was slapping on orange flames to recreate the Chicago fire, and the Chicago skyline and Chicago flag were also in evidence.

"We hope to paint a caricature of Mayor Daley too," Miss McCarthy said. It wasn't clear what any of this had to do with Buick or Opel, but no one seemed to care and the orange flames were flashy enough.

The girls will be splashing on paint through the weekend. The judging and awarding of prize money is Monday. The cars will be on display after Wednesday at Ed Murphy Buick, Golf Road, Schaumburg.

Anyone caring to view the cars might follow the method observed last week. A toddler on a tricycle was wheeling around a floral Opel. His vehicle may not remain plain red for long.

For mental care counseling

Two-township health center formed

A new agency known as the Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships Mental Health Center has been created to oversee mental health counseling for the two townships.

The new organization was set up last Thursday as part of the reorganization of Elk Grove Community Service, an Elk Grove Village not-for-profit social agency.

The reorganization of Community Services with the creation of the new agency was required after the agency received a $52,000 state grant last summer to establish a mental health center for Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships. Prior to the awarding of the grant, Community Service had been an Elk Grove Village agency.

A 15-member board of directors will govern the new agency which will be responsible for the administration and funding of mental health counseling services for the two townships.

ALL NON-COUNSELING services and programs of Community Service will continue to be operated by the Community Service Board of Directors.

As a result of the reorganization there will be a board of directors for Community Service and, a second board for the mental health center. However, the two boards will share some members.

The new mental health center board will consist of nine members of the present Community Service board and six representatives from Schaumburg Township. All members of the Community Service board are Elk Grove Village residents.

A nominating committee of the nine members will select the Schaumburg Township members who then will be elected to the new board by the other board members.

THE NEW BOARD members will have three-year terms. A means of staggering the terms will be worked out after the board has been selected.

Further details on the organization of the new group will be worked out at a March 8 meeting.

The reorganization of Community Service came about at the annual meeting Thursday of the not-for-profit corporation. Before the meeting, the Community Service Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting. At this meeting:

Park district, SAA try to halt school vandalism

Officials of the Schaumburg Park District and the Schaumburg Athletic Association basketball program agreed Saturday to provide more supervision at the association's games and practice sessions to prevent vandalism at several local elementary schools.

The vandalism problem came to light last Thursday when park district director Paul Derda told the district's board of commissioners that Churchill and Campnell schools had been damaged in past weekends when the SAA had programs scheduled in the facilities.

Derda said Saturday after the meeting with SAA officials that they have assured him more supervision will be provided for their program.

Earlier, Derda said if the vandalism, which included damage to several doors, plugging drains and water fountains and a small fire, continued the SAA might be barred from the facilities.

"That type of action is drastic, and I would not like to take it, but we have to solve this problem," Derda said. He later said he believes SAA will be able to remedy the problem.

"It might not even be boys in their program, but they are responsible for the buildings while they are using them, he added.

JOSEPH VISO, superintendent of building and grounds for School Dist. 54 said the vandalism must be stopped. "It is hard to estimate the dollar costs, but our staff does not have the time to clean up the mess that has been left at these schools," he said.

He also said if the vandalism is not stopped that park district might be told that it could no longer use certain schools for its programs.

The agreement between the park district and Dist. 54 makes the facilities available for recreational programs during non-school hours. The park district is authorized to schedule other recreational groups in gyms.

Program to begin March 1

11 restaurants to give price breaks to elderly

Eleven Mount Prospect restaurants have said they will give price breaks to senior citizens. The daily reduced-cost hot meal program will start officially March 1.

Of the 41 questionnaires that health officer Marjorie Boswell sent out to restaurant owners in the village, all 11 she has so far gotten back have held positive responses.

"No one has refused," she said Friday. "I'm real pleased that people are really that interested in doing something to help the senior citizens."

Mrs. Boswell is trying to get enough restaurants to participate in the program so that most senior citizens in the village will be able to walk to a participating restaurant. The idea is to serve the discounted meals during the restaurants' slack periods.

But at least one restaurant owner has decided not to wait until March 1 to start the program. Last week Matt Mores and the Starlite Coffee Cup 10 N. Main St., began to give senior citizens a 25 per cent reduction on meals purchased between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. Mores had gotten the idea himself on a recent visit to Temple City, Calif., where similar programs were already in effect.

IN ADDITION to the Starlite Coffee Cup, the other restaurants, their discounts and times of service are as follows:

- Butch McGuire's, 300 E. Rand Rd., 50 per cent between 2 and 3 p.m. only;
- Jake's Pub, 302 W. Northwest Hwy., 20 per cent between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.;
- Jake's, 820 Rand Rd., free beverages only between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.;
- Matterhorn Restaurant, 200 E. Rand Rd., 20 per cent between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m.;
- Heinz Pastry and Coffee Shop, 15-17 W. Prospect Ave., 20 per cent between 1:30 p.m. and 4 p.m.;

• Mount Prospect Chop Suey, 416 W. Northwest Hwy., 20 per cent on take-out only between 11 a.m. and 4 p.m.;

• Thunderbird Restaurant, 821 Rand Rd., 10 per cent between 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. and between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sunday;

• Ye Olde Town Inn, 18 W. Busse Ave., 10 per cent between 1:30 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.;

• Chicken Unlimited, 2037 Euclid Ave., 10 per cent on take-out only between 11 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. (closed Tuesday);

• And the Randhurst Corned Beef Center, Randhurst Shopping Center, 999 N. Elmhurst Rd., 15 per cent between 2 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Two arrested after 100 mph chase on Euclid

Glenview police arrested two Mount Prospect brothers last week after a 100 m.p.h.-plus auto chase on Euclid Avenue that began in Glenview and ended in Mount Prospect.

William J. Valentino, 28, of 2015 Kiowa Ln., was charged with speeding, reckless driving, attempting to elude a police officer and improper lane usage. His brother Joseph, 22, a passenger, was charged with obstructing a police officer. Both were given March 14 court dates in Northfield.

According to Glenview police, the chase occurred about 8 p.m. Thursday in the 3900 block of E. Lake (Euclid) Avenue, where the car was clocked by radar as going 74 m.p.h. in a 35 m.p.h. zone, and ended in Euclid Avenue, near Randhurst Mall in Mount Prospect.

Mount Prospect police said they assisted in the holding of the two suspects. Joseph was allegedly scuffling with a Glenview police officer when Mount Prospect police arrived on the scene. Mount Prospect police had been following the chase on their police radio frequencies.

Village offices to close for 'Presidents' Day'

Today is a holiday for school children but all Mount Prospect village offices will be open as usual.

According to Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, both today, Lincoln's birthday, and next Monday, Washington's birthday, will be celebrated as one day, "Presidents' Day," by village employees. Thus village employees will have next Monday off. Police and fire personnel who work will receive extra compensation for that day, Eppley added.

Both the Mount Prospect and River Trails park districts' programs will be held as usual today.

$3,000 in furs, valuables stolen

An estimated $3,000 in furs and other valuables were stolen from the home of Thomas Dixon, 407 Go-Wanda Ave., Mount Prospect, Friday evening. According to police, the valuables were taken when an intruder or intruders broke into the home by prying open the rear door.

No one was home at the time of the robbery. Dixon, who is retired, said he was visiting at his brother-in-law's home in Chicago. When he left his home at 6:30 p.m., he told police he didn't hear or see anyone suspicious. Police are investigating.

Unit school district study 'high priority'

Study of a tentative unit district composed of the attendance areas of High School Dist. 214's four southern high schools has been given high priority by the Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee in School Dist. 59.

The four-high school model is one of three boundaries for a unit district (grades kindergarten through 12) that will be studied in depth by the committee. Twenty-one of the committee's nearly 50 members met Thursday night and voted on a list of five proposed boundaries. Those that will be studied, in order of preference by the committee, are:

- A unit of the four high school attendance area, including Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect;

- An Elk Grove Village Unit;
- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.

A unit district of three of Dist. 214's high school attendance areas, Forest View, Elk Grove and Prospect or Rolling Meadows, was rated fourth by the committee. A unit of all of Dist. 214 was rated fifth. As a result, they were both dropped from the list.

After voting to study a unit of all of Elk Grove Village, the committee amended the boundaries to include a small portion of the village just west of Ill. Rte. 53. That portion is currently in

Ex-school board member weighs race

Bruce Wallace, former Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board member, said he "is considering" running for the board again in April.

Wallace, 1211 N. Highland Dr., Prospect Heights, has picked up a nominating petition for election to a three-year term on the board. He said he will announce if he is definitely a candidate after Wednesday's board meeting. He would not say why he was waiting until then.

"I'm thinking about running because of the numerous problems in the district — negotiations, curriculum problems," he said. He pointed to the open school concept at John Muir School, on Drake Terrace, as one problem in curriculum. "To a certain extent, I am opposed to it," he said.

WALLACE, 40, served on the board from 1968 to 1971, when he was a member of the board's site, building, policy and negotiations committee. In 1971, Wallace ran unsuccessfully for reelection.

Employed by Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Wallace has lived in Prospect Heights 14 years and has four children. He is active in the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA).

Alan Krinsky, whose appointed term to the board expires in April, has also picked up a nominating petition. He said, "I will probably get it filled and submit it." He added he would announce if he is definitely a candidate at Wednesday's school board meeting.

Lori Sarner, the only other board member whose term is up in April, said she will not seek reelection to the board.

Caterpillar (tractor) still at large

Has anyone seen a large Caterpillar tractor driving around Buffalo Grove or Wheeling? If so, call your local police department, because they are searching for one.

The theft of the $50,000 Caterpillar front wheel loader was reported to the Buffalo Grove Police Department last Friday. The tractor belongs to the Di-Paolo Construction Co., which is working on the widening of Dundee Road.

Police said the large tractor was last seen in a parking lot at Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads late Wednesday night. They added that it must have been taken early Thursday morning after the snow had stopped.

Police also said they believe the vehicle was not taken by a private citizen. Construction company officials said a person must have working knowledge of the controls to drive the machine.

The top speed of the tractor is 20 miles per hour, and police believe it was loaded on a truck, rather than driven away. The vehicle is yellow-orange and has a cab in which the driver can sit.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand Corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,600 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Capistrano Beach, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

A procedural question over the release of Communist prisoners could stall the return of all POWs, a Viet Cong spokesman said. A South Vietnamese spokesman at the Bien Hoa prison camp, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, said the Communist POWs there were refusing to board the planes to take them to freedom, UPI correspondent Tracy Wood reported. A North Vietnamese spokesman confirmed the refusal and said the POWs were waiting until the American truce representative arrived.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Heimaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other person, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Heimaey volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Independent trustee candidate files petition

Independent trustee candidate Leo Floros filed Friday for the Mount Prospect Village Board.

"I will run as an independent and will campaign strictly as an independent," Floros said. He submitted 233 signatures on his nominating petitions.

Floros said he will be campaigning on 10 basic points. Although, "as the campaign unfolds, probably others will be added," he added.

Two of his 10 points deal with maintaining present conditions in the village. He said he wants to "preserve the village character" and "stabilize the expansion of the village boundaries."

"A survey taken by the Mount Prospect Jaycees three years ago showed that 72 per cent of the residents surveyed were opposed to any buildings as tall as 10 stories," he said. "Yet we continue to hear talk about 10, 12 and 13-story structures."

"I DON'T THINK the people of Mount Prospect want high-rise buildings. And if

2 mayoral candidates file

Two of the three Mount Prospect mayoral candidates filed for office Friday.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert filed first, together with other members of The Village Party slate. The others are incumbent clerk Donald Goodman and incumbent trustees Donald Furst, Bud Richardson and Patrick Link, all of whom are seeking to retain their positions in village government. The last they don't, I don't think they should have them."

As far as annexations go, Floros said he would rather see "selected annexations" considered, "but expansion for the sake of expansion should end." He continued, "Recent expansions have done little but increase the demand for village services."

Citing a doubling in the village tax rate over the past three years, Floros said he wants "a tighter rein on municipal spending."

He also called for high priorities in solving the village's flooding problems, providing housing for senior citizens and enlargening the village library. Ways should be explored, he said, to rejuvenate the downtown area "but not necessarily with expensive studies." (The village plan commission has recently requested a full-time planner at an estimated annual salary of at least $25,000.) Floros said he would like to see closer aries would create "a lot of shuffling of students." Currently students from Mount Prospect Dist. 57 attend Forest View High School along with those from Dist. 59.

EMIL BAINMAIER, secretary of the general committee, estimated that under such a unit, 400 to 500 students would have to be transferred. He said, however, "We could avoid a lot of shuffling" if the attendance for Juliette Low School, in Dist. 59 and Arlington Heights, was left out of such a unit district.

Many committee members opposed studying Dist. 214 as a whole because of the size. "I don't think the finance committee could undertake a study along those lines," said Tom Guy, of the finance committee. "We would have to do it in conjunction with Dist. 214's study committee. I think then the whole idea of a unit district might die in committee and never get onto the floor."

Several committee members estimated they would need about two months to complete an in-depth study of the three sets of boundaries.

The steering committee will meet Feb. 26 to discuss the progress of the subcommittees. The steering committee will also set a new deadline for the citizen's group report. Committee members voted two weeks ago for an extension after they decided they could not meet the original March 1 deadline.

The general committee will meet again on March 1 to hear speakers opposing a unit district.

State weighs new Weller Creek grant

Weller Creek's crumbling banks in Des Plaines and Mount Prospect may receive another $50,000 reinforcement from the Illinois Division of Waterways this year.

State officials have included the proposed appropriation in the Illinois budget that the General Assembly must act on by June 30.

The total proposed outlay is one-third of the amount necessary to prevent washing away of backyards along the creek.

"We took a severe budget cut. There's a whole lot more that we won't be able to do," said John Guillou, chief waterways division engineer.

Gov. Daniel Walker reviewed the division's budget last week and let stand the $30,000 project, which was trimmed from $150,000 by the state's budget bureau.

The proposed work — which will include pipe installation to drain water runoff and lining of creek banks to prevent wearing away — is planned from the Washington Street bridge in Des Plaines to Williams Street in Mount Prospect.

Assuming legislative passage, the bill could be signed by Walker in August, Guillou said. Next step would be project bidding. "We'll definitely try to get some, maybe all, of the work done this year. The sodding may be delayed until next year."

SOME OF THE creek work will repair August and September 1972 flood damage, he said.

Last year, the state spent $90,212 to repair banks between Mount Prospect Road and Williams Street. "We didn't have the contract finished when the storms hit us," Guillou said.

Controversy over Weller Creek dates to 1960 when Gov. Samuel Shapiro released $900,000 of $2 million planned for flood control. In 1969, the legislature voted $225,000 to complete the creek improvement program.

Widening and dredging of the creek — designed to prevent flooding of homes along Cumberland Parkway in Des Plaines — created a new problem — bank erosion. By 1972, residents estimated that four feet of their backyards had washed into the creek.

Last year, Des Plaines "couldn't wait" for the state to solve the problem, according to Mayor Herbert Behrel. The city placed broken concrete along bank sections to prevent the wearing away.

Another project pushed by Behrel, replacement of the Orchard Lane bridge by the state, was dropped from the waterways division proposed budget.

Wheeling fire cause blamed on 'carelessness'

by RICH HONACK
"Careless use of smoking materials" is assumed to be the cause of a fire that killed a young Wheeling couple early Friday.

The announcement was made by Wheeling Chief Bernie Koepfen following an investigation by a deputy state fire marshal. Koepfen said the fire apparently started in a couch in the living room.

The couple, Michael and Barbara Devitt, died as a result of the fire at 703 S. Merle Ln.

Devitt, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Devitt, 20, died two hours after she was pulled from the burning building, officials said.

THE OFFICIAL cause of death are being withheld by the Cook County Coroner's office pending an inquest in six weeks.

According to Koepfen, firemen received the alarm at 3:38 a.m. Friday from Devitt's neighbor, William Null. Null was awakened by Larry Steward, 588 E. Merle Ln., who discovered the blaze.

Koepfen said Steward ran to the Devitt residence and pounded on windows and doors. When he didn't get a response he told Null to call the firemen.

The first firemen to arrive on the scene said the house was completely engulfed in flames. They said they found Mrs. Devitt lying unconscious by the back door. She had burns over much of her body.

DEVITT WAS found in a corner of a back bedroom. According to officials, he was not badly burned and apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Koepfen could not explain why the bodies were found in different parts of the house. "No one can explain why people do what they do in a fire. You may think you're running one way and you are going another," said the chief.

He added, "We believe both people were near windows, yet it looks like Mrs. Devitt ran through the fire to try to get to the door."

Koepfen said everyone should have some type of system for exiting a home during a fire.

THE DEVITT home is located in the more established area of Wheeling. According to officials, the house burned very rapidly.

The fire deaths are the second and third to occur in Wheeling this year. A 78-year-old resident died in his smoke-filled apartment almost one month ago. The cause of that fire was also attributed to burning ashes falling into a chair.

Wheeling reported no fire deaths in 1972.

Extensioneers plan square dance party

Lucy and Alfred Knudsen will be the callers for square dancing during the meeting Thursday of the Mount Prospect Extensioneers, a senior citizens group.

The meeting will be held from 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Community Presbyterian Church, 407 N. Main St., Mount Prospect.

Girl Scouts from Busse School have promised to bring some treats for a luncheon valentine celebration. Square dancing will begin after lunch. The meeting is open to all Extensioneers' members.

Several slots are still open for the Extensioneers' Mexican tour in May. The tour leaves Chicago May 2 and returns May 11. Highlights include tours through Mexico City, Taxco and Acapulco. Cost is $435 including plane fare, hotels and most meals. For reservations, call Elizabeth Meyer at CL 5-3169.

relations between the village board and other taxing bodies, such as school boards, park boards and the library board. "While serving on the school board (Dist. 57 for four years), I always got the distinct impression that the village board had a superiority complex in its relations with the school board."

THE RESIDENT of 111 N. Emerson St. also said he was concerned with the village board's communications with the public. "I believe board members, other than the mayor, should make a greater effort to communicate with their constituents through the press. The mayor is to be commended for his efforts in this respect. Not so the other members of the board."

Elimination of pay for village trustees is the last of Floros' 10 platform items. He pointed out that members of other local boards, such as school boards, do not receive any salaries. Village trustees receive $2,000 a year.

"I believe there should be at least one independent candidate on the board," Floros concluded. "I think it is dangerous and unhealthy to have an entire board composed of trustees beholden — to some degree — to one man or one organization."

The only other trustee candidates who have filed so far for the April 17 election are members of The Village Party. Headed by Mayor Robert D. Telchert, the slate includes trustee candidate Richard Hendricks and incumbents Donald Furst, Bud Richardson and Patrick Link.

Strengthens home-rule powers

Judge upholds addition of 2 trustees to village board

Cook County Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing has upheld the addition of two more trustees to the Arlington Heights Village Board and thereby effectively strengthened the village's home rule powers.

The judge also approved changing the position of village clerk from an elected to an appointed office.

The attorney who filed the court challenge, John Clarke, says, however, that he probably will appeal the ruling to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"A final determination will be made after reading the court transcript which, as of now, I don't have," Clarke said Friday.

BOTH CHANGES were approved by the voters in a Dec. 16 referendum and are being proposed under the home rule powers of the 1970 state constitution.

The village board had sought a "friendly lawsuit" testing the legality of the changes because both moves are unprecedented in the State of Illinois.

In his ruling Friday, Downing said that if home rule powers are going to work at all, they must be allowed to apply in cases such as the one raised by the village.

In the absence of any precedent, the judge said this was a case "of first impression."

CLARKE SAID he would review the transcript of the hour-long hearing on the case, which was held before Judge Downing several weeks ago, and then make a final decision on an appeal.

If he does appeal, Clarke likely will ask the appeals court to send the case directly to the state supreme court, he said.

Village Clerk Kenneth Bonder said an appeal at this time would not raise any special problems in the preparation of ballots for the April 3 election.

The only difficulty might be in the early printing of absentee ballots, he said.

The addition of two more trustees would expand the village board to nine members — eight trustees and the village president. Five trustees and the president will be elected April 3.

The only candidates running are those nominated by the village caucus. They are: Jack Walsh, for village president; and Frank Palmatier, Alice Harms, Richard Durava, Dave Griffin and Graeme George for trustees.

Griffin and George have been slated for the two new trustee seats.

Proposed 1974 tax jump up for final discussion

A proposed 1973-74 Arlington Heights village budget that would increase local property taxes by some 7 cents per $100 assessed valuation will come before the finance committee for final discussion Thursday.

As now proposed the budget would mean about a 5.8 per cent increase in the village corporate rate and a 1.7-cent increase for the library.

The estimated tax figures are based on a projected total assessed valuation of $325 million, an increase of $25 million over the 1972-73 estimate.

The proposed budget reflects increases in most village departments and includes the hiring of a public relations officer and a full-time personnel director.

The budget figure that is finally adopted will affect the 1974 property tax bill, not the bills that will be mailed out this spring.

THE ESTIMATED tax rate on this year's bill for combined village and library services is 67.21 cents per $100 assessed valuation, a 2.5-cent decrease over last year.

The finance committee still has a number of accounts to set final budgets for and committee chairman Trustee Frank Palmatier said he hoped Thursday's hearing would be a joint meeting with the full board of trustees.

The board is expected to decide to close the existing village landfill, perhaps for as long as five years, and pay to have garbage hauled to other sites rather than pay the high cost of opening another excavation at the Arlington Heights location.

The village administration has recommended temporarily closing the Arlington Heights landfill until rates at neighboring facilities become too high.

The committee also is scheduled to decide on money requests from the Arlington Beautification Council (ABC), the Bridge and the Northwest Human Resources Development Center.

ABC is seeking about $29,000 to use in its beautification program, particularly around the downtown train station.

U. S. REP. PHILIP M. Crane, R-12th, told students at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights that he was against amnesty for draft dodgers, against using a lottery to add to state revenue, against the recent Supreme Court decision on abortion and against parochial. Crane toured several high schools in the 12th Congressional District Friday during a trip here which included a Republican fund raising dinner in Chicago.

'Don't trust government,' Crane says

by CINDY TEW

"Don't trust government or politicians," U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, told 300 St. Viator High School students Friday. "Man is imperfect and so are his institutions."

Crane spent more than a half an hour responding to students' questions ranging from parochial and abortion to amnesty to draft dodgers. Crane launched into his hardest hitting commentary when asked about the waste in government and why people are losing faith in their representatives.

"There are 2.8 million people in the federal bureaucracy — that monstrosity on the Potomac," said Crane. "It's too big to be managed and we don't even know half of the corruption that's going on."

The only way the problem is going to be solved, according to Crane, is to decentralize the government and give the power back to the people.

"REVENUE SHARING is a step in the right direction — at least the local governments are getting back some of the local taxpayers' money," said Crane.

A well-known conservative, who won a landslide victory in November in the new 12th congressional district, Crane was well received by the students. Many students said they agreed with most of his ideas.

The congressman received a smattering of boos, however, for his views on parochialism.

by JOANN VAN WYE

DESPITE the demise of farmers as subdivisions encroach on what was once farm land, the Cook County Farm Bureau has continued to grow.

"A farm bureau won't last three years in Cook County."

That was the common sentiment in 1920 when the Cook County Farm Bureau was organized.

Today, 53 years later, the Cook County Farm Bureau not only exists, but is the largest in the state, boasting a membership of 8,200.

And the last time there was any talk of dissolving the Cook County Farm Bureau was in 1925 when some wanted the county to be carved up and given to adjoining counties for farm bureau services. Leaders of the farm bureau held on. Now the Cook County Farm Bureau is so sure of its continued role in serving Cook County that it is planning to construct a new facility in Rolling Meadows.

"We have just outgrown our present facility," said Gordon Fox, executive secretary of the Cook County Farm Bureau. When the farm bureau moved to its present Arlington Heights location at 201 N. Dunton Ave. in 1934 there were five or six employees. There are 20 farm bureau employees there now.

GROUND WILL be broken this spring for a new two-story building on the west side of Hicks Road, just north of Euclid Avenue in Rolling Meadows. Fox is hopeful the building will be ready for occupancy in the fall. The University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service will share the building with the Cook County Farm Bureau and there will be additional office space for rent.

Membership in the Cook County Farm Bureau has increased steadily despite the demise of farmers as land becomes too expensive to farm and is bought up by developers who erect large apartment complexes and subdivisions on what was once prime farm land.

Most people don't realize it but there are still 75,000 acres of land in cultivation in Cook County, but mainly in the southern portion of the county, said Fox.

And approximately 60 per cent of the Cook County Farm Bureau's membership is made up of farmers. These are the voting members of the bureau who have retained the control and guidance of the farm bureau. Many of the voting members don't actually farm in Cook County but own farms downstate and live in the county.

THE OTHER members of the county farm bureau are called associate members and they have no vote. These members usually join the farm bureau to take advantage of the commercial services it offers to members including insurance programs.

The farm bureau system was originally organized to help farmers become more efficient producers and promote a more profitable system of agriculture.

Over the years, the scope of the farm bureau has broadened. In addition to educational services, the farm bureau maintains a lobby both in Springfield and Washington, D.C. and offers commercial services to its members.

Three full time lobbyists represent the farmers in Springfield serving as watch dogs to head off legislation detrimental to agriculture and push for more favorable legislation. The national association also maintains a full time lobby corps in

COMMERCIAL services were added to the farm bureau's operation in the 1920s and 1930s. Insurance was one of the first business services the farmers called for. In 1929 Country Life Insurance Co. was organized to meet the needs of farmers in Illinois. Country Companies Insurance now offers its members a complete line of insurance.

A second commercial service available to farmers is the Lake-Cook Farm Supply Co. This is a farmer's cooperative that makes seed, petroleum, garden supplies and other agricultural needs available to farm bureau members at reduced prices. There are four stores in Cook County that farm members can purchase from. Farm bureau members become common stockholders of the cooperative and at the end of each fiscal year they receive a patronage refund based on the amount of supplies they purchased from the cooperative during the year.

The farm bureau also maintains a sports program. This includes bowling and softball tournaments.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Firemen tore their way through the flame-blackened wreckage of the world's largest liquefied natural gas tank, pulling out bodies of 40 workmen trapped and killed by the explosion. Rescue workers who descended into the blackened pit that remained of the New York facility, said those trapped "had as much chance as a snowball in hell."

The judge in the Pentagon Papers trial plans to rule today whether security regulations at the Rand Corp. "think tank" have any bearing on the charges against Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairman Russell B. Long of the Senate Finance Committee is expected to press for passage of his "work bonus" plan to give a hefty tax rebate to families with sub-poverty incomes, possibly with President Nixon's backing. Under the plan a family with wage earnings of up to $4,000 a year would be eligible for a Treasury check equal to 10 per cent of earnings. Above $4,000, the "work bonus" would diminish as earnings increase and cut off at the $5,600 level.

President Nixon said White House aide Henry Kissinger's talks in Hanoi have been serious and he hoped "constructive." The President was interviewed by newsmen briefly as he left the Palisades United Presbyterian Church in Falls Church, near San Clemente, Calif. He said he has no plans to formally mark the release of the first American POWs because he wants the men to be with their families quickly.

New rules governing the federally funded summer school lunch program for needy children will be proposed in a few days by the administration to improve efficiency and halt some flagrant local abuses, it was learned.

The world

A procedural question over the release of Communist prisoners could stall the return of all POWs, a Viet Cong spokesman said. A South Vietnamese spokesman at the Bien Hoa prison camp, 14 miles northeast of Saigon, said the Communist POWs there were refusing to board the planes to take them to freedom, UPI correspondent Tracy Wood reported. A North Vietnamese spokesman confirmed the refusal and said the POWs were waiting until the American truce representative arrived.

South Vietnam's president Nguyen Van Thieu replaced his chief delegate to the Joint Military Commission peace-keeping force while several thousand South Vietnamese staged an anti-Communist demonstration outside the quarters of North Vietnamese truce delegates.

Two Americans flying for Air America Inc., the airline operated by the Central Intelligence Agency have been listed as missing after their C123 transport was shot down by North Vietnamese anti-aircraft fire, officials said.

More than 100 persons who returned to volcano-ravaged Heimaey Island in Iceland to retrieve personal belongings were stranded there by a snowstorm. They were isolated along with about 400 other person, most of them rescue workers, waiting for the storm to ease so planes could pick them up. Today's forecast is for more snow and wind. The island had 5,000 residents before the Heifjell volcano came to life 20 days ago and sent lava over much of the island.

Four arrested, $50,000 'pot' seized at motel

A two-month investigation of drugs at Elk Grove High School in Elk Grove Village ended Friday night with the arrest of four persons and the confiscation of 100 pounds of marijuana with a street value of more than $50,000.

"We theorize that we have now cut off the major supply of marijuana to the Elk Grove Village area," police Lt. Ray Martinez said of the arrests.

Paepaka, 22, of Barrington, Wis.

The four were arrested after agents from the Metropolitan Enforcement Group, an area-wide law enforcement agency, and Elk Grove Village Detective Richard Rusch arranged and witnessed the sale of the marijuana for $15,000. Both the money and the marijuana were confiscated in the arrest.

Carroll was charged with delivery of marijuana, Maheris with delivery of marijuana and resisting arrest. Paepaka was charged with conspiracy to deliver and sell marijuana. Raemisch was charged with delivery of marijuana and aggravated assault. Raemisch allegedly was carrying a loaded .22-caliber automatic pistol at the time of the arrest.

THE CONFISCATION of marijuana Friday was one of the biggest caches in which Elk Grove Village police have been involved in recovering.

Bond for Carroll and Raemisch was set at $4,000. Bond for Paepaka and Maheris was set at $2,500. All four were released on bond. Their court date was set for Feb. 27 in Skokie.

In another apparently unrelated incident, Elk Grove Village police arrested two men Friday night for possession of marijuana.

The two, Kenneth Eckel Jr., 28, of 4325 N. Richmond Ave., Chicago, and Stan Fischel, 21, of 422 W. Lake St., Addison, were arrested in the parking lot of Jake's Plaza, 66 E. Devon, when they offered an undercover policeman a marijuana cigarette. Both were charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

Grooming, modeling talk set at Miner

Grooming, modeling and coordinating a wardrobe will be discussed by a member of the Wendy Ward Charm School today from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Miner Junior High, 1101 E. Miner, Arlington Heights.

A fashion consultant from the Talon Company will also be at the discussion to present the latest sewing techniques.

The program is open to all girls and their parents, and is being sponsored by the Arlington Heights 4-H clubs.

Parks, Municipal Building are open

While school districts, banks and federal operations are closed today in honor of Lincoln's Birthday, the Arlington Heights Park District and municipal building will remain open.

The village offices will be closed on Feb. 19 in honor of both Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays.

Burglars get TVs, appliances at homes

Burglars invaded two Arlington Heights homes Saturday night and took television sets and appliances.

Police said the Peter Lolacone residence, 619 W. Fairview, was broken into while the family was away during the evening. Entry was gained by breaking a bedroom window. A television set, kitchen appliances and liquor were stolen.

The second burglary occurred late Saturday at the residence of Thomas J. Hanigan, 1002 N. Hickory, who returned home to find every room ransacked and a portable color television, kitchen appliances, cameras and meat in the freezer taken.

The rear door window was smashed, police said. Value of the stolen items was estimated at more than $400.

Meetings this week

Monday, Feb. 12

The legal committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The public relations committee will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

The youth council will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

Dist. 214 Board of Education will meet at the district administration building, 709 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Pistol-brandishing robber gets $700

A man armed with a .38-caliber pistol robbed a White Hen Pantry store in Arlington Heights of $700 Saturday night.

Arlington Heights police said the man, believed to be about 23 years old, entered the store, 333 S. Arlington Heights Rd. at 6:30 p.m. He held the clerk at gunpoint and demanded all the currency. The robber took the money and fled on foot from the store. Police searched the area but did not find the man.

THE GUTTED REMAINS of a Wheeling home show the intensity of the fire that killed a young couple. Michael and Barbara Devitt were found in different areas of the house by firemen. Mrs. Devitt was found alive but later died at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, while her husband was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. The official causes of death are being withheld pending an inquest.

'Carelessness' caused fatal fire

"Careless use of smoking materials" is assumed to be the cause of a fire that killed a young Wheeling couple early Friday.

The announcement was made by Wheeling Chief Bernie Koepfen following an investigation by a deputy state fire marshal. Koepfen said the fire apparently started in a couch in the living room.

The couple, Michael and Barbara Devitt, died as a result of the fire at 705 S. Merle Ln.

Devitt, 24, was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital. Mrs. Devitt, 20, died two hours after she was pulled from the burning building, officials said.

THE OFFICIAL cause of death are being withheld by the Cook County Coroner's office pending an inquest in six weeks.

According to Koepfen, firemen received the alarm at 3:38 a.m. Friday from Devitt's neighbor, William Null. Null was awakened by Larry Steward, 586 E. Merle Ln., who discovered the blaze.

Koepfen said Steward ran to the Devitt residence and pounded on windows and doors. When he didn't get a response he told Null to call the firemen.

The first firemen to arrive on the scene said the house was completely engulfed in flames. They said they found Mrs. Devitt lying unconscious by the back door. She had burns over much of her body.

DEVITT WAS found in a corner of a back bedroom. According to officials, he was not badly burned and apparently died of smoke inhalation.

Koepfen could not explain why the bodies were found in different parts of the house. "No one can explain why people do what they do in a fire. You may think you're running one way and you are going another," said the chief.

He added, "We believe both people were near windows, yet it looks like Mrs. Devitt ran through the fire to try to get to the door."

Koepfen said everyone should have

THE DEVITT home is located in the more established area of Wheeling. According to officials, the house burned very rapidly.

The fire deaths are the second and third to occur in Wheeling this year. A 78-year-old resident died in his smoke-filled apartment almost one month ago. The cause of that fire was also attributed to burning ashes falling into a chair.

Wheeling reported no fire deaths in 1972.

Don't trust government, Crane says

not be given as an outright monetary contribution," said Crane. As the boos died down, Crane was quick to point out that he planned to submit legislation so parents could receive a tax credit for tuition paid to non-public schools.

"Direct financial aid to non-public schools is unconstitutional but a monolithic school system in the county is undesirable," said Crane. "By offering tax credit for tuition cost the church and state could remain separate and the extra cost of non-public education wouldn't be such a burden."

MIKE MOONEY, a senior at the Arlington Heights Catholic boys school, told Crane he disagreed with the congressman's position of no amnesty for draft dodgers.

"I am totally opposed to amnesty for draft dodgers," said Crane. "Unless you become a conscious objector and declare that you object to all wars you have two options if you don't want to be drafted. Either leave the country and don't come back or pay the price by going to jail."

"The laws of the country cannot be chosen selectively to meet your needs of the moment."

Crane also said he was "appalled" by both the Supreme Court decision on abortion and the possible use of a lottery to increase state revenue.

"I'm appalled that the Supreme Court would even get into the abortion issue. Now it is the law of the land that until a fetus is able to live outside the womb it is not human. I think life starts at conception and who is the Supreme Court justice to tell me otherwise," Crane has seven daughters and a son. "All we need is two more girls and we'll have a volleyball team and a water boy," he said.

CRANE SAID every state should make its own decision on the abortion issue.

"If the people at New York want abortion on demand, I'll despair, but in Illinois, where more sanity prevails, I'll fight to keep strict abortion laws," said

Crane. Crane said he is against a state lottery because the people who would get involved are those who can least afford it.

Sometimes land development plans just never get off the ground.

A case in point is the now dormant plan to rezone the property south of Kirchoff Road and immediately west of Northwest Community Hospital from single-family to multi-family.

The rezoning question for this parcel, known as the Teis property, could never be answered because of lawsuits over the rezoning of 32 acres further west — property known as the Gosch Farm.

In a letter withdrawing the 14-month-old rezoning petition for the Teis property, attorney Bill Moore said: "It is apparent that this matter will not be resolved for some time to come since the nature of the litigation involved now is one which pertains to the social issue of low-cost housing."

The JEM Construction Company, the prospective developer of the Gosch Farm, has filed a lawsuit charging that the village failed to rezone the 32 acres for multi-family development because of plans to build low-income housing at the site.

The JEM suit is still pending in U.S. District Court.

But though the Teis property is still zoned single-family and is still undeveloped, the rezoning request was not a total loss for Joseph and Neva Teis.

Because the petition had never really been aired, the plan commission did vote to refund the $150 filing fee.

"Don't shoot it, Pappy... let's give it another chance with a tune-up from JERRY's Northwest Standard Service."
